STEEDMAN'S SOOTHING POWDERS FOR CHILDREN CUTTING TEETH.

CAUTION TO PURCHASERS.

The value of this well-known Family Medicine has been largely tested in all parts of the world, and by all grades of society, for upwards of FIFTY YEARS. Its well-earned and extensive sale has induced SPURIOUS IMITATIONS, some of which in OUTWARD APPEARANCE so closely resemble the original as to have deceived many purchasers. The proprietor, therefore, feels it due to the public to give a special caution against the use of such imitations.

Purchasers are, therefore, requested carefully to observe the four following distinctive characteristics, without which none are genuine:—

1. In every case the words JOHN STEEDMAN, Chemist, Walworth, Surrey, are engraved on the Government stamp affixed to each packet.

2. Each single powder has directions for the same, and the words John Steedman, Chemist, Walworth, Surrey, printed thereon.

3. The name Steedman is always spelt with two EE's.

4. The manufacture is carried on solely at Walworth, Surrey.

Sold in packets by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors, at 1s 1½d and 2s 9d each.

MIRACULOUS CURE OF ULCERATED SORES.

Grimsbury, Banbury, 10th August, 1874.

"Dear Sir,—I beg to tender you my grateful thanks for the benefit I have derived from taking your world-famed 'Blood Mixture.' I had been in several hospitals for my complaints—ulcerated sores—but without deriving any benefit, and had given up all hopes of getting cured. Some weeks ago I bought a small bottle of your 'Blood Mixture,' and since that time I have had six more, the effect of which has been miraculous.

"Yours faithfully,

"CHARLES PARTRIDGE."

"To Mr. Clarke, Lincoln."

WONDERFUL CURE IN A BAD CASE OF BLOOD POISONING.

"75, Westminster Bridge Road, Lambeth, London, S.E., 9th July, 1874.

"Sir,—I return my sincere thanks to you for the great benefit I have derived by taking your celebrated 'Blood Mixture.' I will state my complaints to you. I had an injured finger, and unfortunately got it poisoned; then it gradually became worse. My arms, face, and body came out in pimples and blotches, and could scarcely stand on my legs. However, I saw an advertisement from you; I agreed, as a last resource, with my wife, to try your 'Blood Mixture,' and, thank God, the second day I felt relief, and in one week the pimples began to die away. In three weeks I went to work again.

"Yours truly,

"JOHN HENDERSON."

"To Mr. Clarke."

CURE OF SORE LEG.

"Deeping, St. James', Peterborough, 18th April, 1874.

"Mr. Clarke.—Sir,—I have much pleasure in stating that your 'Blood Mixture' and 'Skin Lotion' quite cured me of a fearful bad leg, of upwards of a year's standing; the sore was brought on by a scald, and I never thought it would get better; however, I sent to your agent, Mr. W. Stephen Wilson, chemist, Long Causeway, Peterborough, for the world-famed 'Blood Mixture,' and, after a few weeks, quite recovered. I shall be glad to answer any questions on the subject.

"I am yours gratefully,

"SARAH BAKER."

SKIN DISEASES, eruptions, blotches, spots, pimples, pustules, boils, carbuncles, ringworms, scald heads, sore eyes, erysipelas, itch, scurfs, discolourations of the skin, humours and diseases of the skin of whatever name or nature, are literally carried out of the system in a short time by the use of this world-famed Medicine.

IMPORTANT ADVICE TO ALL.—Cleanse the vitiated blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions, or sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is sold in bottles, 2s 9d each, and in cases containing six times the quantity, 11s each—sufficient to effect a permanent cure in the great majority of long-standing cases.

BISHOP'S CITRATE OF MAGNESIA.

ALFRED BISHOP, Manufacturing Chemist, 17, Speedy's Fields, Mile End, New Town, London, N.E., respectfully reminds the wholesale and retail trade, both in Great Britain and abroad, that he originally invented and prepared Citrate of Magnesia since 1857, when it was first introduced. He has never ceased personally to superintend its manufacture, and the marked superiority of his brand over that of all the imitations in the market is admitted by all the largest buyers. The materials employed are uniformly of the highest quality; the granules are handsome in appearance and perfectly soluble, and the powder preparation yields a draught which, as a refreshing saline medicine of peculiarly pleasant flavour, is [illegible] invaluable from the imitations. NEW SOUTH WALES PARLIAMENT.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

FRIDAY, JUNE 11.

THE SPEAKER took the chair at twenty-nine minutes past 4 o'clock.

RAILWAY TO THE SOUTHERN COAL-FIELDS.
Mr. GRAY asked the Secretary for Public Works,—"1. Has a survey been made of a line of railway from Sydney towards the Southern Coal-fields, and has a route via Port Hacking and the coal cliff to Wollongong been reported on as practicable and favourable route? 2. Has the Government had under its consideration the propriety of recommending to the Parliament that such railway be undertaken forthwith?"
Mr. LACKEY replied—1. A survey has been made, and a practicable route obtained. 2. The Government have not yet been able to consider this as well as other important questions of railway extension; they hope, however, to be able, after the business of the session has concluded, to give it their earliest attention.

ALIGNMENT OF BREWARRINA.
Mr. T. G. DANGAR asked the Secretary for Lands,—"Have, or will any steps be taken by the Government towards the alignment of the streets of Brewarrina?"
Mr. GARRETT replied that no application had reached the office asking for an alignment of the streets of Brewarrina.

MAGISTRATES AT GADOOGA.
Mr. T. G. DANGAR asked the Colonial Secretary,—"1. Is the Government aware that there are no magistrates now in the district to form a Bench at Gadooga, on the Bree River? 2. Will any steps be taken by the Government to remedy this inconvenience by the appointment of gentlemen, recommended or otherwise?"
Mr. W. FORSTER said certain gentlemen had been recommended as magistrates, and their appointment had been represented as necessary. The required appointments would be made as early as possible.

CASE OF PATRICK CARROLL.
Mr. W. C. BROWNE asked the Colonial Secretary,—"1. Was a person named Patrick Carroll tried before the Bench of magistrates at Singleton on the 28th May for petty larceny? 2 Was any evidence taken as to the value of the article stolen? 3. Was it alleged in evidence that the prosecutor gave the article to the person from whom prisoner received it? 4. Was this person called upon to give evidence? 5. Did the magistrates give the defendant the option of electing to be dealt with summarily or be sent to a jury. 6. Who were the magistrates who adjudicated in this case, and what was their decision? 7. Is it the intention of the Attorney-General to place Carroll upon his trial?"
Mr. W. FORSTER replied—1. An examination was held on that day before a Bench of magistrates, at Singleton, which resulted in the committal of a person named Patrick Carroll for larceny. 2. No. 3. It does not appear upon the depositions. 4. No such person was called upon to give evidence. 5. The Government are not aware. 6. Messrs. J. N. Brooks and George Thomas Loder. 7. The Attorney-General is not called upon to entertain or consider this matter unless it is specially submitted to him by the Crown Prosecutor for the Metropolitan and Coast district, as the prisoner has been committed to take his trial at the Court of Quarter Sessions at Singleton.

EXPENDITURE IN CONNECTION WITH TELEGRAPHIC AND POSTAL MATTERS.
Mr. DAVIES (for Mr. Dibbs) asked the Colonial Secretary,—"1. What was the total cost incurred for telegrams and cablegrams in connection with the Pacific mail service, from the date of the inception of negotiations to the present time? 2. What was the amount of the total expenditure incurred consequent on the visit of the late Postmaster-General to New Zealand, England, and America in connection with the Pacific mail service negotiations? 3. Have steps been taken for the recovery from Hall's sureties of the amount of their bonds? 4. Are actions pending at law for the recovery of the penalties? 5. Is there any prospect of the penalties being recovered, in whole or in part? 6. What was the amount advanced to Mr. H. H. Hall to account of, and in excess of, subsidies due under his contract?
Mr. W. FORSTER replied—1. I regret that the information cannot be furnished this afternoon. 2. £1616 16s. 9d. 3. Yes. 4. Yes. 5. It can hardly be expected that an opinion in anticipation of the result of an appeal to the Law Courts should be expressed. 6. £3179 9s. 1d.

CULTURE OF SILK.
Mr. DAVIES (for Mr. Dibbs) asked the Colonial Secretary—"1. Has any proposition been made to the Government having for its object the general extension of silk culture in the colony? 2. If any proposition has been made, will he have any objection to state the views and intentions of the Government in respect thereto?"
Mr. W. FORSTER replied, that such a proposition had been made by Mrs. Brady, but the Government, having at present in consideration a number of other and more pressing matters, did not consider it their duty to take the culture of silk under their supervision or protection.

COUNTRY POSTMASTERS.
Mr. DAVIES (for Mr. Teece) asked the Postmaster-General,—"For what length of time previous to the dispatch of a mail bag from a country office is a postmaster permitted to exclude from such bag letters and newspapers posted for the purpose of being included therein?"
Mr. BURNS replied,—Half an hour in the case of mails dispatched between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m., but correspondence for mails dispatched between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. must be posted by 9 30 p.m.. This rule applies to unregistered correspondence. Registered letters must be posted within a reasonable time, not exceeding one hour, before the time appointed for closing mails, and between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

BOROUGH ROADS OF ASHFIELD.
Mr. HILL asked the Secretary for Lands,—"When will the borough roads of Ashfield be proclaimed?"
Mr. GARRETT replied,—Possibly in a month. The plans are large and works of examination considerable.

STEAM DREDGES IN THE HUNTER.
Mr. WISDOM asked the Secretary for Public Works,—"1. Is it the intention of the Government to remove one of the three steam dredges now at Newcastle, with a view to its permanent employment in dredging the River Hunter above that port? 2. If such be the intention of the Government, when will it be carried out?"
Mr. LACKEY said:—1. No definite arrangement can at present be made, as one of the dredges is laid up for extensive repairs. 2. The Government are fully aware of the importance of the question, and will take the earliest opportunity of having one of the dredges detached for the upriver service.

COURT-HOUSE AT CROOKWELL.
Mr. COHEN (for Mr. Butler) asked the Secretary for Public Works,—"When will the Court-house and watch-house at Crookwell be finished?"
Mr. LACKEY said that two contractors for this building had failed to carry out the work, and it was now in the hands of a third. The building would probably be completed in about three weeks.

CIVIL SERVICE DEDUCTIONS.
Mr. TAYLOR asked the Colonial Secretary,—"When will the papers relating to the deductions from the salaries of the Civil servants be laid upon the table of the House?"
Mr. W. FORSTER said that there was no objection to the production of the papers but the hon. member had not moved for them, which was the usual Parliamentary course.

EXTENSION OF THE GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.
Mr W. H. SUTTOR asked the Secretary for Public Works,—"1. Is it the intention of the Government to use for the permanent way of the extension of the Great Western Railway beyond Bathurst the rails lately imported? 2. Is it not a fact that these rails have been condemned by the Commission appointed to examine them, as being weak, ill made, easily broken, and consequently unsafe?"
Mr. LACKEY replied: 1. It has been found necessary to forward for the extension beyond Bathurst some of the Consett Company's rails, as the rails ordered specially for the extension to Orange have not yet arrived in the colony. 2. No. The commissioners reported upon the Park Gate Iron Company's rails.

IMMIGRATION.
Mr. STEVENS presented a petition from 816 inhabitants of Wallsend and the surrounding district, against the immigration resolutions proposed by Mr. Piddington.
The petition was received.

MONDAY AS A SITTING DAY.
Mr. NELSON asked the Colonial Treasurer, without notice, whether it was the intention of the Government to continue Monday as a sitting day, now that the Land Bill was carried.
Mr. W. FORSTER replied that he could hardly say, but until the intention of the Government was announced to discontinue it, the hon. member might take it for granted it would go on.

BRIDGE OVER THE COCKFIGHTER.
Mr. W. C. BROWNE asked the Minister for Public Works, without notice, whether he was aware that the approaches to the eastern end of the Cockfighter Bridge were washed away during the recent flood, and if instructions had been given for the repairs.
Mr. LACKEY said he was aware of the damage done to the bridge. Steps would be immediately taken by the department to have the damages repaired.

WEST MACQUARIE ELECTION.
Mr. W. FORSTER laid upon the table papers and correspondence in connection with charges of personation at the West Macquarie election. He moved that the documents be printed, which was agreed to.

PETITIONS PRINTED.
Mr. DAVIES moved that the petition presented by him on 10th June, from the Independent Order of Good Templars, Newcastle, against the passing of the Railway Refreshment Rooms Bill, be printed.
Mr. DAY, for Mr. Wright, moved that the petition presented by him on 9th June, from Sons of Temperance and residents of Gundaroo, against the passing of the Railway Refreshment Rooms Bill, be printed.
Agreed to.

PENSIONS TO WIDOWS.
The House then resolved itself into Committee of the Whole, for the further consideration of an address to the Governor, praying that his Excellency will be pleased to cause to be placed upon the Supplementary Estimates for the present year, a sum of money for the relief of the widows of the late Lieutenant Gowlland and — Petersen, and Thomas Havenhand, who lost their lives in performance of their duties in the public service.
Mr. PIDDINGTON said that, when this question was under consideration last, the Colonial Secretary promised that when it again came before the committee, he would be prepared with information showing the amount of money of which Lieutenant Gowlland was in the receipt; as the Colonial Secretary was not present to give that information, he suggested that the further consideration of the question should be postponed, unless some other member of the Government could furnish the information.
Mr. GARRETT said he was not in a position to give hon. members any information. The salary paid to Lieutenant Gowlland could be ascertained by a reference to the Blue Book.
Mr. CAMERON thought that the hon. member who had submitted the resolution (Mr. Dibbs) deserved credit for his gallantry in having taken three widows in hand at once; but it seemed to him, after having read the case which the hon. member endeavoured to make out, that it had not been made out in such a manner as to warrant the House in voting public money for the object proposed. He was aware that, in regard to the widows of two of the persons named in the resolution, a very good case might possibly be made out, inasmuch as their husbands were men who occupied a low position in the service of the country, and were consequently not very well able to make much provision for their wives and families. But it seemed to him that the claims of the widow of Lieutenant Gowlland were made the paramount subject of the resolution. He had always held this principle, that it was to our interests, and it was our bounden duty to pay a good salary to the civil servants of the country; such a salary as would enable them to lay by a little for a rainy day. Lieutenant Gowlland, however, was not in a subordinate position in the public service; he was in receipt of an income of upwards of £800 a year; and any man having such an income was bound to make provision for those whom he knew he would be likely to leave behind him. The hon. member (Mr. Dibbs) had not made out any case at all; he had abstained from giving the committee any information regarding the circumstances in which the widow of Lieutenant Gowlland was placed; or shown that she was in such a position as to need assistance from the Parliament. He believed that she was in no such position, but was in very easy circumstances, being connected with one of the wealthiest families in this country. The hon. gentleman alluded to cases that had occurred here and also in the mother country, in which pensions had been granted to the widows of persons who had lost their lives in the public service, but they had no reference to the cases in question. In such cases a precedent could not be laid own. He thought it would be a great injustice to the taxpayers of the country, who were in no way connected with the public service, to vote money for such an object, unless it were shown that extreme necessity for it existed. Very few persons would deny that by the death of Lieutenant Gowlland the country suffered a loss; and, if the hon. member had asked the House to vote a sum of money on account of the services which Lieutenant Gowlland had rendered to the country, he could have understood the validity of such a request. The committee would be justified in declining to vote for the resolution, because the hon. member had refused to place them in possession of the whole of the circumstances connected with the cases he had undertaken. For these reasons he should use every means to defeat the proposal.
Mr. FITZPATRICK thought the arguments of the hon member for West Sydney (Mr. Cameron) had not much force. The hon. gentleman seemed to rely upon the sympathetic basis of the claim, and so forget that the claim grew out of the character of the case itself. The hon. gentleman seemed to attach great importance to precedent. But it was not likely, as the hon. gentleman appeared to conceive, that lieutenants would drown themselves on purpose. He considered that the case had been made out why this resolution should be passed. It was made out in the few words "that Lieutenant Gowlland lost his life in the public service." They would be behind every country in the civilised world if they did not recognise the claims of a widow whose husband had lost his life in the public service. He admitted that the social positions of the persons might colour the amount to be granted; but those circumstances would properly be left to the determination of the Government, who would be the best fitted to make the inquiry. But he believed it was a sound policy for any Government to lay down, that consideration should be extended to the widow of any officer who lost his life in the public service. Nothing would more stimulate a public servant to do his duty when placed in a position of risk than the consciousness that his services would not be forgotten. If Lieutenant Gowlland insured his life, that was only a proper thing. He did it with his own money, and that had nothing to do with the question. He regarded the Government in this matter simply as an employer. He believed that when a man in the employ of a private individual of large means lost his life in his zeal and anxiety for the service of that employer, the employer was found to come in and do something for the widow. He was now reminded that the proprietors of the Sydney Morning Herald had lately made provision for the widow of a man who lost his life in their service.
Mr. CAMERON: They are model employers if they do that.
Mr. FITZPATRICK said not merely generosity, but interest would lead an employer to do this, because it would make other servants more zealous in the performance of their duties. He hoped that this motion would be carried.
Mr. GARRETT said that the hon. member (Mr. Cameron) occupied the inconsistent position of having lately voted pensions to the widow of Lady Dowling, and other persons whose husbands had died in the public services. These pensions were submitted on the Supplementary Estimates and the Estimates in chief. On the Estimates in chief there was a sum of £100 granted to the widow of William Sutton, killed on the railway; and a case exactly in point was the assistance granted to John Williams, a seaman, who was drowned at the heads. In this case some £300 or £400 was subscribed for the widow and family by the citizens, but that was never urged as a reason why they should not be further assisted. Parliament had always been called upon to answer these claims, and until some statutory provision was made to meet them Parliament would always have to deal with them. Hon. members would see that it would be far better to establish a rule by Act of Parliament, in which all these cases could be dealt with expressly, so that they would not need to be individually brought before Parliament. Under existing circumstances, cases might not be fully recognized, through the parties not having influence. It would therefore be far better that some provision should be made by which all these cases could be dealt with. (Hear, hear.) As it was, they had to deal with each case on its merits. He did not think, because Mrs. Gowlland might be well off—though he believed she was not—that that was a reason why she had no claim.
Mr. MACINTOSH should vote against this resolution, not because he thought Lieutenant Gowlland had not been a good officer, but because he thought it was time that all such cases as this should be dealt with under a bill. The names associated with Lieutenant Gowlland would never have been brought forward at all only that Lieutenant Gowlland's case had to be introduced. They ought to set their faces against all such cases until the Government brought in a bill.
Mr. WISDOM was rather surprised at the hon. gentleman who had just sat down. Because injustice was done in some cases he did not see why they should not do justice in others. He was inclined at first to take the same view of these cases as the hon. member (Mr. Cameron), but upon further reflection he thought that there being no doubt that Mrs. Gowlland's husband had lost his life in the public service, she had been thereby deprived of the means of subsistence which her husband received from the Imperial Government. He thought the State was bound to make up the loss to some extent.
Mr. R. B. SMITH said that, with regard to the case of the widow of Thomas Havenand, it was one which deserved the consideration and sympathy of the House. Havenand was a warder in the Port Macquarie gaol, and was compelled, against his inclination, to take charge of a prisoner who was to be brought to Sydney. On the voyage to Sydney the vessel was wrecked and Havenand was drowned. His body was afterwards found on the beach. Havenand had left a widow and two children entirely without friends or any means of support. A large number of people residing in the district of Port Macquarie had petitioned the Colonial Secretary, asking the hon. gentleman to take the case of the unfortunate woman into consideration, and the hon gentleman promised to do so.
Mr. PARKES said he could not help thinking that it would be much better if motions such as the one before the House were initiated by the Government, after inquiry, so that the facts of every case could be known and ascertained by persons who were responsible to the House for ascertaining the truth. In these cases he felt by no means satisfied with the facts at all. They were told that the Government ought to act graciously towards the relatives of any man who lost his life in some perilous service for the Government of the country. But it had not been shown that the services of any of the three persons under consideration were in any particular way perilous, unless it was to be taken for granted that every professional man who went to sea went upon a perilous service. He was disposed altogether to deny such an assertion. As far as he could understand it, the lives of the three persons mentioned were lost by pure accident. They were engaged in no service of special peril—there was nothing to show beforehand that they were about entering on a perilous enterprise. He thought the hon. member who spoke last had afforded a ground-work for a very strong argument against his own case. Because hon. members must recollect, when they availed themselves of their positions as representatives of the people to deal so liberally with the public moneys, where those moneys came from. The hon. gentleman had told the House that the family for which he felt interested lost their natural head by a wreck along the coast. All those who were on board the same vessel—ten in number altogether—also lost their lives by the same wreck. Yet the relatives of only one of those persons had been singled out for compensation. [Mr. FITZPATRICK: He was the only one in the Government service.] Then the families of the others, who were to pay this proposed compensation through the taxes of the country, were to have no compensation at all? Why should the servants of the Government, who were in positions of greater certainty than any other class of servants, and who were not supposed to be more hardly dealt with than any other class of servants, have secured to them a consideration which persons not in the public service did not generally receive from society? He could not understand the necessity, or the logic, or the justice of this system of compensation to the survivors of public servants, or of pensions to public servants. The Legislature the other day, expended some hundred thousand pounds in putting an end to pensions altogether. With regard to Lieutenant Gowlland, he was not satisfied that that lamented gentleman was in the public service at all. [Mr. PIDDINGTON: He was not, he was only temporarily employed.] Lieutenant Gowlland was sent to this colony by the Admiralty. He was ordered home by the Admiralty; but having connections here, and a liking for the colony, and having obtained his promotion at home, he resigned his appointment under the Admiralty and came to Sydney again, with the object of getting employment. But up to the time of his death he did not think Lieutenant Gowlland obtained any regular appointment under the Government. The loss of that gentleman's life, which no one regretted more than he (Mr. Parkes) did, was occasioned by pure accident. The deaths of the two other persons named in the resolution were occasioned also by accident. And the question arose whether hon. members were to ask the rest of the community, who if they lost their lives received no such consideration, to pay compensation which was sought to be given in these cases. He did not see why persons in the Government service should not make the same provision for their relatives as persons in private life did. It was argued by the hon. member for Yass that it would benefit the whole of the public service. Whatever the civil service was, if its conditions were known people who entered it would be perfectly content with the result. If it was known to-morrow that no pensions or compensation could possibly be given in cases of accidental death, it would not deter people from entering the public service. People would enter it as long as it paid them to enter it. He thought the civil service should be paid well, and they should know definitely that their salaries were all they would receive. But this system of compensation or pensions, such as was now proposed, should be terminated for ever. He did not think that all the cases of accidental death in the public service came before the House. He had heard of many cases where persons employed upon public works lost their lives, and he knew that the country made no provision for them. The Government might properly be called upon to pension the survivors of a man who, in a time of great emergency, performed some perilous service; but that was not the case here; and if compensation were given in all cases alike, the most hazardous and meritorious services would be reduced to the level of those which were ordinary, and had no special merit to commend them.
Mr. STUART trusted that the ingenious special pleading of the hon. member who had just sat down would not divert the attention of the committee from the real question before it. In a case such as this, where persons lost their lives in the performance of their public duty, the Parliament ought to make provision for their families. There was not a large employer in any part of the world who would not in a case of this kind give sympathy and substantial aid to the widow or children who might survive, and it was still more important that the Government should act in the same liberal spirit. He deprecated the principle laid down by the hon. member for West Sydney (Mr. Cameron) that this question owed its consideration to class interests. The records of the House showed that the Parliament had not acted in the spirit of class legislation, but had discharged their duty irrespective of social position of those who were entitled to receive our assistance. In the case of those who were drowned with the constable referred to, it was a sufficient answer to the remarks of the hon. member for East Sydney (Mr. Parkes) to say that they were not in the public service. The resolution made no reference to the amount of the compensation, but simply left it to the Executive to award a fitting amount. He had much pleasure in bearing his testimony to the value of the late Lieutenant Gowlland's services.
Mr. H. C. DANGAR said that all employers who could afford to make provision for the families of those who were accidentally killed in their service did so. When we so often saw model employers, as the hon. member described them, like the proprietors of the Sydney Morning Herald, providing for the widows of those who died in their service, he did not see how the House could be less liberal by refusing to vote for the motion. The case of Lieutenant Gowlland was one with which hon. members were acquainted, and there was not so much necessity, therefore, for the Government to institute the preliminary injuries usual in such cases. We had derived the whole benefit of the important services rendered by Lieutenant Gowlland, although the colony had only paid a part of the cost. The services of Lieutenant Gowlland were at all times accomplished with a large amount of peril; and his knowledge of the harbour enabled him to say that Lieutenant Gowlland must have been exposed to great peril in the performance of the particular duty in which he was engaged when he lost his life. The granting of three pensions would not affect the revenue to any appreciable degree, as the cases of the kind were very few. There were, however, numerous precedents for granting this kind of relief, and it would be exceedingly unjust if a change were now to be made. Without expressing any opinion as to the amount that should be awarded, he thought they ought to continue the same liberal policy as had been hitherto observed.
Mr. PIDDINGTON pointed out the undesirableness of proceeding with this discussion in the absence of two members of the Government, who would be able to give the committee much valuable information. The Colonial Secretary had promised to afford the committee information connected with Lieutenant Gowlland's position in the service. The hon. Colonial Treasurer, in whose department Lieutenant Gowlland was placed, was also absent, and, therefore, he thought the debate should not at present be proceeded with. It had been stated that Lieutenant Gowlland was paid for the whole of his services by the colony, but he fancied that he was paid partly by the colony and partly as an officer of the Royal Navy. He did not consider that Lieutenant Gowlland was a Civil servant in the ordinary acceptance of that term; he was sent by the Royal Navy to perform the service of surveying our harbours and rivers, a service involving no particular risk to life. He was in the act of surveying the harbour when from an unfortunate circumstance he lost his life. He thought the committee ought to have more information before them than they possessed at present. It had not yet been explained whether it was intended to give a pension or a lump sum. He begged to move that the Chairman do now leave the chair, report progress, and ask leave to sit again that day fortnight.
Mr. MEYER said that when he heard the speech of the hon. member for West Sydney (Mr. Cameron), he began to think this debate was to be one between the married and single. As regards adjourning the debate because of the absence of the Colonial Secretary and the Colonial Treasurer, he would point out that this question could only be decided by the majority, and there was no reason to suppose that those two gentlemen would not vote in support of the resolution moved by Mr. Dibbs. As regards the case of the officer who lost his life by wreck while engaged in the performance of his duty in the Government service; supposing that he, or any other individual sent down a person to perform a duty for him, and that person lost his life while engaged in the performance of that duty, he should feel morally bound to do something for the widow. And if he found his own resources insufficient, he should endeavour to get it supplemented to make up a sufficient amount. It should be the same with the Government service. So long as those persons were in the Government employ they were entitled to consideration. There was no system in force at present, it seemed, by which such remuneration could be granted; but when such cases did occur he did not think it was too much for the Government to contribute—not to the wants of the widow—but if a man had lost his life in the Government service, to make some recognition of his services in the shape of compensation to his widow, in addition to their expression of sympathy. He was sure the country would never object to giving some relief to these widows. He trusted the committee would not postpone this item, but that they would pass it at once by a large majority.

Mr. MACINTOSH was in favour of postponing the debate, in order to give the Government an opportunity to bring in a bill to deal with the whole matter, so that they should not have these debates continually occurring. The whole time of Parliament would soon be taken up in dealing with these claims. There would be plenty of time for the Government to bring in such a bill as he had suggested during the present session, and he did not think the House would refuse to pass it. He was in favour of giving these people some compensation, but he thought this a very little time to deal with the whole question.

Mr. BURNS said it would be the duty of the Government to make inquiry in each case, and propose an estimate accordingly, if the resolution should be agreed to. He thought an unwise thing was done in repealing the Superannuation Act. It would have been better to have amended it, so that the Government might be enabled, from time to time, to superannuate officers who from time to time became incapacitated for further service. A man in the public service might become absolutely unfit for the office he occupied, through age or other causes, but the heads of the department in which he was engaged would not care to interfere; and so the public would have an incompetent servant. The House had thought fit, in cases that had happened previously, to make provisions for the widows of those who had lost their lives in the public service, and he could not see why they should not do so in the cases under consideration. It had been questioned whether Lieutenant Gowlland was in the employ of this country when he lost his life; but he thought that did not affect the question, for there could be no doubt that Lieutenant Gowlland lost his life in the service of this country.

Mr. W. H. SUTTOR thought that it would be better to pay Civil servants just what they were worth, leaving cases of the kind in question to be dealt with as they arose, instead of, as some hon. members had suggested, paying them higher salaries in order that they might make provision for their families.

The motion, "that the Chairman leave the chair," was negatived.

The original resolution was carried on the following division:—

Ayes 22.

Mr. Garrett	Mr. R. B. Smith	Mr. Phelps

MR. E. H. HARGRAVES.

The House went into committee for the further consideration of the following resolution:—"That this House will, on Tuesday next, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole, to consider of an address to the Governor, praying that his Excellency will be pleased to cause to be placed upon a supplementary estimate for 1875 a sum not exceeding £7619, as compensation to Mr. E. H. Hargraves for the discovery of gold made by him in New South Wales."

Mr. NELSON moved, as an amendment,—"That all the words after 'compensation to,' be omitted, with a view to the insertion of the following:—Messrs. E. H. Hargraves, William Tom, jun., J. A. Lister, and James Tom, for the discovery of gold on payable gold fields in New South Wales." Hon. members were, no doubt, well aware of the history of the discovery of gold in this country; and they must also be aware that though Mr. Hargraves might fairly claim to be the first to suggest that there were payable gold-fields in this colony,——

Mr. MACINTOSH called attention to the state of the House, and a quorum was formed.

Mr. NELSON was proceeding again, when

Mr. CAMERON called attention to the state of the House, and a quorum was formed.

Mr. NELSON said that the credit was due to Messrs. Tom and Lister for being the first to discover gold in Australia. They discovered it at Ophir.

Mr. CAMERON called attention to the state of the House, and a quorum was formed.

Mr. NELSON said that Mr. Hargraves visited the Western districts, called upon Messrs. Tom and Lister, and the three entered into an agreement to search for gold. Mr. Hargraves afterwards returned to Sydney, and while there received information from Messrs. Tom and Lister, that they had found gold. The select committee appointed to consider the question in 1853 recommended that £5000 should be granted to Mr. Hargraves, and £1000 to Messrs. Lister and Tom.

Mr. CAMERON called attention to the state of the House, and a quorum was formed——

Mr. NELSON said that if Mr. Hargraves were found to be entitled to any further compensation.

Mr. CAMERON called attention to the state of the House and a quorum was formed.

Mr. NELSON said Parliament should not deal niggardly with Mr. Hargraves if he were found to be entitled to the honour of discovering gold, for the colony had been greatly benefited by the discovery.

Mr. MACINTOSH would introduce another gentleman into the resolution. That was Mr. W. T. Smith, who discovered gold first, and pressed this matter on the notice of the Government at home as well as the Government here. Mr. Hargraves had been more than amply rewarded. In a letter addressed to Sir Charles Fitzroy, it was pointed out that Mr. Smith had been the first to discover gold. He quoted from several other documents to show that Mr. Smith had been the first to make known the discovery. Prior to that period, Sir Charles Fitzroy discouraged the discovery of gold. Everything was done to prevent such a discovery. He thought it was clear that this gentleman had not a license to dig for gold. He thought Mr. Hargraves had been amply compensated, having received £10,000 at a time when it was as valuable as £30,000 would be at the present day, and having received a Government appointment at a handsome salary. And now, having spent the money, Mr. Hargraves came to Parliament to ask for more. What an example it would be for other colonists if the claims were granted. [Mr. DAVIES called attention to the state of the House, and a quorum was formed.] It would be an exceedingly bad example for this Government to give further compensation. [The hon. member read letters written by Sir R. Murchison, Sir E. Deas Thomson, and Mr. Herman Merivale, having reference to the claims of Mr. William Tittle Smith to compensation for the discovery of gold in Australia.] He felt convinced that if searching for gold had been fashionable, or had been allowed by the Government of the day, a Mr. W. T. Smith would have had prior claims to compensation. The two gentlemen mentioned by the hon. member for Orange were certainly as much entitled to compensation as Mr. Hargraves was. He should certainly vote against the motion. He moved that the amendment be amended by the insertion of the words "William Tittle Smith."

Mr. BOOTH said that if he had known that so many names were to be proposed for insertion in the resolution, he would have suggested the insertion of the name of the Russian Admiral who discovered gold in the Wellington district in 1828. With regard to the names that had been proposed, he did not think that persons who knew something which they never divulged for the benefit of their fellowmen were entitled to compensation from the Government at all. Those only were entitled to compensation who, having made a discovery, published it for the benefit of the public, and practically showed how the people and the Government might turn the discovery to account, and showed the Government what kind of regulations should be framed for the management of the gold-fields, and that was what Mr. Hargraves did. There was no secret about gold being in Australia; what was unknown was the methods that should be applied to turning the discovery to account, and Mr. Hargraves, from the knowledge he obtained in California, pointed out those methods. Governor Fitzroy considered the discovery equal to £20,000, and Victoria agreed that they would give £10,000. We paid our £10,000, but Victoria did not. Mr. Hargraves got only £2381 from Victoria, and was entitled to consider that he had been badly treated by Victoria. Mr. Hargraves had been down to Victoria to settle his claim ten times, but he had never yet been paid the amount in full. The claim of Mr. Hargraves upon us was that at the time he discovered gold, Victoria and New South Wales were one. If there was a liability, this House ought to take Mr Hargraves' claims into consideration.

Mr. W. H. SUTTOR should vote against the motion. Mr. Hargraves had received £10,000 at a time when that sum was equivalent to £30,000. If he had wisely used that princely fortune which the country gave him, he would still have been a wealthy man. A letter written by Mr. Hargraves to the editor of the Herald, and published on the 7th October, 1853, showed that he was then perfectly satisfied with what he received.

Mr. LLOYD said that the practical discoverer of gold was Mr. Hargraves. Mr. Hargraves had shown him the samples of gold which he discovered at Ophir, and left the samples with him for three days, and offered to give him half the share in the value of the discovery if he would advance him £50 to buy a horse and enable him to go back to Ophir. Mr. E. Deas Thomson promised that he should be rewarded in accordance with the practical value of the discovery, and in pursuance of that promise Mr. Hargraves received £10,000. The country owed a great deal to Mr. Hargraves, and it would be a lasting disgrace to the House and the country if he were suffered to want for an hour. If the House did not come forward to prevent Mr. Hargraves from being put to any pecuniary inconvenience, he hoped the country would do so; and he for one would be prepared to give a handsome subscription, if necessary.

Mr. DRIVER said he had as great a desire to advance the interests of the country as the hon. member for Newcastle, and he would not like to see an injustice done to any one who had done a service to the country. But what had Mr. Hargraves done? He would take it for granted that Mr. Hargraves had discovered gold in this country, and that property had increased in value tenfold in consequence. But the question was, had Mr. Hargraves been compensated for the discovery he had made? In his opinion the amount voted him by the Parliament of the country some years ago, was more than sufficient to acknowledge his services. Mr. Hargraves himself evidently thought so at the time, judging by the letter that had been read by Mr. Suttor. He was not to blame the House or the country either for having lost that money. Supposing the House voted him £10,000 and he got rid of it, would he be justified in coming down to that House in four or five years and asking for a further instalment? If property had advanced to such an extent through Mr. Hargraves, why not put on a property tax to give him some remuneration? (Hear, hear.) Why should it be wrung from the taxpayers of the country? It was all very well to come forward and propose a vote of this kind, which did not come out of their own pockets.

Mr. NELSON repeated his arguments in favour of the claims of Messrs. Tom, jun., Lister, and James Tom, as the first discoverers of a really practically payable gold-field in this colony. He did not oppose the proposal to grant a sum of money to Mr. Hargraves, but whatever sum was granted should be divided between that gentleman and Messrs. Lister and Tom. He should vote for going into committee to consider this matter.

Mr. DIBBS desired to call attention to an omission in speaking of the first discoverer of gold in this colony. He was surprised that no mention had been made of the name of the Rev. W. B. Clarke. (Hear, hear.) He thought that whatever credit might be due to Mr. Hargraves there was a very large amount of credit due to the Rev. W. B. Clarke for being the practical discoverer of gold in this country. [Mr. NELSON: £500 was voted to him.] Whatever they gave him was considerably less than he was entitled to. If he had been a man anxious for fame it might have been different. The Rev. W. B. Clarke could have made the discovery of gold known in Australia long before Mr. Hargraves came back from California. He discovered a payable gold-field, and the Government of the day were thoroughly well aware of the existence of gold in this country. But Mr. Clarke sunk the honour due to his name, and gave up the large pecuniary rewards to which he would have been entitled, by withholding the knowledge of his discoveries, at the instance of the Government, who feared that it would overturn all the interests of the colony if the facts were known. With regard to the question before the House, he was sorry that a gentleman whose name had been connected with so great a discovery should at this moment be, practically speaking, in low water; but he did not think that Mr. Hargraves had taken the proper course to secure the object he aimed at; and the House having already granted him a large sum of money, and put a finality to the question, it was not proper for an hon. member to bring the subject forward again after the lapse of so many years. He thought that those who had benefited so largely by the discovery of gold should come forward and subscribe an amount that would put Mr. Hargraves beyond the reach of want for the rest of his days. He had made inquiry and had ascertained that justice had not been done to Mr. Hargraves by the colony of Victoria. He believed that a large amount of money had been voted for Mr. Hargraves in Victoria, but it had not been paid to him. That, however, was no argument why that gentleman should come to this House now to ask for another grant of money. He would vote against any vote by Parliament, but he would be glad if the hon. member for Newcastle, who had spoken so feelingly on the subject, would call a monster meeting of every class in the colony, so that something of a practical nature might be done on Mr. Hargraves behalf, which would come from the country as a whole.

Mr. R. B. SMITH said no one had attempted to deny that Mr. Hargraves was the first person to make known the discovery of gold in this colony, and the only reason that had been adduced against the proposal was that he had been adequately paid for any service he had rendered to the country. But hon. members who held that opinion had failed to show how he had been adequately remunerated. As he was of opinion that £10,000 was quite inadequate, he should feel it to be his duty to vote for going into committee. It had been said that gold was discovered in this colony before the year 1851, but those discoveries were only made known by Mr. Hargraves bringing them prominently under the notice of the Government. The select committee's report, brought up on the 8th of June, 1853, showed that the committee were of opinion, from the evidence they had taken, that Mr. Hargraves returned to this colony from California for the express purpose of searching for gold; and that he met Mr. Lister at Bathurst, and desired him to accompany him to the place where he wished to go, as he knew the district. Lister was simply a guide to him. Immediately after Mr. Hargraves had discovered gold, he pointed out to Lister and Tom the way to find gold for themselves, and how to wash it. Shortly afterwards, Messrs. Tom and Lister returned to the spot, and proved that gold in remunerative quantities could be obtained. All this was shown by the report, and, upon the committee's recommendation, £5000 were paid to Mr. Hargraves, and £1000 for Messrs. Tom and Lister. It did not appear from the report that the Rev. W. B. Clarke was any party to the discovery of gold in the colony. He rendered great service by making geographical reports, for which he was paid £1000. Having regard to all this evidence, he thought that Mr. Hargraves had not been adequately paid, and he would vote for going into committee.

Mr. CAMERON called attention to the state of the House and a quorum was formed.

Mr. GARRETT said that if this were the first time the question had been brought before the House, he would be prepared to go to the full extent in acknowledging the services of the gentleman who was the first to discover gold in this country, but hon. members could not divest themselves of the knowledge that the question had received the attention of Parliament before, and that the claim had been practically dealt with. When the Legislature paid £10,000 to Mr. Hargraves, they acted generously, and Mr. Hargraves was satisfied. Prior to the money being voted, it was understood that the colony of Victoria would bear a portion of the responsibility of acknowledging the services which Mr. Hargraves had bestowed upon the two colonies. We had done our part; we had fairly and fully rewarded Mr. Hargraves for the services he had performed, and he was satisfied; and if Victoria had failed in performing her part of the bargain, it was not our duty to make up for it. He fully concurred with everything that had been said as to the great benefits this country had derived from the discovery of gold. If we looked at it from a Governmental point of view, it could not be denied. The Government derived a large income from licenses and gold duty every year, and we did not know the day when the income from those sources would be largely increased. It would be a scandal to this country to allow Mr. Hargraves to be in indigent circumstances. But the resolution did not put it on that ground. It put it as a claim for a balance due. The claim had been met on the part of this colony. He could not understand why Victoria had not performed what was understood to be its part of the obligation. This colony was not bound to make up the shortcomings of Victoria. He regretted that the late Government had not relieved Mr. Hargraves by employing him in a way that would be useful to the country as well as beneficial to himself. He thought the claims of Messrs. Lister and Tom had been fully met. They acted simply under the direction of Mr. Hargraves. He was himself one of the first hundred who went to the gold diggings in this colony, and might in some way be considered entitled to make a claim as well as Messrs. Tom and Lister. He suggested to the hon. member for the Wollombi that he should withdraw the resolution and leave it to the Government to relieve Mr. Hargraves in some way that would not be objectionable to the country nor painful to the feelings of the gentleman himself.

Mr. PARKES thought the resolution was open to very grave objection as it stood. He thought that Mr. Hargraves had been handsomely dealt with by this country. He had no claim beyond the gratitude of the country, but at the same time it did seem a very painful thing that he should be in a state of great distress as was no doubt the case. He was inclined to think that the advice given by the Secretary for Lands—that the resolution should be withdrawn with the view to leaving the Government to deal with this case—was sound advice. He could not admit the claim of Messrs. Lister and Tom. They had been amply rewarded. There could be no doubt that Mr. Hargraves, while in a foreign country, had conjectured that there was gold here, and that he had come here and found it. Messrs. Tom and Lister had been amply rewarded. He was in daily communication with Mr. Hargraves at the time, and he was satisfied that it was to him this colony owed the discovery of gold. For the reasons he had stated he should vote against the resolution.

Mr. W. FORSTER endorsed the statement of the hon. member for East Sydney that Mr. Hargraves was the first discoverer of gold. But they had given Mr. Hargraves a large sum of money, and done enough in order to recognise his claims. Supposing they gave him £10,000 now, what would there be to prevent him coming again, and enthusiastic members voting him a further amount.

Mr. CUNNEEN, in reply, confessed that there seemed to be a good deal of weight in what had been said by hon. gentlemen who differed from him on this question. It struck him there could be no doubt that Mr. Hargraves was the practical discoverer of gold in Australia. That could be proved from official documents. When he came from California he was in communication with Mr. Blow, Mr. Booth (the member for West Macquarie), with Mr. James Norton, and with Mr. Icely, to all of whom he stated his convictions before communicating with Messrs. Tom and Lister. Mr. Hargraves actually discovered gold with the party he organized. He admitted that Messrs. Tom and Lister might have given Mr. Hargraves valuable information as to the particular locality, and he should not be at all sorry if they got additional compensation. It would be well if the House contrasted the parsimoniousness of this colony in rewarding its gold discoverers as compared with the liberality of Victoria. Although he admitted that that colony had not acted fairly with regard to Mr. Hargraves, Victoria had paid £40,000 to nearly fifty discoverers of gold. It paid as much as £1000 to a prospector who went and found gold and was the means of settling an industrious population. It was in this way that Victoria had established a larger population than we had, not because the gold-fields there were richer, nor because they were so extensive. She had dealt with her gold discoverers more intelligently, and shown more enterprise in encouraging people to go forth and find additional gold-fields. After discovering the gold at Lewis's Ponds, Mr. Hargraves told the party to continue their operations, and came himself to Sydney and communicated the fact of the discovery to Mr. (now Sir) E. Deas Thomson. In his reply, Mr. Thomson stated that the remuneration for the discovery must entirely depend upon the value of the discovery and upon the liberal consideration which the Government would be disposed to give to it. Well, what was the value of the discovery? For one or two years previous to the discovery there was an exodus from New South Wales of the most valuable part of the population to California and other countries; and there was also a great agitation against the transportation of criminals to these shores. Mr. Hargraves' discovery put a stop to the agitation at once, and at the same time prevented the exodus of any of the population already here—estimated at nearly 100,000. The cost of bringing here 25,000 immigrants on the scale proposed by resolutions before the House would be about a quarter of a million sterling. The keeping in the colony of 100,000 persons would therefore be worth a million sterling. The results of the discovery were to be seen as far as the Indian Ocean in the north, and Victoria in the south. When Mr. Hargraves received the letter from Mr. Thomson he at once accepted it as a contract. The Government, on the 8th of May following, sent Mr. Stutchbury with Mr. Hargraves to visit the place where the discovery had been made. Mr. Hargraves did not attempt to humbug the Government as Mr. Smith, to whom the hon. member for East Sydney, Mr. Macintosh, referred, attempted to do. Mr. Smith attempted to humbug them with a piece of gold he had obtained from California, and declined to point out where he had made his alleged discovery. But Mr. Hargraves accompanied Mr. Stutchbury, the Government geologist, to the spot where he made the discovery. They started on the 8th May, and on the 14th the geologist reported to the Government that he had seen sufficient to prove the existence of washed gold. A rush then set in for the gold-fields. And the facts were so unmistakable that the Government within a fortnight found it desirable to issue a proclamation asserting their right to the gold, and to send up officers to issue licenses, &c. On the 25th of the month, Mr. Hardy reported to the Government that the number of diggers had increased to 1100, that lumps of gold had been found weighing from 1 oz to 5 lbs. Now, what was the value of Mr. Hargraves' discovery? It lifted the colony from a degraded position to the lofty position she now held. Was that not worth more than £10,000? The hon. member for Bathurst (Mr. Suttor) had quoted a letter to show that Mr. Hargraves was satisfied with the compensation of £10,000 made him in 1853. But what were the facts? Mr. Hargraves was satisfied, not with the £10,000 but with the compensation promised him and partly made. £20,000 was promised him. £10,000 of that was paid by this colony, and Governor-General Fitzroy wrote a despatch to Mr. Latrobe, Deputy-governor of Victoria, to the effect that that colony was expected to pay the other £10,000. The Parliament of that colony having taken the Governor-General's despatch into consideration, appointed a select committee to investigate the matter. No doubt was entertained about Mr. Hargraves being the discoverer of gold; no doubt was entertained about the importance of the discovery to Australia. The select committee in Victoria, after a patient investigation of the claim, drew up a masterly report. In that report they say—"To say that Mr. Hargraves' discoveries led to the discovery of the gold-fields of Victoria, is merely another mode of stating that the great dividing range, which stretches from one colony to the other, is rich in auriferous deposits. Without doubt, on the first discovery of the northern diggings (New South Wales) a considerable number of our labouring population was drawn thither; but the infinitely greater evil of emigration to California was stopped at once. . . . Your committee are therefore of opinion that the person who has opened out to us the road to our apparently exhaustless treasures with a noble disinterestedness, unexampled in history, should receive a liberal reward. Considering that the gold discovery has advanced this colony a century in progress, has placed it first in position of all the Australian colonies, and materially benefited it much more than New South Wales, your committee recommend that the sum of £5000 should be presented to Mr. Hargraves. . . . The discovery of the Victorian gold-fields has converted a remote dependency into a country of world-wide fame; it has attracted a population, extraordinary in number, with unprecedented rapidity; it has enhanced the value of property to an enormous extent; it has made this the richest country in the world; and in less than three years it has done for this colony the work of an age, and made its impulses felt in the most distant regions of the earth." That was the appreciation of the select committee of Mr. Hargraves's discovery. He put it to the House whether, for all these benefits bestowed, Mr. Hargraves, depending on the good faith of the Government, was not entitled to the consideration of the House. The miserable taunt of the hon. member for East Sydney (Mr. Macintosh) was without foundation; for the £500 which Mr. Hargraves received was for expenses incurred. The House had now an opportunity of rewarding distinguished and enduring service, and of removing the stigma of ingratitude.

The question "that the words proposed to be omitted stand part of the question" was put and agreed to.

The House divided on the resolution with the following result:—

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES BILL.

The adjourned debate on the second reading of this bill was resumed.

Mr. DAVIES said that he should vote against the second reading of this bill, because he considered that while it would legalise immorality it would not diminish vice. That had been the result on the continent of Europe where similar legislation had obtained. Every attempt to remove this evil by restraint had failed; the system of control and inspection wherever tried had not had the desired effect, and the legislation on this subject on the continent had increased rather than diminished the evil. He found in yesterday's Herald a most excellent article bearing on this subject, and containing some strong arguments against passing this measure, and he would take the liberty of quoting a portion of it. [Mr. Davies here read an extract from the article he had referred to.] The evidence of the inspectors of police could not be denied, and showed plainly that the effect of the Act in England had not been the reclamation of abandoned women, which was one of the objects sought to be accomplished by the bill now before them, while the other object was to prevent the spread of disease. It had been shown in England that women who were not diseased were compelled continually to undergo inspection. It did seem strange that inspection should be provided for women and not for men. (Hear, hear.) The legislation now sought would lead to a system of clandestine vice, which would be impossible to reach, and the evils of which would be far worse than those which at present exist. The arguments in the article he had quoted were such as could not be gainsaid, and the hon. mover would find it difficult to answer them. If the Legislature did its duty, and the people of the country did their duty, then the evil would be lessened which the gentleman who had introduced this bill sought to lessen. He had no desire whatever to detract from the good intentions of the hon. member who had introduced this bill, but the bill would not accomplish the object desired. The fear of the law was sufficient to keep some people honest, and the fear of contamination was sufficient to keep some people from doing wrong. [Mr. T. G. DANGAR called attention to the state of the House, and a quorum was formed.] The hon. member (Mr. Farnell) had gone to some trouble to make known to the House and the country the advantages that would accrue from the passing of this bill, and it behoved every hon. member who had the interests of the country at heart, to express his views upon the subject. He maintained that, in the bill, there was an improper interference with the liberty of the subject. It placed extraordinary power in the hands of the police and medical men to interfere with unfortunate women. He thought that if the hon. member would make an effort to do away with some of the public-houses that exist in this city and the country, he would in a large measure get rid of the vice of which he complained so strongly, for the one vice could not be carried on without the other.

Mr. FITZPATRICK said that the article which the hon. member had referred to, seemed to narrow the question down to this. It summarised the various efforts made in the direction of this most serious legislation, and wound up with the suggestion that it should be left to Christianity to be dealt with. But what had Christianity done with this great evil since it had existed, or what could Christianity do to cope with it? How could the hon. member venture to say that the bill had been introduced to foster prostitution—[Mr. DAVIES: I did not say so; I said, legalize it)—and then go on to say that it was an interference with the liberty of the subject? Would the hon. member go so far as to say that we should not legislate to prevent this horrible contagion, which destroyed both the bodies and minds of men? Was it a means of promoting prostitution to submit the professors of it to a penalty? He declined to enter into any statistics or any views, except his own thought and feeling; and if hon. members would vote in that way, they would do better than by reading extracts for the next ten years. What was said by one medical man was contradicted by ten others, and who could decide which was correct? The tendency of the bill would not be to increase prostitution. Were we to stand for all time, with our hands bound waiting until some men with more eloquence than others should reach prostitutes and induce them to give up prostitution, while the evil was spreading among our community? The English people were the slowest of all to break through maudlin sentimentality; but they had broken through these trammels, and attempted to grapple with the evil. And he thought we might fairly make the attempt. As to what had been said about degrading these unfortunate women, they had the remedy in their own hands. They could give up their profession. He believed this was a bill that was calculated to have the effect of repressing prostitution, and, therefore, he should be bold enough to give effect to his views. And he would do so with a full sense of his responsibility as a father of a family with grown-up sons and daughters.

Mr. PARKES moved the adjournment of the debate until the 25th instant.

Mr. W. FORSTER supported the motion.

The motion for adjournment was put and agreed to.

DOG ACT AMENDMENT BILL.

Mr. DAVIES moved that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole to consider the propriety of bringing in a bill to extend and amend the provisions of the Act 6 Gul., No. 4, commonly known as the Dog Act.

After some remarks from Mr. NELSON and Mr. PIDDINGTON, the motion was carried, and the House resolved itself into committee.

Mr. DAVIES moved a resolution affirming the desirableness of bringing in a bill.

Mr. NELSON moved that the Chairman leave the chair, report progress, and ask leave to sit again. He was not in favour of a bill which proposed to extend the present Act.

The motion was negatived.

The question that leave be given to introduce the bill was then agreed to. The House resumed, and the resolution was reported, read a second time, and agreed to.

The remaining orders of the day were postponed, and the House adjourned at twelve minutes past 11 o'clock, until 4 o'clock on Monday next.

MELBOURNE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The report of proceedings of the committee of the Melbourne Chamber of Commerce, for the year ending April, 1875, contains the following paragraphs. The report is to be presented to the annual meeting of members, to be held at the Board-room of the Chamber, June 15th, 1875.

CUSTOMS UNION.

Correspondence on the subject of a Customs Union has taken place between the committee and several Chambers of Commerce in others of the Australian colonies, and a sub-committee was appointed in May of last year, to consider whether it were possible to do anything which would tend to further such an object, in view of the wide difference existing between the tariff of Victoria and those of the adjacent colonies, but no way could be suggested through the difficulties thereby occasioned.

FREE INTERCHANGE OF COLONIAL PRODUCTS AND MANUFACTURES.

This subject has, from time to time, occupied the attention of the committee, and communications have taken place between them and the committees of other chambers in reference to some of the difficulties with which the question is beset. A conference of delegates from the chambers of the several colonies, for the purpose of discussing this and cognate subjects, has been proposed, and several of the colonial Governments are seeking for legislative authority for entering into reciprocity treaties. It will have been observed that the matter is to be brought before Parliament by our own Government during the present session; it is hoped, therefore, that some practical step may ere long be taken for giving effect to this desirable object, provided it can be accomplished without doing violence to sound fiscal principles, and that it may prove but the prelude to a more general adoption of that freedom from restriction in which is involved the future prosperity of our trade and commerce.

BORDER CUSTOM DUTIES.

The unnatural, irritating, and injurious obstacles to the trading intercourse between the populations on the two sides of the River Murray were under the consideration of the committee, who have for several months past (at intervals) been in communication with the several committees of the Convention for the abolition of Border Customs at Albury and Wahgunyah, with a view, if possible, to arrive at a basis for the renewal of the treaty between the Governments of Victoria and New South Wales which both could accept. They have also urged the question on the attention of the Government of this colony with a view to some definite proposal being submitted by them to the New South Wales Ministry who have promised to give to any practicable and reasonable proposal their prompt and favourable consideration. Up to the present time the committee believe that no such proposal has been submitted; but, judging from the sense of the paragraph in his Excellency's speech before referred to, it is quite possible that the Government hope to accomplish the end in view, partially at least, by an arrangement with the neighbouring colonies for a "free interchange of the growth, produce, and manufactures of the various colonies."

LIGHT ON THE WEST COAST OF KING'S ISLAND.

During a considerable portion of the first year the committee continued to urge upon the Government—first by themselves, and subsequently in co-operation with the Merchant Shipping and Underwriters' Association, and the Victorian Shipowners' Association—the necessity which existed for the erection of an additional light on King's Island, in view of the disastrous wrecks which were still occurring through commanders finding themselves out of their reckoning on that dangerous coast; and it is satisfactory to be able to report that the representations made to the Government eventuated in the appointment of a commission, consisting of the chief harbour master of this colony, the master warden of the Tasmanian port, and the commander in charge of the Admiralty survey staff, who took the evidence of all the available nautical men in port competent to speak upon the subject, and which evidence was so overwhelmingly in favour of the adoption of the cause urged by this Chamber and the other associated bodies that the several Governments interested have since consented to co-operate in the erection and maintenance of an additional light on the west coast of the island at or near Point Netherby.

PROPOSED CONFERENCE OF AUSTRALASIAN CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE.

Resolutions were recently adopted by the Brisbane Chamber of Commerce, expressive of the belief that substantial advantage would accrue from a conference whereat the whole of the Chambers of Australia, Tasmania, and New Zealand would be represented, and at which the questions of a Customs' union, uniform tariffs, and intercolonial free trade could be fully discussed; it being thought that the recommendations of such an assembly would have due weight with the Legislatures of the several colonies. Letters were, in pursuance of these resolutions, addressed to the principal Chambers of the several colonies; but, as the present meeting was about to be held, and a new committee about to be elected, it was left for such committee to decide on the action to be taken on behalf of the Melbourne Chamber.

COMMERCIAL.

PRODUCE CIRCULARS.

MORT AND CO.—Wool: No public sales of this staple were held this week, and there is very little coming forward, but as advices from England continue to be satisfactory regarding the sales now in progress there all wools offering on this side will, no doubt, meet a good market, although in the absence of transactions quotations remain unaltered, viz., washed fleece, superior, none offering; fair to good, 19d to 23½d; inferior to medium, 16d to 18d; greasy, good, 11½d to 12d; medium, 8½d to 9½d; scoured fleece, 23d to 26d; ditto skins, 19d to 22d per lb. The current London sales will close on the 17th instant. Sheepskins continue in active request, and sell readily at following prices: full fleeced and light, 7½d to 9d; medium, 6d to 7d; short-woolled and pelts, 3d to 5d per lb. Tallow: Trade lots are dull of sale, but good shipping parcels are readily quitted at slightly improved values. Since our last we have sold 154 casks as follows: W, 80 at £31 15s; H, 36 at £31; ED, 17 at £31, 8 at £30, 5 at £35; NIX, 2 at £29 10s, 1 at £28; DR over M, 1 at £28; PC over W, 1 at £27; F, 1 at £26 10s, 2 at £26 10s. Hides: There was a good market to-day for well-cured parcels not encumbered with too much loose salt, nor in very wet condition. A large number of hides reach this market in very indifferent order, from the absence of sufficient care in curing and preparing prior to dispatch, and the values of same are thus very much deteriorated. We desire to impress upon shippers the fact that, in the average of cases, the better cured and cleaned hides arrive in this market, the more satisfactory will the returns be, as tanners are very shy of purchasing lots in questionable order. We cleared the bulk of our catalogue to-day as follows:—Medium to heavy salted, 4½d to 5½d; light and dry, 5½d to 6d; inferior, 1½d to 4½d; yearling, 8s 6d; calfskins, 4s 6d. Horsehides: Supply moderate; market rather dull this morning, and bulk withdrawn. Present quotations—large, 7s to 8s 6d; small and dry, 3s to 6s per hide. Hair in fair demand at 20d to 23d for horse tail, 10d to 12d for mane, and 14d to 16d for mixed. Horns are worth from 20s to 29s per 100, and shankbones from £10 to £13 per ton for best, and £7 to £8 for middling quality. Leather: All descriptions are in moderate request at late rates. Good parcels of sole and harness being most wanted. As it is not probable that at present values the supply will be maintained, we anticipate a firmer market for all descriptions shortly. We quote—kip, light and good, 20d to 22d; medium, 17d to 19d; tweed, 23d to 32d; calf, 3s to 3s 6d; harness, 13d to 15d; sole, best, 10½d to 11½d; medium, 9d to 9½d per lb.—June 11.

J. BRIDGE.—Wool and Skins: No sales of these were held this week; the market can, however, be reported firm, since the latest news from London fully confirms the favourable reports received during the May-June sales. Tallow is in rather better favour, and freights being easier shipping parcels are freely taken—the trade, however, still operate cautiously. Leather: Under this head no change can be reported, except that stocks this week were very limited. Sole and harness were remarkable for their scarcity. Hides were not plentiful this week, and prices showed but little variation, last week's prices ruling. Horns are in request at 20s to 30s per cwt. Bones are worth 7s to 14s per cwt. Hair sells as follows:—Tail, 19d to 24d; mane, 12d to 14d; mixed, 14d to 19d; oxtail, 6d to 14d per lb. Beeswax sells readily at 11d to 14d. Black oil is scarce at 3s 5d to 3s 6d. Liverpool salt sells freely at £4 10s to £4 15s. Flour: Under this head no improvement can be recorded, the markets everywhere appearing to be glutted, and until stocks are reduced and some degree of confidence restored quotations cannot be given with certainty. Tin ore sells at 40s to 50s per ton, the news from Europe being still unfavourable. Sugar commands inquiry, light and white parcels being most in favour, but I have numerous buyers for ration and brown samples. Maize remains steady at 3s 9d to 4s 3d.—June 11.

MAIDEN, HILL AND CO.—Wool and Sheepskins: No sales having been held this week, we have nothing to report. Tallow: Freights being almost unprocurable, except at high rates, has tended further to depress this market so far as shipping lots are concerned; the trade appear fully supplied with the exception of candle tallow, for which description there was keen competition. Quotations are—Mutton (best), £37 to £38; ditto (fair) £35 to £36; beef (best), £32 to £33; ditto (fair), £30 to £31; station, according to quality, £24 to £30 per ton. Leather: We did a fair amount of business this week at satisfactory rates for sole, harness, bag, bridle, calf, and strap; in upper leather the demand was rather inactive, unless indeed for really well-dressed parcels of light goods, which are very saleable. Present values are—for sole, superior 11½d; ditto, good, 11d to 11½d; ditto, fair, 10½d to 11½d; bellies and shoulders, 8d to 9d; kip, light, 21d to 23d; ditto, medium, 16d to 20½d; ditto, heavy, 18d to 19d; ditto, damaged, 14d to 16d; calf (scarce), 36d to 45d; yearling, 24d to 30d; harness, black, 14d to 16d; ditto, brown, 14½d to 16d; kangaroo, H. T., 60d to 63d per lb.; bridle, 14s to 18s; bag, 15s to 19s; strap, 14s to 15s, per side. Hides: The market this week was very poorly supplied as regards quantity, the quality was also anything but enticing; for the few good-conditioned lots that were sold we must quote prices much lower than those reported in our last; good parcels of horse hides received fair attention at late rates. Calfskins and yearlings are very scarce, and are salable at high figures. Quotations—good dry station, 6d to 8½d; firm condition, 4½d to 5½d; country butchers', 4½d to 5d; town ditto, 4½d per lb.; horse hides, large, at 8s to 9s 6d; ditto, medium, 7s to 7s 6d; foal, 2s 6d to 3s; calfskins, 3s to 5s 9d; yearlings, 7s to 9s each. Hair is firm at former rates. Horns and bones not in such good demand, except for large sizes. Tin Ore: The quantity coming forward is small, and prices have slightly improved. Our sales during the week have been from £48 16s 9d to £49 0s 9d per ton for high assay; we could dispose of considerable quantities if to hand at similar rates.—June 11.

HARRISON, JONES, AND DEVLIN.—Hides: Offered 5204, sold 2765. There were not so many hides forward this week, and the attendance of buyers was very bad; prices were about the same as last week, but the market was very dull. The sales ranged—for best heavy, 4½d to 4¾d; heavy, 4½d to 4¾d; medium, 5d to 5¼d; light and middling, 5½d to 5¾d; calf and yearling, 4s 6d to 9s 7d; horsehides, 4s 9d to 8s. Hair: Cowtail, 13d; mixed, 17d to 20d; horsetail, 21d to 23d. Bones: Medium, 11s; horns ditto, 25s. Tallow: Offered 342, sold 48. There was no demand whatever for tallow for shipping purposes, and the whole of the lots catalogued were passed, and trade parcels were but little better, there being a very poor attendance of buyers, and the business done was very limited. The sales ranged—for mutton, £36 to £37 16s; beef, £30 to £31; mixed and station, £17 to £19. Tin Ore: The quantities now coming forward are much less than the arrivals some months back, and is not now in excess of the requirements, the late low prices having closed operations in several of the mines, which will be reopened if prices advance sufficiently to show a margin of profit upon the workings, say £3 a ton upon present quotation. Although we notice a brisker demand no sales have been made above last week's figure, and sellers in most cases are holding out for an advance of 15s to 20s per ton. Our sales during the week have been 649 bags, viz.—82 at £48 18s 9d, 733 at £48 13s 4d, 105 at £48 2s 6d, 47 at £48 12s, 164 at £48 12s, 18 at £48 12s 7d, none of these parcels being of very high assay. Smelted Tin: Nearly all the tin which has been held for better prices for some little time back, has been cleared off during the past ten days, and there is little or none offering at present prices. Offers have been made during the week showing an improvement in the market, and, although we have not received intimation by telegram ourselves, we infer prices at home are more satisfactory. We have sold only 11 tons during the week.—June 11.

STOCK AND STATION REPORTS.

SULLIVAN AND SIMPSON.—Stations: We have nothing fresh to report in these investments. There are always inquiries for both sheep and cattle stations, but the prices asked by holders are not tempting enough to those that wish to invest, thus very few stations changing hands. Fat Cattle: The supply on Monday was about up to requirements, and only one sale last week helped to clear off the glut in the hands of the wholesale purchasers, consequently prices improved to the extent of 10s per head compared with last week's rates. On Thursday the attendance was very limited, and very few country buyers present, but still prices were well maintained, except towards the close, when prices slightly receded. We quote best pens of bullocks worth 24s per 100 lbs; second quality 22s. We have this week sold 142 head of mixed and inferior (Kirk's) at an average of £6 15s. Fat Sheep: A moderate number forward, but quite enough for the trade requirements as the wholesale purchasers are large holders themselves; indeed, they always have sheep enough on hands to keep them going at least a week if no sheep arrived at the yards for sale. A good many of the flocks arriving are much cut up by the recent rain, and are not consequently very salable. Prime lots are sought after to mix with these indifferent ones, and a flock that would average 60 lbs. would bring a high price. We quote 56-lb. wethers worth 14s 6d; 50-lb. ditto, 13s. We have this week sold 1669 wethers, say average weight 54 lbs., on account of Messrs. Clark, Brothers, from their Melville Plains station, at 14s—they topped the market. Store Cattle: Now that we have had plenty of rain there are more inquiries for this class of stock than for some time. Any good lots of bullocks are very saleable at our late quotations; mixed lots are also inquired for. Store Sheep: We have had inquiries for both wethers and ewes this week, and any good lots are now very salable, particularly those that have been shorn early. We quote best three and four year old wethers worth 8s 6d to 9s; good breeding ewes are worth, in lamb, 9s to 10s; all depends on breeding.—June 11.

G. M. PITT AND SON.—Stations: Business in station properties this week has not been brisk. Inquiries have been confined to the saltbush districts, and we have placed one run under offer to be inspected. Fat Cattle: 750 yarded. Monday's sales opened with good competition for prime pens, and the market recovered the decline noticed in our last. On Thursday sales were hardly so firm, but this was on account of the quality not being suitable for trade requirements. There are a good many cattle close, but these, if judiciously placed on the market, will not affect present prices. We quote best beef worth 24s per 100 lbs.; middling ditto, from 22s. Our sales have been—186 mixed (James Ashcroft's) at £8 13s for bullocks, and £7 5s 6d for cows, this being for the highest average of the week; the top pens were purchased by Mr. Atkinson, of Lower George-street, and Mr. Rice, of Redfern, at £10 per head; 205 bullocks (John M'Elhone's) at £7 15s; 150 ditto, delivered outside, at £7 15s; 91 ditto ditto bullocks, at £8; cows, £7; 20 calves at £2 2s. Fat Sheep: Most of the middling and inferior sheep have now been worked off, and the market has assumed a firmer tone. Prime sheep are becoming scarce, and improving in value. We quote 56-lb. wethers worth 14s. Our sales have been—1551 wethers (Dangar, Brothers') at quotations; 1072 ditto, from the west, ditto; 550 ditto (S. Emanuel's) at 11s 6d.—June 11.

MAIDEN, HILL, AND CO.—Fat Cattle: The sales this week passed off with great spirit and prices have advanced to their old rates, really prime quality selling up to 25s per 100 lbs. Best bullocks are worth from £8 to £9 10s, with very few in, the bulk of the cattle offering being only middling quality and very young steers. A really prime lot of bullocks would bring very high rates. The closing sale of Thursday was dull, but this was caused by several of the principal butchers having supplied themselves at the beginning of the sales. We sold a small lot of cows, middling quality, at £5 10s. Fat Sheep: Very few direct arrivals; and for prime quality good prices are obtained. One really good lot, from Messrs. Clark, Brothers' station, topped the market. We quote best wedders up to 14s, and other sorts in proportion. Store Cattle: A very good demand for prime store bullocks, and also many inquiries for good sound fattening wedders. Quotations—from 8s 6d to 9s.—June 11.

HARRISON, JONES, AND DEVLIN.—Stations: We have had some inquiry for stations this week, but have not closed any transactions, although negotiating for three properties. We have sold the Upper Buggabadah Block, on the Bogan River, without stock, for the sum of £2200, cash. Fat Cattle: 758 forward. The sales on Monday opened very briskly, and closed at fully 20s per head advance on last week's quotations. On Thursday, the attendance was good, and the prices noted on Monday were fully maintained. Prime beef is worth 25s per 100 lbs.; medium, 22s. We sold—155 mixed, Thomas Neely, £6 10s to £8 10s; 23 bullocks, George Loder, £6 18s to £7 18s; 54 ditto, Sir W. Macarthur, £9 4s 6d; 231 ditto, Isaac Shepherd, jun., £8. Fat Sheep: 7310 yarded. This has been quite up to the requirements, but as the quality with one or two exceptions has not been good, prices have remained as quoted last week. 56-lb. wethers are worth 14s; lighter weights in proportion. We sold—2000 wethers (Henry Brown's) at 12s, 2104 ditto (Thomas Rutledge's) at 12s, 170 ditto (John Taylor's) to 13s 6d, 459 ditto (Southern) 13s 4d to 13s 11d, 120 ewes (middling) 6s to 6s 4d, 82 lambs (ditto) 9s 9d to 11s 8d. Store Cattle: There is an improved demand for store cattle, and we are negotiating the sale of one or two lots, and we look for more active business. Quotations: Bullocks, good (south) £6 to £6 11s; mixed sexes (ditto), £5 15s to £6; bullocks (north), £4 10s to £5; mixed sexes (ditto), £4 to £5. Store Sheep: There is a good demand for wethers both in this colony and Queensland, and prices are firm at quotations. Quotations: Wethers, 8s to 8s 6d; maiden ewes, 10s to 12s; breeding ewes, 7s to 7s 6d.—June 11.

BREWSTER AND TREDECK.—Stations: We have several inquirers for sound well-improved sheep stations in our western districts, but very few of these are now in the market. Such stations are worth from 20s to 22s 6d per head, according to the proportion of stock and extent of fencing improvements. The Oxford Downs station, with 26,000 sheep, which we submitted to auction on the 10th, did not meet with a purchaser at the owner's reserve, and is now held for private sale. Cattle stations are in good request, especially if not too heavily stocked. The price ranges from £5 to £7 per head, according to the position and number of stock. Store Cattle: We observe a better demand during the past week. Bullocks from 3 to 6 years are the most wanted. The prices remain unaltered. We have some choice stock under offer. Store Sheep: We have not heard of any important sales during the week, but have placed some lots of wethers and mixed sheep under offer for the purpose of inspection. Good wethers are worth 8s 6d to 8s 9d per head.—June 11.

BUTLER AND INGLIS.—Fat Cattle: There was about the usual number to hand this week. On Monday there was an increase of fully 20s per head, which was fairly maintained, if not exceeded, on Thursday. Quotations—Fat bullocks, £8 10s to £10 15s; cows, £6 10s to £8 15s. We expect there will be a further rise in about a fortnight. Sheep: The market this week was a little firmer; those to hand brought, according to quality, from 9s 6d to 14s. Milch Cows: There were a very fair number sent in. We sold 35, ranging from £6 2s 6d to £12; one very good bringing £14 14s. Calves: Supply scarce, and of moderate quality. Quotations—21s to 46s. Lambs: Good sold rather better than of late. We sold—40 (Hawkins's), 10s 9d to 12s 9d; 40 (Vicary's), 9s 9d to 10s 9d; 20 (Scanlan's), 12s 3d to 15s 6d. Pigs: Supply scarce and prices high. Quotations—11s 6d to 67s.—June 11.

GEORGE KISS reports the market better supplied with useful horses during the past week, for which there was a good demand at the following rates:—At the Bazaar, for Mr. Saundérs, a cart mare, £16 5s; a heavy cart mare, £22 10s; Mr. Geering, a brown harness horse, £16 10s; Mr. Archer, a heavy draught mare, £27 10s, and a bay horse £15; Mr. Cleeve, a black gelding, £10 15s; Mr. F. Humphery, official assignee, horse, buggy, and harness, £54; Mr. Roberts, a bay colt, £16; Mr. E. Johnston, 5 nice useful horses, for £90; Mr. Spain, a bay horse, £41; Mr. Brown, a bay hack, £16 16s; Mr. Cacora, 9 horses, amongst which were some heavy cart, for £149 15s; Mr. Turner, a black mare, dray, and harness, £14 5s; Mr. Munro, 10 cart horses, £179 10s; Mr. Pike, a grey cart horse, £35 10s; Mr. G. T. Riley, a bay hack, £20. There were a number of horses sold from £5 to £10 for light harness and pack purposes. Also the following vehicles: For Mr. Bent, a buggy, £32; Mr. M'Innes, a dogcart, £22 10s; Mr. Evans, a dogcart, £10. At the Camperdown yards, for Messrs. Wilson and Phair, 18 light horses, from £1 10s to £8 5s; for Mr. A. H. Rankin, 65 head of horses, heavy portion, ranging from £12 to £35 10s, light portion from £1 to £10.—June 11.

SYDNEY LABOUR MARKET.

WILLIAM BROWN.—There is a tolerably numerous attendance of applicants for situations in the city and suburbs, employers are consequently enabled to fill up occurring vacancies in their establishments with facility. Country hands for agricultural, dairy, and bush work are in considerable request, and those who are reasonable in their expectations with reference to wages, readily obtain employment. Female servants are in demand for town and country.—June 11.

The result of the foregoing is important. It shows an increase in the number of sailing ships built in 1874 over 1873 to be 149 ships, representing an increase of 115,366 gross tons. The largest sailing ship built during the year was the Stuart Hahnemann, of 2056 tons gross. Looking to the very great increase in the tonnage of sailing ships, there is no room for astonishment at the difficulty of finding sufficient British seamen at the present time, nor at the interest now taken in training boys for the sea service.—Nautical Magazine.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

SATURDAY, JUNE 12, 1875.

In the Legislative Assembly, yesterday,

Ministers, in answers to questions, stated:—1. That a survey has been made of a line from Sydney towards the Southern coal-fields, and a practicable route obtained. The Government have not yet been able to consider this as well as other important questions of railway extension; they hope, however, to be able, after the business of the session has concluded, to give it the earliest attention. 2. That no application has reached the office of the Lands Department asking for an alignment of the streets of Brewarrina. 3. That certain gentlemen have been recommended as magistrates for Gadooga, and that the appointments will be made as soon as possible. 4. That Patrick Carroll, on the 28th May, was tried before the Singleton Bench for larceny, and committed for that offence to take his trial at the Quarter Sessions. 5. That the amount of the total expenditure incurred consequent upon the visit of the late Postmaster-General to New Zealand, England, and America, in connection with the Pacific Mail Service, was £1646 16s. 9d. 6. That a proposition had been made by Mr. Brady to the Government for the extension of silk culture, but that the Government do not consider it their duty to take such culture under their supervision or protection. 7. The Postmaster-General explained what was usually done in regard to newspapers posted at country post-offices. 8. That the borough roads of Ashfield will be proclaimed in about a month. 9. That no definite arrangements as to steam dredges on the Hunter can at present be made, as one of them is laid up for extensive repairs. 10. That the Court-house and watch-house of Crookwell will probably be completed in three weeks. 11. That papers relating to deductions from the salaries of civil servants will be laid on the table when called for. 12. That it has been found necessary to forward, for the extension beyond Bathurst, some of the Consett and Company's rails, as the rails ordered specially for the extension to Orange have not yet arrived in the colony. 13. That the Government is aware of the damage done to the Cockfighter Bridge, and that steps will be immediately taken by the department to have the damages repaired.

Mr. Stevens presented a petition against the immigration resolutions of Mr. Piddington.

The petition was received.

Mr. W. Forster laid on the table of the House correspondence relative to the West Macquarie election.

Two petitions against the Railway Refreshment Rooms Bill were ordered to be printed.

The House then went into committee for the further consideration of an address for a supplementary estimate in favour of the widows of Lieutenant Gowlland and — Petersen and Thomas Havenhand, respectively—parties who lost their lives in the public service.

Mr. Cameron objected to any supplementary estimate being proposed for Mrs. Gowlland, considering that no special case had been made out in her behalf by the hon. member for Sydney West, Mr. Dibbs.

Mr. Fitzpatrick altogether differed from Mr. Cameron. He considered that a case had been amply "made out" in favour of the widow of Lieutenant Gowlland in the words—"Mr. Gowlland lost his life in the public service." It became that House to recognize that fact, and to make due acknowledgment of the same.

Mr. Garrett was not aware that in cases of this kind it was usual to inquire into the circumstances of those on whose immediate behalf it was proposed to give a vote. The hon. member referred to the Estimates already passed to show that such votes were customary, and generally sanctioned by the Legislature.

Mr Macintosh objected to this mode of dealing with such cases. It was a mere accident that the widows of these two sailors had been brought forward. But for what it had been proposed to do for the widow of Lieutenant Gowlland, the House would never have heard of them.

Mr. Wisdom spoke in behalf of the claim of Mr. Gowlland's widow.

Mr. Parkes addressed the committee against the principle of what was now proposed.

Mr. Stuart supported the resolution before the committee, both on principle and as a matter of expediency.

Mr. H. C. Dangar approved of what was proposed. He said, if private employers made provision for the widows and families of such as were accidentally killed in their employment, they might, at least, expect the Government to be as generous.

Mr. Piddington opposed the resolution, and moved that the debate be adjourned for a fortnight.

Mr. Meyer supported the resolution, considering that Government should, as an employer, do what private employers were not unwilling to do.

After some remarks from Mr. Macintosh and Mr. Burns, the motion for the adjournment of the debate was negatived.

The resolution was then carried, on division, by a majority of 22 to 4.

The report was received, and its adoption fixed for Friday next.

The order of the day was then called for the resumption of the debate on the motion of Mr. Cunneen to go into committee on Tuesday next, to consider of a Supplementary Estimate of £7619, as compensation for Mr. E. H. Hargraves for the discovery of gold.

Mr. Nelson was not unfavourable to the resolution, but desired to add three other names to that of Mr. Hargraves, namely—William Thom, junior, J. A. Lister, and J. S. Thom—whose claims to have discovered gold were quite as good as those of Mr. Hargraves. He moved, as an amendment, that these names be inserted in the resolution.

Mr. Macintosh suggested that the committee should add another name to those mentioned by the member for Orange. The name he wished to add was that of W. T. Smith, who had claims to have discovered gold before it was found by Mr. Hargraves. There was documentary evidence of the reality of Mr. Smith's discovery, as far back as the 29th June, 1849. He objected, on principle, to giving any more money to Mr. Hargraves, who had already been handsomely treated. He moved, as a further amendment, that the name of Mr. W. T. Smith be also added.

Mr. Booth advocated the claim put forward for Mr. Hargraves, who had not only found the gold, but had practically shown the people of New South Wales how to work it.

Mr. W. H. Suttor said that he should refuse to vote any further sum to Mr. Hargraves, who had already been well rewarded. At the time that he had received the grant of £10,000 he had been perfectly satisfied with that gratuity. Mr. Suttor read a letter published by Mr. Hargraves in the Herald of that day, in proof of this.

Mr. Lloyd said that it was, beyond all question, Mr. E. H. Hargraves who had practically discovered gold in this colony; and no other. The country owed a great deal to Mr. Hargraves, and it would be a disgrace to the country if they allowed him to be in want.

Mr. Driver said the question really was whether Mr. Hargraves had been compensated for his services. He thought that gentleman had already been very amply paid, and that no further claim could justly be advanced in his behalf. If more money was to be given to Mr. Hargraves let it be levied on those wealthy persons whose property had, by the discovery of gold, been so greatly enhanced in value.

Mr. Nelson again addressed the House, enforcing the claim of the Messrs. Thom and Lester.

Mr. Dibbs sustained the claim of the Rev. W. B. Clarke to be considered the discoverer of gold in this colony. Mr. Hargraves had been paid for the service he performed by a vote of that House, and he thought the settlement then made should not now be re-opened.

Mr. R. B. Smith thought that Mr. Hargraves' services had been very inadequately remunerated, and advocated his claim to further consideration at the hands of that House.

Mr. Garrett said that the Government of New South Wales had fully and fairly rewarded Mr. Hargraves, and if Victoria had not performed her part, he did not think it was incumbent upon this colony to make amends for it.

Mr. Parkes rose to give his testimony in favour of the fact that Mr. Hargraves was the discoverer of gold in this country. He had made this discovery from what he had seen in a foreign country. It was impossible fairly to confound the claims of this gentleman with those of Messrs. Thom and Lester. But Mr. Hargraves had already been fully compensated, and if the motion were pressed he must reluctantly vote against it.

Mr. W. Forster said the Government of this colony had already compensated Mr. Hargraves' claim, and could not be expected to give him more.

Mr. Cunneen replied, pointing out, amongst other things, that the discovery of gold by Mr. Hargraves had put an effectual stop to the expiree system, and had brought back to our shores a large and valuable free population, which had (before that time) been drawn away to California.

The amendments were negatived, without a division. The House then divided on the original motion, with the following result—"Ayes" 14, "Noes" 14.

The Speaker gave his casting vote with the "ayes."

The adjourned debate on the second reading of the Contagious Diseases Bill was then resumed.

Mr. Davies opposed the second reading of that bill; objecting to the measure on moral grounds, and citing an article written in the Herald against this bill. If a great number of the low grog shops were to be put down, prostitution would be more effectually checked than by passing such a bill, which tended to legalise prostitution.

Mr. Fitzpatrick supported the second reading. No influence of Christianity had ever coped, or could possibly cope with this evil. Doubtless the penalties it was proposed to inflict on these vicious women were great and terrible; but then the very dread of such inspection as was proposed must have a most salutary and deterrent effect. He utterly denied that this was a "measure to legalize prostitution." It was a bill eminently calculated to repress prostitution; not to promote it.

Mr. Parkes moved that the debate be adjourned, and stand an order of the day for Friday, the 25th instant.

Mr. W. Forster seconded the motion.

The motion was agreed to, and the debate adjourned accordingly.

Leave was given to bring in a bill to extend and amend the "Dog Act."

The House adjourned at thirteen minutes past 11 until Monday next, at 4 p.m.

On two or three occasions during the present session the Assembly has been occupied in discussing the subject of Primary Education. By almost common consent, a most important provision has been recommended to the Executive—that of building Public schools entirely out of public funds. A conviction prevails that the Executive and the Council of Education have been somewhat tardy in acting upon that recommendation; and surprise has been expressed that it has not been embodied in a new regulation to be placed before Parliament according to the requirements of the Public Schools Act so as to become law before the close of the session. It cannot be that the Council of Education intend to waste time and prevent the beneficent intention of the Legislature from taking effect for at least another year. Mr. S. C. Brown is a member of the Council, and in his place in the Assembly on Tuesday week he spoke wisely and well. We presume that in his place in the Council he is doing his utmost to expedite the adoption of the necessary steps for giving effect to Mr. Parkes's resolution with as little delay as possible. Prompt action will sustain public confidence in the Council, and possibly help to prolong its life beyond the term for which many people expect it to last.

In our issue of Tuesday, we gave in full the Council's report for 1874, which has just been published. We propose here to notice some of its facts, and use them as a standard for estimating the adequacy of our present educational machinery. Having in view the recent discussions, it cannot be otherwise than useful to find out from the latest authorised report exactly how we stand. It lessens the difficulty of our task to find every speaker in the Assembly taking it for granted that ignorance ought to be rooted out of this colony, and that all children of school age should be receiving some degree of instruction either in private or Public schools. One speaker expressed at large his preference for what he termed "a mixed system of education," but as he did not make it clear what sort of mixture, in his opinion, the State ought to supply, we will assume that he also desires the arts of reading, writing, and arithmetic to be universal, and would not stand in the way of their being taught, even if his own particular "mixture" should fail to meet with universal acceptance.

The total number of children in the Council's schools last year is given at a hundred thousand. At least one-tenth of this number ought to be deducted for names enrolled two and three times over in different schools. In point of fact, we never had more than 70,000 enrolled at any time in the course of the year; and the highest average attendance falls below 47,000. The population of the colony was about 580,000; and of this number—in accordance with a well-known rule, and as shown by our last census returns—about a fourth ought to be taken as within the limits of a proper school age. In this colony we should not make these limits narrower than in any other country, because the struggle for life is less severe here than in many other places, and we can afford to give our children that first of all requisites for a good start in life, a sound primary, if not a liberal education. The proper enrolment in private schools cannot have been beyond fifteen thousand, and adding the number to the actual enrolment in Government schools, we see that at least forty thousand children of school age during 1874 had either left school too soon, or were never at school at all, not to insist upon the large number whose irregular attendance is deprecated in the Council's report.

Of course it is competent for an optimist to maintain that, for anything we know to the contrary, a considerable number of these absentees may be receiving instruction at home; but whoever knows anything of the real facts of the case knows that the danger is more likely to be in the direction of over-estimating than of unduly depreciating our educational work. When Mr. Parkes was pleading for his Act in 1866, he said "it must be wrong, nay positively sinful to spend a single shilling unnecessarily upon educating fifty thousand children so long as other fifty thousand children are destitute of education." If he was right at that time we can easily test the accuracy of the optimist theory in regard to the results of his Act. Between the reports of the Council and the returns in the Statistical Register, we notice there is a difference of several thousands, and in order to compare the results under investigation upon the same basis we will take the Council's report for 1867. The gross enrolment for that year was equal to fourteen and a half per cent. of the population; and for last year it was seventeen and a half per cent. Now, if there were fifty thousand uneducated children then, and the increased enrolment has been only three and a half per cent. on the population, we cannot be accused of exaggeration in estimating that there are forty thousand children in the colony destitute of education. Either Mr. Parkes's estimate was wrong in 1866, or that which we have submitted must be right now.

But we can apply an additional standard of comparison by a glance at the educational work of our neighbours in Victoria. Their records of school attendance are kept upon the same basis as ours, and from their last report we notice that their gross enrolment in State schools for 1873 was equal to twenty-six per cent. of the population, and their average attendance twelve and a half per cent. Against this we have to show an enrolment of only seventeen and a half per cent., and an average attendance of only eight per cent. Just now there is a cry about the possibility of reaction in Victoria and of radical changes in their new system. The Governor's address on opening Parliament breathes a different tone, and whatever changes may be made we may be perfectly certain that with their recent experience of a common State school, open to all children, without distinction of class or creed, no reaction will ever be permitted there that will have the effect of closing the door against a single child. But whether we approve or condemn their system at least we may claim the contrast between the school attendance in the two colonies as decisive evidence that we have been guilty of no exaggeration in estimating our own great educational needs.

The Bill for the prevention of the pollution of the water supplied to the city of Sydney and its suburbs, introduced in the Assembly on Thursday night by the Government, is a measure embodying the provisions specifically recommended by the City and Suburban Sewage and Health Board, in their progress report of 4th May. When it became generally known that the water supplied to the inhabitants of Sydney for household purposes was polluted—according to the statement of the chairman of the Board—with matter which some high authorities consider too offensive to be admitted even into the public sewers—when it was ascertained that of 5400 closets supplied with water from the Sydney watermains, 4700 were directly connected with the mains—and that solid fecal matter was to be found in water drawn from taps in some parts of the city, it was time to take steps against such an alarming outbreak of disease as might at any time occur from such a state of things. In a portion of the appendix to the progress report of the Board is a very instructive extract from a work on Practical Hygiene of very high authority, in which the birth and propagation of typhoid fever by means of water contaminated by fecal matter or sewage are placed beyond all doubt. The accumulated experiences and reports of competent observers of malignant epidemics in various parts of the world establish sufficiently that water may not only be a medium for the propagation of typhoid, but is perhaps the readiest means by which epidemic and infectious diseases are conveyed from one to another.

The Bill introduced provides in the first place against any connection for the future between the main or pipe conducting the water supply from the reservoir and any pipe delivering the water directly into the closet-pan or other receptacle for fecal matter without the intervention of a cistern or cisterns into which the water from the main shall first be received. A violation of this provision is punishable by a penalty of fifty pounds. It will be remembered that the Board felt themselves justified in affirming that the water mains of Sydney were daily sucking with all their might at the water-closets, and that 100 cases had recently occurred in which the contamination of the water in this way had been actually observed, while it was probable that a much larger number had occurred which had not been brought under the notice of the inspectors, and a still larger number in which a deadly contamination had been produced without any apparent taint or discolouration. The Board indulged in language on this subject very much more emphatic than that usually employed in official documents, imploring the Government not to lose a single hour in taking measures to prevent the wholesale poisoning of the inhabitants. The language, however strong, was not in excess of the gravity and imminence of the evil.

By another section the City Engineer is authorised to cut off or otherwise disconnect from the main any pipe directly discharging the water into a closet without the intervention of a cistern, and which in his opinion may endanger the purity of the water by the absorption of noxious gases, or suction of fecal matter into such pipe or into the main.

The cost of this disconnection is to be defrayed, in the first instance, by the tenant, who is authorised to deduct the same, when paid, from the rent then due or accruing. Within a period of twelve months from the passing of the Act, all owners of premises having closets with pipes directly connected with the main are required to erect cisterns for the reception of the water intended to be used for the closet, and the punishment for non-compliance with this section is a fine not exceeding £50. Specific penalties are provided for wilfully injuring or tampering with connection pipes or cisterns which have been approved by the City Engineer, so as to destroy, diminish, or endanger their efficiency. The general use of earth-closets is encouraged by the exemption of the owners of premises erecting and using such closets from the payment of sewerage rates; and a heavy penalty is imposed upon any interested Justices of the Peace (whose interests are set forth in section 15) sitting on the Bench, or taking any part in the proceedings, whilst any case is being heard against a person for breach of the provisions of the Act. This section is intended to meet the gross cases (deposed to by various witnesses summoned before the Commission) of magistrates, in cases of prosecution for allowing nuisances, who were not on the roster, and who, from the nature of their occupations were interested in the cases brought before the Bench, taking their seats and interfering with the administration of justice. It is not a bad combination of objects that this bill effects at the same time, to preserve from contamination our water and our Police Courts—to purify our physical and moral atmosphere, and to get rid of corruption in our sewers—and, where it is more offensive, and perhaps more destructive, in our Courts of justice.

Some of our correspondents are disposed to refer the smallness of the amount of special religious teaching given in Public schools to the absence of class-rooms. There would be religious instruction, we are told, were there school accommodation. In other words, the fault does not belong to ministers of religion, but to local Boards and to the Council of Education. But it is remarkable that the deficient class-room accommodation was not more generally complained of before the return on special religious teaching was published. In matters of this sort the demand usually precedes the supply. If since the passing of the Public Instruction Act the teachers of religion have shown themselves anxious to carry out the provisions of the 19th section of the Act, and have failed to do so because the Council has failed to provide the means, there is some force in the explanations that have appeared in our columns. But if the class-rooms have not been generally demanded it cannot with much justice be complained that they have not been more generally supplied. If the clergy were really anxious to use the Public schools according to the provisions of the Act, there can be no doubt that the needful accommodation would have to be made. We do not know whether special class-room accommodation has been provided in those few Public schools in which certain clergymen have been in the habit of giving special instruction almost every week, but it can scarcely be doubted that clergymen who have been anxious to give special religious instruction in Public schools have found the means of doing it in one way or another. If the great majority of the clergy are really anxious to turn over a new leaf we would advise them to appear at the Public school as well as in the newspaper. It is never hard for persons to find an excuse for not doing that which they have no particular intention to do. The absence of class-rooms is a fair excuse for the smallness of the amount of special religious teaching that has been done in our Public schools. But the fairest of excuses are seldom the best of reasons. When the clergy find the will they usually find the way.

THE OVERLAND TELEGRAPH.—The Port Darwin telegraph line was last night interrupted north of Powell's Creek. It is not expected that the interruption will be for long.

A NEW METHOD OF TEACHING VOCAL MUSIC —A work on "Time and Tune in the Elementary School," by John Hullah, has just been received in the colonies. In the preface the author enters into his reasons for abandoning a revisal and reconstruction of Wilhem's method of teaching singing, as adapted for English use by him, in 1849, and says:—"When, about three years since, I had got some of this material into shape, I found myself at work on, not a new edition, but a new book, wherein, though the principles of an existing one might be worked out, the manner of working would prove altogether different. To grace such a work with an imprimatur granted to another, bearing little at least external likeness to it, was not to be thought of: and to connect it with the name of the great apostle of popular musical instruction in France would have been equally an injustice to him, and—I hope it is not unbecoming to say—to myself. After much consideration I resolved to leave the method as I had last left it, in 1849, still accessible to those to whom it might remain an acceptable, if only because an accustomed, text-book; and to work out all new processes in a new work, bearing a title by which it might be unmistakably distinguished from the old one. 'Time and Tune' includes hardly a sentence or a measure to be found in 'The Manual' of 1849; and it differs from that work in a still more important particular—the employment of the fixed or immovable Do, with considerable modifications of detail. As in Wilhem's 'Manual,' no names for notes but the Sol-fa syllables are used in 'Time and Tune.' It is desirable that no other be employed simultaneously with these. Their alphabetical names are still, however, so familiar to the majority of English musicians, and so extensively used in English musical literature, that those who carry their study and practice further than is provided for in this work must eventually make themselves acquainted with them. We have not yet profited by the example of the French and Italians, who use no names but Do, Re, &c., in reference as well to instrumental music as vocal, to theory as to practice of whatever kind. Continental organ builders and pianoforte makers even write these names on their pipes and against their strings, and publishers use them to indicate the keys of the compositions named in their catalogues." Mr. Chizlett, of this city, who is a strong believer in Hullah, intends to adopt the new method in the classes under his direction.

LECTURE ON PHRENOLOGY.—Last evening, a fair number of persons mustered at the Temperance Hall, Pitt-street, to hear Mr. W. D. Cavanough lecture on the "Phrenological Characteristics of the members of the present and past Ministries." The speech was attentively listened to, and during the course of the evening the lecturer was applauded.

MEETING AT MANLY BEACH.—A meeting was held at Lambourne's Hotel, Manly Beach, on Thursday evening, for the purpose of considering the advisability of erecting a school of arts in that suburb. Mr. Fox occupied the chair; and it was stated that Mr. H. G. Smith had kindly offered a piece of ground to the committee for the purpose. It was then decided that a building should be erected; and a cordial vote of thanks was given to Mr. J. B. Smithers for the trouble he had taken to secure a piece of land.

BABY FOUND.—About 10 o'clock on Thursday night, Mr. Henry Webster, of Ocean-street, found lying on the ground in Stuart-lane, off Stuart-street, Paddington, and adjoining the Foundling Hospital, a well-grown healthy male infant, apparently about six months old. It was of fair complexion and hair, with blue eyes, and a small red mark on the chin. It was well clothed, having on the following garments:—A scarlet dress and cape, machine made, trimmed with black braid; two white petticoats, one flannel petticoat, a white pinafore, frilled round shoulders, and white hood—all nearly new. It was wrapped up in a yard and a half of new blue serge. The poor little outcast is now at the Foundling Hospital.

FALL OF A HOUSE.—Yesterday forenoon, about 10 o'clock, an old wooden weatherboard house, on the eastern side of Castlereagh-street, between King and Hunter streets, and intermediate between the premises occupied by Mr. Robinson, plumber, and Messrs. Corbin and Nicolls, cabinetmakers, fell in with a loud crash. The building was in a very rickety condition, and had been unoccupied for months past. Fortunately no one was either in the building or close by at the time.

THE MERCANTILE ROWING CLUB. — Last evening, for the first time since the opening day, the club boats were manned as a compliment to Mr. H. Collis, the late secretary, who was leaving for England. Eight crews turned out and pulled to the P. and O. steamer Ellora, in Lavender Bay, where, after cheering their departing comrade, a portion of them escorted her a short distance down the harbour.

DANGEROUS ROADWAY.—A correspondent, referring to the roadway at the new bridge, Lower Petersham, Parramatta Road, says that the late rains have caused portions of the embankments forming the approaches to give way, owing to the absence of retaining walls; that the side fences are very insecure, and that safety and economy require that something should be done, and that speedily.

ACCIDENT. — Yesterday afternoon Charles Brown, a cabinetmaker, residing in Castlereagh-street, while playfully sparring with a man in his shop, fell backwards, and sustained a nasty wound to his head, at the back of the left ear. He was immediately conveyed to the Infirmary, and admitted.

INQUEST.—An inquest was held yesterday morning, at the Darlinghurst gaol, on the body of a prisoner named Charles Dunlop, aged 50 years. Dunlop was taken to the gaol on the 25th February, under sentence of six months for larceny. On the 30th April he was admitted into the gaol hospital, where he remained till the time of his death, which took place this morning. The immediate cause of death was dropsy from disease of the internal organs. The jury returned a verdict of death from natural causes.

MINING BOARD OF NEW SOUTH WALES.—The Board met yesterday morning at the Board-room, Public Works Department. Present—Messrs. Thompson (chair) Baker, Copeland, W. Brown, Griffin, Burns, Sweeny, Mongan, and De C. Browne. The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed, and after the transaction of some formal business the Board adjourned until half-past 10 o'clock on Monday.

BITTEN BY A DOG.—A little boy, seven years of age, named Charles Morris, was playing at home yesterday morning, at Bullanaming-street, Redfern, when a dog rushed from the house next door and seized him by the left arm and shook him severely. The animal then laid hold of the boy's left thigh and inflicted a nasty wound. The little fellow was taken to the Infirmary, where the doctor dressed the arm and thigh, and the boy was sent home.

MURDEROUS ASSAULT.—A most diabolical act of savagery was perpetrated on Saturday evening (says the Courier), at Mount Buninyong. A man named William Borlase had occasion to call on a person living in the neighbourhood. A dispute arose, and resulted in the fore arm of Borlase being nearly severed by a blow from an American axe. The unfortunate man was taken to Dr. Sparling, who took up the arteries, &c.; but it is doubtful whether the arm will ever be useful again.

MUTILATING HORSES.—The despicable crime of mutilating horses by the removal of their manes and tails, for the purpose of selling the hair, is, we (Brisbane Courier) are told, being practised in North Brisbane. Many years ago, on the south side, there was a similar outbreak, and a valuable mare, the property of Mr. George Appel, was thus mutilated. The inhabitants of South Brisbane were so much struck with the meanness of the crime, and the danger to all owners of horses, that they subscribed £100 for the detection and conviction of the offender, who wisely cleared out of the place, and there was no repetition till now of the outrage. There are many horse owners who would have no hesitation, we believe, in taking the law into their own hands and inflicting summary vengeance in such miserable cases; and really it is not to be wondered at, when one remembers that for the sake of some ninepence worth of horsehair, a hundred guinea horse may be rendered unfit to sell, ride, or drive for twelve or eighteen months to come.

PHILADELPHIA AND MELBOURNE EXHIBITIONS COMMISSION.—The Committee on Vegetable Products met on Thursday. There were present—Mr. Wallis (in the chair), Mr. George Thornton, J.P., Mr. Edward S. Hill, J.P., Mr. Charles Moore, F.L.S., and Mr. James Norton. A good deal of consideration was given to the best means of obtaining timbers, gums, and fibres. In regard to gums it was thought desirable more particularly to obtain samples from the grass-tree, which is now becoming an important article of commerce, from the bloodwood, the mangrove, and the redgum. It was considered probable that Messrs. Moody and Munro would be willing to exhibit gum from the Xanthorrea, and that Mr. E. W. Rudder, of Kempsey, would forward a log of dye wood and a sample of the yellow dye which he has made from it. Applicants proposing to exhibit arrowroot were informed that 10 lbs. would be the minimum quantity shown. The secretary was instructed to apply to Mr. Bensusan for information respecting an extract prepared from the climbing plant Smilax glycyphyllum, commonly known as the sarsaparilla vine, and to Mr. J. Small, of Berrima, for samples of cabbage-tree hats. A communication from Mr. W. A. B. Greaves, of Armidale, was read through by Mr. Charles Moore, offering assistance, and the secretary was instructed to request him to supply a log of beech wood (Fagus Cairnsii). A meeting of the Committee on Arts, Manufactures, &c., took place yesterday, Mr. B. Palmer (Mayor of Sydney), Mr. E. S. Hill, Mr. J. R. Fairfax, Mr. R. Adams, and Mr. W. Wallis being present. The schedule of objects submitted to the committee was again considered, and steps were taken to obtain exhibits in the different departments.

CREDAT JUDÆUS. — Among the prisoners brought before the Bench at the Central Police Court yesterday, was John Riley, the mute, charged by constable Parry with having been drunk and disorderly. He denied that he was drunk. Parry deposed that, being on duty at the corner of King and York streets, he heard a most unearthly sound, and, following it up, came to the defendant, who was sitting at Lassetter's gateway, near Market-street, and making a noise more like the yelling of a wild beast than the voice of a human being; took him into custody for being drunk and disorderly; so great was the noise that five or six constables came running up together to see what was the matter. It is evidently a mistake that a constable is never to be found when wanted.

ASHFIELD DEBATING AND LITERARY SOCIETY. On Thursday evening last this society was inaugurated by a meeting held in St. John's schoolroom. Mr. G. Fitzgerald occupied the chair. The chairman spoke of the advantages which might be expected to result from the society it was proposed to form, and briefly sketched the scope of its intended operation. The Rev. J. Auld proposed "that this meeting form itself into a Debating and Literary Society," which was carried unanimously. A secretary and committee were appointed, and subjects for future debate discussed. Several gentlemen promised to write essays on various topics, and the next meeting was fixed for Monday, 14th instant.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—There occurred yesterday afternoon an accident with a fatal termination, the announcement of which will cause much regret. Mr. John Alexander Macfarlane, accountant in the Sydney Branch of the Royal Mint, second son of the late Hon. Dr. Macfarlane, M.L.C., met his death in a most sudden and painful manner. Shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Mr. Macfarlane left the Mint, mounted on a spirited black horse which he had hired from Mr. H. Gibson, of the horse depository in Pitt-street, and went down King-street. Senior-sergeant Musgrave, who has charge of the police at the Mint, observed that as Mr. Macfarlane started to go home he did not appear to understand the management of the horse which he rode. Mr. Macfarlane started down King-street, with but one foot in the stirrups. The other he was apparently unable to fix in the stirrup-iron; and his leg kept dangling by the horse's side. From the moment of turning the corner of King and Phillip streets, if not before, Mr. Macfarlane appears to have had no control over the actions of the animal, which went at a fast pace down Phillip-street in a northerly direction past Hunter and Bent streets. At the junction of Albert-street (in which is the main entrance to the Water Police Court) with Phillip-street Mr. Macfarlane was thrown off and pitched violently on the ground—it is believed in consequence of the jerk caused by the horse stopping suddenly. He appears to have been thrown from near the middle of the road, under the hind feet of a horse attached to a buggy, which was standing on the eastern side of the street, near the kerb. The general impression seemed to be that the head of the young man struck the metalled road near to the hind feet of the buggy horse, which does not appear to have stirred. Another impression is that his head struck against the wheel of the buggy, but no mark was found to support such a conclusion. Two draymen who were standing outside Mr. Mort's wool warehouse ran at once and pick d Mr. Macfarlane up, and found that he was quite unconscious, and bleeding profusely from the head. A cab was procured and he was conveyed by water police constable M'Bride to the Sydney Infirmary, where he was promptly attended to by Dr. Halket, the house surgeon, who found that there was a compound fracture of the skull, and that recovery was hopeless. Insensibility continued and death took place shortly before 7 o'clock p.m. When the unhappy accident occurred, Mr. Macfarlane was on his way to the Ferry in Phillip-street, by which he and the horse which he rode were about to cross, on the way to Mr. Macfarlane's residence at North Shore. The horse was captured in Wynyard-square and taken to the water police station, where it remained till it was taken away by a groom in the employ of Mr. Gibson. Mr. Macfarlane was in the hey day of youth. When his untimely death took place he was only about 22 or 23 years of age.

ACCIDENT TO A LUMPER. — The Newcastle Pilot of Thursday reports that a lumper, while employed on the barque Edwin Fox, on Wednesday met with an accident which may terminate fatally. He was on deck, when he stumbled over the hatch combings and fell down the hold, a distance of twenty-three feet, striking his head against the kelson, and sustained concussion of the brain. He was as soon as possible taken to the hospital, where, up to last night, he had not returned to consciousness. The unfortunate man's name is not known. He is a man of colour, and was by name unknown to any of his mates.

BARON VON SANDEN IN DIFFICULTIES AGAIN.—The Melbourne Herald reports that at the Fitzroy Police Court on Monday, Bernhard Baron von Sanden appeared on fraud summons to show cause why he should not be committed to prison for non-payment of a debt of £18 11s. 4d., due to Mrs. Duncan, boarding-house keeper, in Royal-terrace, and for which an order was made by the Bench about a month ago. Mr. Walker, who appeared for the plaintiff, stated that the sum claimed was for nine weeks' board and lodging, and that the defendant referred Mrs. Duncan for payment to a Mr. Ellis, who he stated was his agent, but that Ellis said that he had nothing to do with Von Sanden's debts. The defendant stated to the Bench that he had been in trouble ever since he came to this country, and that he was in pecuniary difficulties when he contracted the debt to the complainant, Mrs. Duncan. He had owed sums of £500 and £300 to other persons, and he did not think it was too much to ask Mrs. Duncan to wait awhile. Mr. Marsden, J.P. remarked that the defendant ought to have paid the plaintiff, who was a widow lady, first. The defendant rejoined that Mrs. Duncan gave credit to others to the extent of £75. Mr. Walker added that the credit referred to was given to a person whom Von Sanden introduced to Mrs. Duncan, and who had not yet paid her. The defendant remarked that he had offered this morning to give Mrs. Duncan £10 when he got a cheque cashed. The Bench said they had no alternative but to order the defendant to be imprisoned for two months unless the amount was paid before the Court rose. The defendant was then about to leave the Court but was detained by the police, and he then sent a messenger for the money.

HOW TO GET RID OF A NUISANCE.—A novel procedure (writes the Geelong Advertiser) has been taken by a tradesman in Moorabool-street to prevent his neighbour from encroaching on his frontage with his wares. It appears that for some time the division-post between the two premises had been used by one neighbour for hanging some blankets on, which annoyed the other by blowing across his window. After submitting to this for a long time, he began to be sorely puzzled as to the best means of getting this blanket removed, as asking civilly seemed to have no effect whatever. At last a plan was thought of, he determined to paint the post every morning, and this expedient had the desired effect, for the article was hung out no more for fear of being soiled, and every morning the boy in connection with the establishment steps out to paint the post, to the amusement of the neighbours and the evident chagrin of the blanket-owner.

EXECUTION AT HOBART TOWN.—The condemned criminal, Job Smith, recently tried, found guilty, and sentenced to death for a criminal assault, under brutal circumstances, on the girl Margaret Ayres, at Port Arthur, forfeited his life inside the Hobart Town gaol (the Mercury reports) on Monday, May 31. From the cell to the gallows Smith betrayed no physical emotion, his step being steady, and his demeanour apparently composed. On arriving at the drop the Under-sheriff asked the unfortunate man if he had anything to say. Smith replied, "I am not guilty: I am an innocent man." The Under-sheriff then read the following written statement:—"I was born at Bristol, on the 23rd November, 1819, and was a Protestant all my life. Became a Roman Catholic upon receiving sentence of death. I have left with my (spiritual) director a statement which, in his discretion, I request him to publish wholly or in part." The usual preliminaries having been arranged, the executioner performed his duty, and the malefactor died without any apparent physical pain. It may be mentioned that Smith left a written document with Father Beechiner, which contains a statement in direct contradiction of his dying words.

ACTION FOR PLAYING ON A CHURCH ORGAN. —At the Court of Arches, on April 16, in the case of the Rev. Edmund Wyndham v. Henry Cole, an application was made to Sir Robert Phillimore to accept letters of request from the Bishop of Bath and Wells to institute proceedings against Henry Cole, a parishioner, for "playing on the organ" of the parish church of St. John, Yeovil, Somerset, both before and after the services. It was alleged that Mr. Cole, by such performances, had offended against the laws ecclesiastical, and unlawfully obstructed the vicar in his office, and therefore he applied to the Court. The Dean of Arches said he would accept the letters of request, but he hoped the matter would be settled out of Court. It was a trifling matter, and he trusted it would not be necessary to proceed further. The clergyman of a church had a right to the use and management of the organ. A citation was ordered to be issued.

FATAL MINING ACCIDENTS.—The Bendigo Advertiser has collected and published some more statistical accounts of fatal accidents that occurred in the Bendigo mines between the 1st June, 1874, and 1st June, 1875. The total number was 19, and the local coroner has expressed an opinion that no fewer than 18 of those were preventable, and have been due almost entirely to the recklessness of the unfortunate men who perished. Of the 19 sufferers 12 were married and 7 were single men, and the number of children left fatherless was 28. 5 men were killed by ground falling upon them; 4 met their ends by falling down shafts; 1 by descending a shaft on a rope, contrary to advice; 2 by slabs falling; 1 by explosion of lithofracteur; 2 by powder; 1 by gun-cotton; and 3 by cage accidents and falls of buckets.

A DUEL WITH BOOMERANGS.—A duel is reported by the Gippsland Mercury, as follows:—Two aboriginal natives, Jimmy Scott and Bobby Clark, quarrelled as to who should gain possession of a fascinating "black gin." Both men had received encouragement from the object of their affections, and after some high words had passed they decided to try conclusions. The convincing ground was near the Hill Top, and the weapons were boomerangs. A tough fight, which lasted about half-an-hour, resulted in Jimmy Scott "throwing up the sponge" after having received several injuries to the head and left arm. Bobby Clark received but slight punishment.

CALVIN, GALILEO, AND SHAKESPERE.—We learn from an English journal that Dean Stanley delivered an eloquent address at Dundee on "Religion, Science, and Literature," which he embodied in the study of three contemporaries, or almost contemporaries,—Calvin, Galileo, and Shakespere. He treated Calvin as the great theologian of predestination, which he regarded as a strained and extreme form of, but still a form of, the gospel of Providential guidance, and claimed for Calvin in this matter no less a disciple amongst modern men of genius than Carlyle. Galileo he treated as the true scientific man, and Shakespere as the poet whose faith was all the greater for not being confined to any definite creed. The Dean ridiculed the notion that theology would soon perish from off the earth, and declared that its alliance with science and literature must be eternal.

SIR CHARLES DU CANE AT HOME.—The Essex Weekly News gives a lengthy account of the rejoicings and festivities attendant on the return of Sir Charles Du Cane and Lady Du Cane to their home at Braxted Park. In responding to an address of welcome, Sir Charles made a speech to his tenantry, in which he said:—"I trust, whatever we may hear of elsewhere, that the relations between employer and employed are not destined in the parish of Braxted to degenerate into a mere hard-and-fast commercial bargain. (Hear, hear.) I trust that both the tenants and labourers on this property are still prepared to look up to Lady Du Cane and myself as the heads of your family circle; I trust that you are still prepared to regard us in that light, and that you feel still that the relation hitherto existing between us can be maintained without either loss of independence or self-respect on the part of any one of the contracting parties. At all events, I have come back again prepared to fulfil my part of the contract. And if I may take this opportunity of saying so, I trust, too, that the labourers on this property will remain, as they have hitherto done, happy and contented under those that employ them. But I do not ask them to do so merely from that same spirit of hereditary bond service which tells them that the whole duty of the labourer to society is

> "'Be contented with their rations,
> Always know their proper stations,
> And bless the squire and his relations.'

(Laughter.) Let them bless the squire and his relations by all means—I would much rather they did that than the other thing—(laughter)—but let them do so because they feel that the squire and his relations do their duty honestly and conscientiously by them—because they feel that their welfare, both moral and physical, is honestly studied in this parish—and, above all, because they are encouraged in those habits and feelings of self-respect without which no man, to my mind, can be a man in any useful and practical and manly sense of the word. (Hear, hear.) These are the sentiments with which we have come back to Braxted. These are the sentiments upon which I endeavoured to act when I lived among you six years ago; and we hope we shall be able to carry them none the worse into effect now for the knowledge and experience we have gained in that vast antipodean world, where the love for England, the love for English institutions, the love for English manners and customs, and last, but not least, the love for good English sports and amusements, is so deeply rooted in the hearts and affections of the people. (Applause.) That very love for all that is English in that far distant country has only strengthened the conviction which I have always entertained that there is no position more enviable or more honourable than that of an English country gentleman and his wife living on their estate, surrounded, respected, and beloved by their tenantry and their neighbours, and doing their best, as becomes them, both by their practice and example, to do good to all those who live around them." (Applause.)

TAKING POISON BY MISTAKE.—The Ballarat Courier reports that the poisoning of Mrs. Cavanagh, of Learmonth, formed the subject of a coroner's inquiry on Monday at the Weatherboard Hotel. The evidence of Mr. Michael Cavanagh (husband of the deceased) Miss Annie Cavanagh, Mr. Hooper, surgeon, and Mr. Joseph M. Murphy, manager for Mr. Brind, chemist, was taken, and tended to show that the deceased had taken by mistake, in place of her own medicine, a liniment intended for external application. The liniment contained aconite and chloroform, and, according to the evidence of Mr. Murphy, it would seem that the tablespoonful taken by the deceased was more than sufficient to kill any adult. Mr. Murphy, in his evidence, said that it was not usual to put a "poison" label on bottles containing such liquids in dispensing, nor was it obligatory on chemists in the colony. The verdict of the jury was as follows:—"That the deceased's death was caused by poisoning, from her having accidentally taken some aconite liniment in mistake for medicine; the bottle had not the label 'poison' on it, but marked 'for external use only.' We are of opinion that it should be obligatory on all chemists and druggists to label all bottles with the word 'poison' which contain such."

VICTORIA THEATRE.—The most crowded and fashionable audience that has assembled within the "old Victoria" for a long time congregated there on Thursday evening, when Signora Magi's benefit came off. In the dress circle large numbers failed to obtain more than standing room, and the stalls were also densely peopled, many being unable to gain admission. The first feature of the programme was the performance by the dramatic company of "The Serious Family." Miss Adelaide Bowring sustained the character of Mrs. Ormsby Delmayne with great finish and effectiveness. Mr. J. G. Joyce as Aminadab Sleek elicited much encomium, playing the part with immense unction, and evincing every appreciation of the humour which runs through it. Mr. B. N. Jones impersonated Captain Murphy Maguire with some effect. Miss Melville's Lady Sowerby Creamly was extremely amusing, eliciting much merriment throughout. Mr. Douglas as Charles Torrens made the most of the part; and Miss Tilly Andrews deserves commendation for her rendering of Mrs. Charles Torrens. After the play, Signora Magi, who was lavishly welcomed, sang in English, "Please give me a penny, Sir," and was accorded an encore. Signori Trepani Bono and Dondi then sang the duet from Puritani "Scioni la Tromba," with much effect; and Signora Baldiseari and Signora Magi rendered "Giorno d'orrore" (Semiramide) to the entire satisfaction of the audience. Subsequently the beneficiaire came forward with Mr. B. N. Jones, who on her behalf returned thanks for the generous patronage accorded, and announced that Mr. Bennett had succeeded in making arrangements with the Italian artistes remaining in Sydney for the production of operas. There would, however, be no increase in the prices. Ricci's opera buffo "Crispino e la Comare" brought the performance to a termination. In this Signora Magi assumed the role of La Comare, and made the most of it. Miss Wangenheim re-appeared as Annetta, and by the grace and verve of her acting much gratified the audience; she also gave a very accurate and melodious delivery of the music, and when her voice has more matured she will doubtless become a favourite with the public. Last night "Leah" was produced to a small house, Miss Adelaide Bowring sustaining the leading part, which she rendered with her customary power; her elocution in the "curse" scene eliciting great approbation. She was well supported by the company. To-night, "Crispino e la Comare" is to be repeated, and "Katherine and Petruchio" will be produced by the dramatic company.

QUEEN'S THEATRE. — "Little Nell and the Marchioness" was performed for the last time yesterday evening to an overflowing audience. Their Excellencies Sir Hercules Robinson, K.C.M.G., and Sir Arthur Gordon, K.C.M.G., with the Hon. Lady Robinson, Mrs. St. John, Miss Robinson, Captain St. John, A.D.C., and Captain Knollys, A.D.C., were present during the performance, and appeared to heartily enjoy it. To-night, "Rip Van Winkle" is to be put upon the boards, and those who remember how felicitously Mr. Williamson rendered the German character in "Struck Oil," will readily anticipate that the bibulous Dutchman will be a congenial impersonation to him. Great preparations have been made to render due justice to the scenic effects, &c.

MASONIC HALL.—During the week Mr. and Mrs. George Case have given their very pleasant entertainment to large audiences, except on Thursday night, when the building was engaged for an assembly ball. There was a change of programme on Wednesday, and Mrs. George Case's versatile and eccentric delineations appear to be heartily relished, as also Mr. Case's instrumental solos.

SCHOOL OF ARTS.—The "Royal Marionettes" still pursue their career of prosperity with unabated success. Night after night, crowded audiences assemble, and "The Christy Minstrels," "The Fantoccini," and "Little Red Ridinghood," cause immense amusement. The entertainment is both refined and elegant; there is nothing to offend the most fastidious, and very much to gratify. Indeed, if it be true that a hearty laugh is one of the best promoters of health, people of a dyspeptic organization, or afflicted with "melancholia," ought to patronise this place of amusement very liberally, for the veriest cynic could hardly fail to be amused at the eccentricities which these little figures are made to enact. Amongst the features of the entertainment well worthy encomium, are the proscenium and scenery, which are admirable, and put to the blush more pretentious establishments. The music also is excellent of its class.

THIS day, at 11 a.m., at the Australian Auction Rooms, Pitt-street, household furniture, Japanese goods, clock, coplate, figures, &c., Bradley, Newton, and Lamb, auctioneers.—ADV.

DREADFUL AND FATAL ACCIDENT.

(FROM OUR DUBBO CORRESPONDENT.)

ON Monday last, a terrible accident, which resulted fatally, occurred to Mr. Samuel Davis, lately carrying on business as storekeeper in Macquarie-street, Dubbo. Mr. Davis had a large waggon in Mr. Boland's yard, and, as the smallness of the yard prevented the waggon from being turned round and taken out in the regular way, two horses were attached to the back of it by a chain. The wheels of the cart were sunk deep in the ground, and a great deal of exertion was necessary in order to move the waggon. Mr. Davis, with his brother, and a man named Richard Kurtin, in the employ of deceased, were assisting. At last, the horses made a rush—Mr. S. Davis being at this time between the waggon and Boland's house. He sang out and endeavoured to stop them, but could not. The horses moved on, and Davis was first crushed up against the wall, and then knocked down. While on the ground, on his face and hands, the wheels of the waggon—a conveyance weighing fully two tons—passed over his hip and loins, and left arm. When Mr. David Davis saw his brother on the ground and herd his agonising cries, he rushed to the heads of the horses and stopped them. On reaching his brother, he found him suffering dreadfully. Dr. Tibbits was at once sent for, and arrived in a few minutes. Mr. Davis was removed to Mr. Furney's shop, opposite to where the accident occurred; and it was then discovered that the left arm was broken, the hip much injured and the loins and spine seriously affected. All the remedies that skill and kindness could devise were employed, but in vain, for, about 4 o'clock, a change for the worse set in; the sufferer was becoming comatose, and the lower part of his body cold and paralysed. At half-past six o'clock, he died. About an hour before his death, Mr. Davis called for his brother David and said—"It is no use crying, Dave. I am going to die. It is better the accident should have happened to me than you. You have a family—I have none." When deceased met with the accident, he was making preparations to make his usual business tour along the Macquarie, &c.; in fact, the wet weather alone prevented him from starting last week. An inquest was held on Tuesday forenoon, at the Club House Hotel, by the District Coroner, Dr. Tibbits, J.P. On Wednesday, the body of deceased, (who usually lived in Sydney, and who was of the Jewish denomination), was removed to Sydney. The business places in town had the shutters up during the day. The following is the report of the inquest, which was held before Dr. Tibbits and a jury of five. The evidence was as under.

Sergeant Wallings being sworn, deposed: About 12 o'clock yesterday (Monday), I was at Pools's store; I heard a strange noise like something falling heavily, and a man's voice as though calling for help; I went outside and saw some people going into Mr. Boland's yard; I next saw a large waggon close to the end of Boland's house; I also saw the deceased, Samuel Davis, lying on the ground on his right side, in great agony from injuries he had received, as I understood, by the waggon having passed over him; I heard deceased say, "Oh, my arms are off!" he was removed to the residence of Mr. Furney; he complained of great pain in the back; when I saw the waggon, two horses were attached to it; I was informed that deceased died about 7 o'clock the same evening.

David Davis deposed: I am a brother to the deceased Samuel Davis, and reside at Dubbo; my brother was a storekeeper in Dubbo, and was about removing; yesterday (Monday), about 12 o'clock, deceased was going to shift a large waggon, weighing between 30 cwt. and two tons, then standing in Mr. Boland's yard; he attached two horses to the back of the waggon, which horses were some time before they could pull it; when they did, they made a rush; I heard my brother singing out "whey," to the horses; I then ran before the horses and stopped them; it was too late to save my brother, who had fallen, I suppose between the waggon and Mr. Boland's house; I heard my brother call out, "My arms are off;" I then had deceased conveyed to Mr. Furney's, where he remained until he died, at about twenty minutes to 7 last night; the body the jury have just viewed is that of Samuel Davis, aged 42 years; deceased was perfectly sober at the time; he always was a very temperate man.

By a juror: Before I ran to the horses, my brother was on the near side, I on the off; my brother said, "Look out for the pole when they start;" I did not see deceased fall.

Thomas Furney deposed: I am a saddler, and reside in Macquarie-street, Dubbo; yesterday, about midday, I was in our shop, looking through the door at the deceased driving some horses attached to a van then in Boland's yard; deceased was standing at the horses' hind quarters, between the near side and Boland's house; he was going up to the horse's head, and sang out, "Whey!" he then fell on the ground and rolled over; the horses kept pulling the waggon; the hind wheel of the waggon, I think, must have passed outside of him, that is, between him and the house; as I got to the place, the other wheel was passing over him; deceased was on his belly; I ran round, jumped over the pole, put my hand beneath his head, and raised it up; deceased kept singing out, "my arms are off": I kept holding deceased up; I told deceased he would be all right by and by; he was quite sensible; I heard his left arm was broken; I assisted in carrying deceased to my father's house, where he remained till he died; the hind part of the waggon was facing the gate; deceased was bringing the waggon out backwards; I don't think deceased was jammed between the waggon and the house; deceased's head was towards the gate; I think the wheel passed up the back and loins, and off the shoulder.

Joseph Boland deposed: I reside in Macquarie-street, Dubbo; yesterday, about 12 o'clock, deceased came into my yard with a pair of horses; he was accompanied by his brother and another party, named Richard Kurtin; they were about to remove a waggon (a four-wheeled one) which stood in the yard; I think Mr. David Davis attached a chain to the centre of the hind axle, hitched the two horses on and tried to remove the waggon; they failed; they then took the chain off the axle and placed it upon the spokes of the near hind wheel; hitched the horses and tried to draw the waggon out backwards; the wheel turned round until the chain got to the cross-piece of the waggon; Samuel Davis then put the chain to the off hind wheel, which turned round the same as the other; the horses could not move the waggon; he then (I am not sure if it was deceased or David) took the chain, and put it on the axle, near the hind wheel on the near side; tried the horses two or three times; they could not shift; I told David to get a spade and clear behind the wheels; he did so, and, after one or two attempts, the horses rushed away with the waggon; deceased sang out to the horses, to stop them; the horses did not stop; I could not see deceased, as I was looking at the roof of the house, thinking the tilt of the waggon might tear down a portion of the roof; his brother was nearer to the waggon than I was, and he rushed to the heads of the horses and caught them; deceased was then lying on the ground on his face and hands; after the waggon passed the corner of the house, I looked down and saw the off fore wheel of the waggon passing over the deceased's back and left shoulder; he sang out, "My arms are off! my arms are off!" I ran up to him but he would not let me touch him; he wanted water, for which I ran; when I came back, Dr. Tibbit's was there with several others; I stood alongside and saw deceased removed, after a little time, to Mr. Furney's; I should think the waggon was near two tons weight; it was quite impossible to have stopped the horses, on account of the chain being attached to the off hind wheel; it caused the waggon to be drawn close to the wall of my house; I did not see how deceased fell.

The coroner having explained the evidence, the jury found "that Samuel Davis, aged 42 years, came by his death, on June 7th, 1875, by a waggon accidentally passing over his body and causing the injuries from which death resulted." A rider was attached "that no blame can be attached to any person."

CITY RAILWAY EXTENSION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—Having had my attention called to Mr. Hordern's letter on railway extension, by two letters in to-day's paper, I beg to offer a few suggestions on the subject. Like Mr. Hordern, I object to the proposed extension, although for different reasons. I consider Mr. Whitton's scheme is partial, unfair, and not the best that could be devised—partial, because it would only benefit a few in the immediate vicinity of the terminus; unfair, because the majority would be taxed without benefit to themselves, for the benefit of those few; and not the best that could be devised, because it would be useless to the whole of the citizens of West, and the majority of the citizens of East, Sydney.

I think the line, if constructed at all, should commence at Circular Quay, as suggested in one of the letters in to-day's paper, that it should follow the course of either George or Pitt streets, underground, and that it should have stations at every other cross street, so as to benefit the whole city—say Circular Quay, Post Office (as nearly as possible, without interfering with it), Market-street, Bathurst-street, Goulburn-street. After reaching Goulburn-street, the line might take a turn to the east so as to bring it into Mr. Whitton's track between there and Redfern.

VOLUNTEER LAND ORDERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—From the notice lately taken in the Legislative Assembly respecting the above, I know that all those concerned are very deeply interested; and the only reason that your columns are not sought to be besieged is that they are waiting for some positive action to be taken in the matter; but in my opinion anticipation is worse than the reality. Whatever may be the intentions of the Government I cannot say, but I would suggest that, in order to allay the perhaps unnecessary ferment amongst the Volunteers, a general meeting of those concerned should be called, in order to extinguish any undue apprehension of injustice.

COAL EXPORT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—Several "Australians" have been paying great attention recently to the facilities for coal export from Newcastle, but now an "Englishman" has stepped into the field of action and introduced a little powder and shot, but it remains to be seen with what effect. It is a well-known old aphorism, that "delay is dangerous," and in what instance could it be made more applicable than in the present one. It is hardly in accordance with facts to imply that the Government is trying to drive the "foreign export" to Sydney, and is thus enabling owners of steam colliers to make enormous profits. It is obvious enough that this is what is being done at the present time, but not intentionally on the part of the Government. Undoubtedly the arrangements for loading vessels of whatever class at Newcastle are not equal to the requirements, and it is quite time that some remedial steps were taken to ensure the more rapid dispatch of ships plying to Newcastle, which must be acknowledged to be at the present time the most important coal depot of the South Pacific. A railway line from Sydney must almost inevitably be made sooner or later, and the sooner the better, not only for Sydney but for the interests of the colony in general. What seems to be a feasible scheme would be to have "shoots" on the North Shore where the water is of a great depth close in to the land, and, having wharfs made along there, the coal trucks could be emptied down the shoots straight into the vessels' holds. This would not only be a saving of time but a great saving of labour. The Illawarra railway project, however, should not be overlooked, but should receive some little encouragement, as the coal is of a good quality, and, although perhaps not equal to that of Newcastle as a whole, is even better suited for some purposes. A line from Illawarra might without difficulty be conducted down to Darling Harbour, where there is a handsome iron wharf approaching completion, and a branch double line running from the Sydney station down to the wharf.

THE INSUFFICIENCY OF SHIPPING APPLIANCES AND THEIR MANAGEMENT AT NEWCASTLE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—Having lately seen several letters in your journal on the above important subject, the writers of which, in some matters, seem to me to be a little "at sea," I venture to request that you will allow me space to bring before the notice of the public and the powers that be the following facts, and a simple remedy for abuses that now exist:—Firstly, the facilities for shipping are not now used to anything like their full extent. Remedy, the appointment of a first-class wharfinger who will have the power to place vessels of every kind and class, as circumstances may require, and who will be allowed to exercise his discretion, being only accountable to the head of his department, due observance being had of all regulations—those in force now sadly want remodelling. Secondly, Sydney coasting sailing vessels have allotted for their use in turn one crane and one staith, for the purpose of supplying local requirements and stiffening to ships in Sydney waiting to go to Newcastle to load up. Formerly they had this privilege, but lately it has been taken away without any valid reason. Coasting steamers also, as at present, to have a crane for their use.

That any vessel wishing to load at night (everything being ready), may do so at any crane or staith, provided the vessel occupying such crane or staith will not or is not ready to load at night.

All other cranes and staiths, except those allotted for Sydney sailing and steam coasters, to be used by foreign-going vessels as long as they take on board a reasonable quantity of coal; and when not required for such vessels, to be open to first vessel on turn.

If something like the foregoing arrangements were honestly and fairly carried out at Newcastle, I think we should not hear many more complaints, the Government having done, under the circumstances, all they could be expected to do.

BLACK DIAMOND.

CONVICTION OF A QUACK DOCTOR FOR MURDER.—SENTENCE OF DEATH.—On Friday, April 9th, at Liverpool, before Mr. Baron Pollock, Alfred Thomas Heap, a man practising at Manchester as a surgeon, but possessing neither diploma nor certificate, was indicted for the murder of Margaret M'Kivett, a young woman who resided in Hyde Road, Manchester. It was alleged that the prisoner had caused death by endeavouring to procure abortion, and it was contended that this was murder in the eyes of the law, just as if he had actually intended to kill the woman. For the defence, Mr. Foard contended that the indictment for murder could not be sustained. This was overruled by his lordship, who said he would tell the jury that if they believed the prisoner intended to procure abortion, and death resulted, that was murder. Mr. Foard then urged that the case had not been made out, there being no evidence that the prisoner inflicted the wounds. The jury found the defendant guilty, with a recommendation to mercy; but the Judge, in passing sentence of death, held out no hope of it being successful. The prisoner has already served five years' penal servitude for a similar offence.

THE LATEST ABOUT THE CLAIMANT.—In a late issue, in a paragraph relating to the Tichborne Claimant, it was stated that Mr. F. F. Beverin, late Mayor of Sebastopol, had seen the body of a butcher named Arthur Orton, who had been shot by bushrangers in King William Gully, Jim Crow. The lad mentioned, who was sleeping in the butcher's place at the time, and too terrified to move, is, the M. A. Mail asserts, still alive. His name is John Watson. He is at present sluicing at the Dry Diggings, near Mount Franklin, and can give a most vivid account of the atrocious murder. Although so many years have elapsed since the event, the impression produced was so strongly implanted in his memory that the occurrence is as fresh to him as if it had taken place within a month.

WHAT THE "ENGLISHMAN" SAYS.—The whole of the rooks have abandoned the Gray's Inn Gardens. Everybody says this is ominous of its downfall. It never yet was known that any place from which the rooks fled ever remained long after in the possession of its owners. As rats leave rotten ships, so rooks leave rotten tenements. This wretched Guild of Corruption is doomed. As Lord Derby "dished the Whigs," so the Kenealy persecution has "dished" Gray's Inn. Yet a little while, and its place shall know the Benchers no longer. Their hour is come. The funds which they have so long misapplied shall be turned to the public use. The miserable wretches of Benchers will die in universal contempt and hatred. God, who is with Kenealy, will launch His curse at every one of them; they and theirs shall perish amid execration, hootings, and the anathemas of all who prize honour, truth, and justice.

The Melbourne Argus of Tuesday says:—

In the Import markets an extremely quiet day has been passed. Very little inquiry has been experienced for merchandise generally, and complaints of dulness have been most prevalent. Breadstuffs are scarcely so firm. Flour is in very slow sale, and with the commencement of the week we cannot quote over £10 15s. Wheat is also very quiet; for best quality we still continue to quote 5s., and this figure is obtained, though we understand that in an exceptional case 4s 11d was accepted. Oats cannot have failed to have been affected by the large quantities recently to hand, but we understand that the greater portion will be stored in the meantime, importers being unwilling to face the loss which must be incurred by forcing sales. We hear, however, of 4s to 4s 1d having been accepted again for stout milling samples. Maize is firmer again, owing to the small quantities coming forward, as well as the fear that damage will be caused by the flood, and the reports of bad weather experienced in the producing districts. Sales have been making in consequence at 3s 2d to 3s 2½d. In sugars an improving demand is reported for Mauritius sorts. Sales of white are reported at £34 10s, and about 600 bags of brewing sorts have been placed at £33 to £34. We observe that some 3000 bags Java and Mauritius will be offered publicly to-morrow forenoon. Teas are without animation. The new Javas will be offered to-morrow. Sales of soda crystals are mentioned at £10 15s. Kerosene oil is still attracting attention. We hear of 7500 cases Devoe's Brilliant having changed hands on private terms. Sales of Diamond oil are also effected. Children's tobaccos are now coming into very considerable notice, and at the public sale this forenoon the whole of what was offered—124 packages—was readily cleared off at very satisfactory prices, ranging from 10d upwards. 100 tons of Japan dressed rice will be submitted to competition to-morrow. For brandies we note a trade inquiry. Hennessy's case is saleable on the spot at 33s 6d. Trade sales of Hennessy's pale in bulk at 8s 4½d also reach us. Messrs. Dennys, Lascelles, and Co. report the undermentioned wool averages received from their London agents:—"London, 4th June.—In Grease—F over Cherrymount, 1s 1½d; AMC over Ellingerrin, 1s 2¼d; B over Hensley, 1s 4½d; Glenfine (cold water washed) The latter brand realised only 1s 9d in the February sales, showing a rise in price of 3d per lb. on this description of wool.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. In packets and tins (also better, ½ and 1 lb.) Each packet is labelled—"James Epps and Co., homœopathic chemists, London." Manufacture of cocoa.—"We will now give an account of the process adopted by Messrs. Epps and Co., manufacturers of dietetic articles, at their works in the Euston Road, London."—See article in Cassell's Household Guide.—ADV.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

FROM 4TH JUNE TO 11TH JUNE.

THERE was a heavy easterly gale on the 5th instant which caused no inconsiderable inconvenience to the shipping. During all that day, and Sunday last, the sea between the Heads ran unusually high.

WINDSOR.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

MAY 11.—THE LATE FLOOD.—As the water recedes the farms and homesteads present a most melancholy appearance from the accumulation of mud and rubbish of various descriptions. A large extent of the banks has fallen in on both sides of the river, and it is feared that the approaches to the new bridge will be seriously injured. The water is not yet off the floor, where there is lying a great quantity of debris. Much damage has been done to the fences, and it is believed that all the lucerne, wheat, oats, and barley will be ruined. On Monday last, whilst the water was rising, an old man named Fox was saved from drowning at Pitt-town Bottoms, by Mr. Thomas Collison, of Windsor. The water was up to the top of the door, and the old fellow was perched upon the tie beam within his hut, when hearing the report of Collison's gun he cried out for help. Collison and his son who were in a boat, as soon as they discovered where the voice came from, pulled to the hut, and, by handing an oar to Fox succeeded in pulling him out, and thus saving his life. He could not have lived much longer under the circumstances. The weather is keeping fine, and the water is now going down rapidly; but it will be some time before the district presents a healthy appearance.

BOROUGH COUNCIL.—A meeting was held on Wednesday evening last. Present: The Mayor, and Aldermen Walling, Turner, Dean, Crew, Gosper, and Moses. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Correspondence: 1. Letter from Mr. J. A. Dawson, requesting pipes to be laid down at his gateway. 2. From A. Dalton, calling attention to the state of the wharf. 3. From six labourers, asking for an increase in pay of 1s. a day. The first and second were received, and referred to the Works Committee; the last was postponed for further consideration. Alderman Dean brought up a report from the Works Committee. The report stated that Dight-street repairs had been completed at a cost of £11 7s. 3d.; that a lamp should be erected at the toll-gate, Bridge-street; that, with a view of levelling the park, the Works' Committee be authorised to enter into an arrangement with some one to crop the same this season. Alderman Turner brought up a report from the Finance Committee, recommending the payment of accounts amounting to £46 4s. 1s. The reports were received and adopted. The following accounts were referred to the Finance Committee:—Isaacs, printing, 4s.; cashbox and postage, 10s.; Goodlet and Smith, for piping, £62 12s. 10d. Motions: Alderman Watling moved,—"1. That pipes be laid at the intersection of Argyle with George street, at a cost not exceeding £5. 2. That the alignment be carried out from Alderman Walker's allotment to the bridge in George-street, below the railway, and that the old watercourse be filled up. 3. That a finger-board be erected at the intersection of the Richmond Road with George-street, with the words 'Richmond' and 'Penrith' on it." The first two motions were carried; the last was lost upon a division. Alderman Moses moved,—"That the requisition from the labourers, asking for an advance of wages, be deferred for consideration until next meeting." Seconded by Alderman Gosper, and carried."

THE TRANSIT OF VENUS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—Those of your readers who took an interest in the late transit of Venus will be pleased to learn that the observations made in New South Wales and Victoria were duly presented to the Royal Astronomical Society, at their meeting held in March last. The New South Wales photographs do not appear to have accompanied the papers. It will be seen by the "Astronomical Register" of April last that the Windsor diagrams of the transit provoked a very interesting discussion at the meeting as to the nature of the ring or halo which had been observed to surround that part of the planet's limb projected on the sky. Captain Noble, an experienced amateur observer, considered that he had frequently seen the same phenomenon at the inferior conjunctions of the planet, and compared it to the appearance presented by the old moon in the new moon's arms. Mr. Christie, of the Royal Observatory, rightly suggested that what the observers noticed was not a difference of intensity between Venus and the sky. There was, in fact, no marked difference of intensity observed between the dark body of the planet and the sky on which it was projected, but the planet's limb was edged by a comparatively well-defined [illegible] which at egress was particularly [illegible] along the northern regions. SEWERAGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—The recommendation made by the officers of the Corporation—that the sewage of this city should be discharged of in the sea—is a right one, and I think that all who have studied this question will agree that the sea is its proper place. That the cesspits should remain as they are, and be emptied by means of the pneumatic system of suction pipes, I think deserves more consideration.

To make the city perfectly free from the effects of this deadly foe the soil must be kept from contamination, for wherever cesspits exist, no matter how well they may be constructed, the contents escape and percolate through the soil. In a climate like ours, with the soil so poisoned, is it any wonder that dangerous miasmas arise, causing thereby so much destruction to life.

My opinion is that all closet cesspits should be filled up with sand, that a wooden box made perfectly water-tight be used in its place, and the contents to be emptied weekly by means of suction pipe, a deodoriser or disinfectant to be used by every householder as often as needed. To remove the noxious smell is the principal object. I think it would be found more difficult to deodorise the contents of a large pit than the system I have before mentioned.

Hoping these few hints may be useful,

I am, Sir, yours, &c.,

THE GOLD PRODUCTION OF THE WORLD.

(Pall Mall Gazette, March 25.)

THE gold coinage of Germany has so seriously disturbed the money markets of the world, and there is so much apprehension with regard to the future demands for such coinage, that it becomes of interest for men of business to try to determine the stock of gold which at present is available for trade, and also the rate of production of the gold-yielding countries. In addition to the German demand, it must be remembered that there is a demand to make good the wear and tear as well as the casual loss of the existing stock of gold, a demand which is estimated to approach £3,000,000 a year, and also that Japan is likewise coining gold. Furthermore, France is evidently almost ready to resume cash payments, and according to the Act of January last the United States are to resume on New Year's Day, 1879. Lastly, Holland has under consideration a plan for adopting a single gold currency. Italy, Austria, Russia, Turkey, and Spain are all at present under a régime of incontrovertible paper, but there seems little probability of their being speedily in a position to return to cash payments. The only addition to the existing demand to be apprehended in the immediate future, then, will be confined to Germany, Japan, France, the United States, and possibly Holland.

According to a statement published in a recent number of the Economist, the aggregate produce of all the gold mines since 1848 has amounted to £548,540,000. In 1848 it was estimated that the total stock of gold then existing was about £560,000,000. If this estimate was nearly correct, the yield of the mines during the past seven-and-twenty years about equals the whole stock of gold existing in the commercial world at the beginning of the period. But if the wear and tear, and casual losses of the twenty-seven years reached £3,000,000 per annum, there would have to be deducted a total sum of £81,000,000. The existing stock of gold in the commercial world at the present moment would therefore somewhat exceed £1,000,000,000 (one thousand millions) sterling. It would be interesting to ascertain how much of this enormous sum is in the form of gold coin; but, so far as we know, there are no means of determining the question. The productiveness of the mines reached its maximum in 1856, when the aggregate out-turn was £32,000,000:—United States, £15,000,000; Australia, £14,000,000; and Russia, £3,000,000. Since 1856, the yield has been declining. Last year the estimate is £19,250,000, of which Australia produced £8,750,000, the United States no more than £6,000,000, and Russia, £4,500,000. It will be noticed that the falling-off has been by far the greatest in the mines of the United States. In 1856 they were the most productive. Last year they yielded little more than two-thirds of the out-turn of the Australian mines, and not much more than one-third of their own production in 1856. There was a great falling-off in the yield of the Australian mines also. But, on the other hand, there was an increased productiveness in the Russian mines, very considerable relatively, though absolutely not large. Allowing for the £3,000,000 to make good wear and tear, the additional supply last year, to meet the demands of all the world both for coinage purposes and the arts, was but little over £16,000,000, or not greatly more than half the additional supply of 1856. Assuming that no fresh mines are discovered, it would seem probable, therefore, that the rise of prices due to the increased supply of gold has now reached its maximum. Indeed, if the productiveness of the mines continues to decrease, a fall is not improbable. This would undoubtedly be an advantage. On the other hand, since 1848 trade has received extraordinary extension as well as extraordinary development. Much more gold is consequently required for the settlement of international engagements. If the decreasing productiveness of the mines should cause a scarcity of the metal sufficient to embarrass the money markets this trade would necessarily suffer.

In the long run it is, of course, the productiveness of the mines which determines the abundance or scarcity of the metal, and consequently its value. But another circumstance must be taken into account:—the stock of gold which may be hoarded away or held in reserve in the countries where cash payments are at present suspended. With regard to the United States, a recent article in the New York "Financial Chronicle" gives some information on this point. In the year 1859, according to the "Chronicle," the amount of gold and silver in the banks of the United States, in the Treasury, and in circulation was about £40,000,000 sterling. The quantity since raised from the American mines is £179,000,000. Of this latter quantity somewhat less than one-fourth is silver. Assuming that the proportion of silver in the coinage of 1859 was about the same, we find that the gold currency of the United States in that year was about £30,000,000. The total gold raised since the beginning of 1860 has been about £135,000,000, and the total imports £31,000,000, making an aggregate of production and imports of £166,000,000. The total exports during the same period have been £153,000,000. The surplus remaining in the United States, therefore, would be only about £13,000,000. But it should be observed that in 1860, 1861, and 1863 the silver exported is not distinguished from the gold. This would make the gold exports appear larger than they really were, and of course would increase the existing surplus. But on the other hand there was probably some exportation of gold from the Southern States during the civil war, and we shall possibly not err much if we set off the one error against the other. If this were the only stock of specie in the United States, it is evident that before resuming they would have to draw largely upon the European supply, and that consequently a derangement of the money market might be apprehended. The Chronicle, however, estimates that the stock of gold and silver combined amounts at present to about £50,000,000, or to one-fifth more than the total amount of coin in circulation and held as reserve in the banks in 1860. But this stock of £50,000,000 includes not only coin and bullion, but also the manufactured metal. The Chronicle estimates that the manufactured gold and silver does not exceed £12,000,000, and hence that the quantity available for money is £38,000,000.

AMERICAN LIFE.

BY W. HEPWORTH DIXON.

ST. JOHNSBURY, VERMONT, NOVEMBER, 1874.

WHAT are the secrets of this artizan's paradise? Why is the place so clean, the people so well housed and fed? Why are the little folks so hale in face, so smart in person, and so neat in dress? All voices, I am bound to say, reply to me that these unusual, yet desirable conditions in a workmen's village spring from a strict enforcement of the law prohibiting the sale of any species of intoxicating drink.

The men of Vermont, like those of other northern States, have adopted that public Act which is known to English jesters and good fellows under the opprobrious title of the Maine Liquor Law. These adversaries of Bishop Still, and his riotous stave of "Jolly good Ale," command a large majority of votes. They wish to drink water, and they will not stand by and see other men drink beer. They come of stout old border stock, with great capacities for self-denial, and a steady-burning rage for saving weaker persons than themselves. Being virtuous, they abolish cakes and ale, and will not suffer ginger to be hot in the mouth. "We live," they say, "in a commonwealth where every man is free, but we have only one law for all, and what we like to do, you shall be bound by law to do." Hurrah for a majority of votes!

The Maine Liquor Law is a stringent Act, and it is carried out in parts of the New England States with the unflinching rigour of an arctic frost. "What more would you expect?" jeers a passing stranger in the railway car; "would you look for figs on thistles, elk in Broadway, and toleration in the north? Lank men are never sympathetic," cries the stranger. "Look at these bony and cadaverous fellows—men all nerve and passion, but without the indolent good humour that will give and take." "But they have done great things," I urge. "Yes, yes—they have fine qualities—all head, however, no heart. Since they rule us in the south, I cannot help praying with Cæsar, 'Would they were fatter!' You have heard the saying in our country, that fat tames all living creatures, even buffalo and bear. A thin people, with a tendency to water on the blood, we like to crack our jokes about fat men, and what fat men can do and cannot do. We speak of a stout fellow who could grease his waggon wheels with his own shadow, and we say of that sort of fellow that he will never upset Lake Ontario. Such jolly fellows you will seek in vain through these New England States, where people lie under the Maine Liquor Law."

"You think these Good Templars keep their law of abstinence?" "No, not at all;" he answers, "many of these Good Templars are very good tipplers. Perhaps on Sleepers' Creek they may, in some degree—that is to say, the natives may. The French artizans and Irish labourers will have their drink in spite of rules and laws."

So far as I can see the Act is sternly carried out on Sleepers' Creek and Passumpsic River. Not a public-house exists in all St. Johnsbury, nor can a mug of beer, or a glass of wine, be purchased openly by a guest to whom wine and beer are portions of his daily food. No citizen is allowed to vend intoxicating drink on any pretext, or to any person. In the village we have two guest-houses for the entertainment of such as come and go our way; St. Johnsbury House, on the ridge, near to the Athenæum; and Avenue House, in the first hollow, near the railway station. We avoid such words as tavern and hotel, as too much savouring of the bad old times when every man might drink himself into a madhouse and his children into a gaol. Our tavern is a house, I use the form guest-house, from the close resemblance of my lodgings, in the way of meat and drink, to a guest-house on the Dwina and the Nile. It is a water-drinking house, and might be called a water cure. Among the merits of the place, put on cards to catch the eyes of wandering tourists in the Vermont uplands, these two virtues are set forth—first, there is dry air to breathe, and next there is good water to drink. Down South, one hostelry is famous for trout, a second for terrapin, a third for madeira, and a fourth for champagne. No hostelry thinks of advertising the salubrity of its pump. But in St. Johnsbury the well-spirits reign supreme. An American poet of another mind has sung—

> If ere I kneel me down to pray,
> My face shall turn towards St. Peray—!

but such a poet could persuade no man to follow him on Sleepers' Creek. We are the votaries of a severer saint.

No bar, no dramshop, no saloon defiles the place. Nor is there, I am told, a single gaming hell or house of ill-repute. So far as meets the eye the boast is true. Once, in my walks, I fancied there might be an opening in the armour of those Good Templars. Turning from the foreign street, where, in spite of public opinion, Jacques is somewhat careless of his fence, and Pat is lazily tolerant of the cesspool at his doorstep, I read a notice, calling on the passer-by to enter the sporting and smoking bazaar. Here, surely, there must lurk some spice of dissipation. Passing down the steps I see a large vault, running below Avenue House—and conjure up visions of Goethe's weinkeller in Leipsig, the vaults of the Heiliger geist in Maine, and our own supper-rooms in Covent-garden. But on dropping down the steps, I found myself in a big empty room; the floor clean, the walls bright, with a small kiosk in one corner for the sale of cigars and cigarettes, at which a nice-looking matron waits for customers, who are slow to come. "They suffer you to sell tobacco, madam?" "Yes, sir, for the present. Some are bent on putting down the sale, like that of beer and gin; a lecturer was here some nights ago; and in a year or so they may obtain a clear majority of votes." "Your trade will then be gone?" "Yes, clearly." "You, are, perhaps, the last of all your race?" "Well, some one must be last in everything, I guess." I leave her, with a full conviction that there lurks no large amount of wickedness in this sporting and smoking bazaar.

The case is hard for men who have not helped to pass the bill enforcing abstinence by law. So much depends on your consent! A necklace is a pretty thing to wear; but not a necklace such as Gurth, the Saxon wore—fixed round his throat by force.

For my part I have passed through many countries, and been broken to the ways of many men. I have eaten ice with the Druce of Lebanon, and sucked a water melon with a Kirchiz chief; drunk quass with the archimandrite of Pechersk, and gulped the dregs of a tank with an Arab Sheikh; tasted, unwittingly, the saltness of the Dead Sea, and shrunk with loathing from the nauseous ooze of the Bitter Creek. I have lapped the Nile, and lingered by the fountains of Loja. In the absence of wine I can drink water with a Good Templar, and live in comfort on tea and milk. But an Oxonian near me, reared on foot-ball ground and cricket field, requires beer. "Can you get me a pint of ale?" It is a crucial test, and I regard the waiter's face, while seeming not to notice him. "Well, sir, it may be got." "Then bring me some." "Yes, sir; but it will take some time; I have to send for it." "To send for it—where from?" "From the Commissioner's." "Pray, who is this Commissioner?" "Who is this Commissioner!" "Yes, yes; excuse me for the question, I am but a stranger in these parts." "The Commissioner, sir, is the town officer appointed by law to sell poisons, as I have heard your druggists are in London." "Very good; then get me a pint bottle of the poison called Bass's Pale Ale."

The waiter disappears; but in a moment he returns with pen and paper in his hand. "You must be kind enough to write an order for the ale, and sign your name to it for record." "Sign my name for what?" "For record, sir; the town commissioner is bound to enter on his books the name of every one to whom he issues from his store a bottle of beer." "Then I shall have a place in the archives of St. Johnsbury for my sins." "The ale will certainly be posted against you," he rejoins; saying which the man pops out of door. Dinner is nearly done when he comes back, laden with a couple of pint bottles, labelled with the name and mark of Bass. "You've been long in coming, but your chief appears to be a liberal fellow. We require a pint; he sends a quart." "The fact is, sir," the waiter answers with a leer, "it's my doing. There are two of you in all; one pint is little enough for one; and our Commissioner dare not serve you a second time to-day. I told him the order meant one pint for each."

My own inquiries satisfy me that the man is right. Intoxicating drinks are classed with poisons, such as laudanum and arsenic; but as poisons may be needed in a civilized country, under a scientific system of medicine, laudanum and arsenic are permitted to be sold in every civilized State. Such is here the case with brandy, beer, and wine. A public officer is appointed by a public vote. The town lays in a stock of brandy, beer, and wine, which is carefully registered in books and kept under lock and key. These poisons are doled out at the discretion of this officer, in small quantities, very much as deadly nightshade and nux vomica are doled out by a London druggist. "Cannot you get a bottle of cognac for your private use?" I ask Colonel Fairbanks. "I can send my order," he replies, "for a pint of cognac; it will be sent to me of course; but my order for it will be filed and the delivery entered on the public books for every one to see." "You find that system rather inquisitorial, do you not?" "Well, no; it is intended for the common good, and every-one submits to what is for the good of all. We freely vote the law, and freely keep the law. But for myself the rule is a dead letter, since no intoxicating drink ever entered my house."

In going through the mills, I notice the several classes of artizans. Five hundred men are toiling in the various rooms. The work is mostly hard; in some departments very hard. The heat is often great. From seven o'clock till twelve, from one o'clock till seven—ten hours each day—the men are at their posts. The range of heat and cold is trying, for the summer sun is fierce, the winter frost is keen. Your ordinary citizen cannot live through the summer heats without a trip to Lake Champlain and the Adirondack mountains. Yet the men engaged in these manufactories of scales are said to drink no beer, no whisky, and no gin. Drinking and smoking are not allowed on the premises. Such orders might be only meant for discipline, but I am told that these five hundred workmen never taste a drop of beer or gin. Their drink is water, their delight is tea. Yet everyone assures me that they work well, enjoy good health, and live as long as persons of their class employed on farms. "These men," I ask, "who rake the furnaces, who carry the burning metals, and who stand about the crucibles—can they go on all day without their beer?" "They never taste a drop, and never ask to have a drop. There is a can of water near them; they like the taste of water better than the fume of ale, and do their work more steadily without such fumes."

In fact, I find that these intelligent craftsmen are the warmest advocates of the prohibitive liquor law. They voted for it in the outset; they have voted for it ever since. Each year of trial makes them more fanatical in its favour. Since the Act came into force new clauses have been added by the State Legislature. Party questions often turn on the liquor law, and these intelligent workmen always vote for those who promise to extend its operations. They would gladly crush the sale of intoxicating liquors once for all, and I am led to fancy that some of them would not hesitate to make the sale a capital offence.

"You see," says Colonel Fairbanks, "we are a nervous and vehement race. Our air is dry and quick; our life an eager and unsleeping chase. When we work, we work hard. When we drink, we drink deep. It is natural, that when we abstain we should abstain with rigour."

"Are there no protests?" "None, or next to none; a year and year goes by, more persons come to see the benefits of our rule. The men who formerly drank most are now the stanchest friends of our reform. These men, who used to dress in rags, are growing rich. Many of them live in their own houses. They attend their churches, and their children go to school."

These facts are not to be suppressed by shrugs and sneers. It is an easy thing to sneer, and some unconscious comedy turns up at every corner to provoke a laugh. "Oblige me," I entreat my sober host, when going to bed, "with a glass of soda-water." "Sorry, sir; we have no sodawater in the house." "A glass of seltzer-water or congress-water?" "Sorry, sir; we have none in the house." "Why not? Are these intoxicating drinks prohibited by law?" "Oh, no; they sell them at the druggist's shop." "Then please to get me some." "Excuse me, sir; it is too late; the druggist's shop is closed." The fact is so. Turning to my host, I ask him why he does not keep such things as soda-water and seltzer-water for sale. "We have no customers for them. Guess it's people who drink brandy that mostly ask for soda-water!"

Should a tipsy stranger be taken in the street (as sometimes happens, though the case is rare), he is seized like a stray donkey, run into a pond, and kept apart till he has slept away the fumes of his abominable dram. An officer then inquires where he got his drink. On telling, he is set free, and the person who sold the liquor is arrested, tried, and punished for the man's offence. The vendor, not the buyer, is responsible for this breach of moral order. It is just the same, whether the person supplying the liquor sells it or gives it away; so that a man entertaining his friends at dinner has to stand before the magistrate and answer for the post-prandial conduct of his several guests. One can imagine how this rule is likely to promote good fellowship round the mahogany tree!

These drawbacks may be taken off the sum of public benefits. What then remains? the workman's paradise remains; a village which has all the aspect of a garden; a village in which many of the workmen are owners of real estate; a village of nearly five thousand inhabitants, in which the moral order is even more conspicuous than the material prosperity; a village in which every man accounts it his highest duty and his personal interest to observe the law. No authority is visible in St Johnsbury. No policeman walks the streets—on ordinary days there is nothing for a policeman to do. Six constables are enrolled for duty, but the men are all at work in the scale manufactories; and only don their uniform on special days, to make a little show.

Some part, and perhaps the larger part, of these beneficent results, must be assigned to the platform scale—that special industry which seeks out quick and steady men, and by rewarding them beyond the ordinary rate of wages, helps them to grow rich. A house and garden steadies a man, as if by magic. But the law of abstinence came in, no doubt, to harden and complete the work.

On looking up and down the streets, so lovely in the moonlight and on weighing all the visible results against my lack of soda-water, and even against the dinner-giver's responsibility for his guests, I sip my broken ice, and go to bed with a more kindly feeling towards the principle of the Vermont Liquor Law.

ABSTRACT OF SALES BY AUCTION THIS DAY.

LAW.

SUPREME COURT.—FRIDAY, JUNE 11.

SITTINGS IN BANCO.

ore Sir JAMES MARTIN (Chief Justice), Mr. Justice RGRAVE, and Mr. Justice FAUCETT.

THE QUEEN V. LIVINGSTONE.

is was a Crown case reserved, stated by Mr. Justice grave. The defendant was convicted of obtaining y by false pretences. It appeared that he had been he employ of a Mr. Costigan, who could write no e than his name. Costigan told him to write a letter to rs. Mort and Co. about some wool. The defendant d, without authority, a request that Messrs. Mort and would make an advance on the wool and pay it to the ndant. Costigan signed the letter without knowing ontents. The defendant went to Messrs. Mort and Co. obtained money on the credit of the letter.

r. W. J. Foster appeared for the Crown; there was no rance for the defendant.

he COURT, without calling on counsel for the Crown, ld the conviction. The case was too clear for argu- The representation that Costigan had authorized the ndant to receive the money was a sufficient false pre- e within the statute, although Costigan had signed the r.

THE QUEEN V. MACQUARIE AND BUDGE.

r. W. J. Foster, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, ared to support the conviction; Mr. Salamons and Pilcher, instructed by Messrs. Curtis and Gannon, ared for the defendant Macquarie; and Sir George s, instructed by Messrs. Slade and Smith, for the ndant Budge.

he defendants were tried and convicted on the 3rd of e last, at the Quarter Sessions held at Darlinghurst following case was stated for the opinion of the rt:—

he above-named defendants (together with one Edward lmer) were tried before me at the last Quarter Sessions, en in Sydney, on an information which contained three ts. The first count charged them with having attempted to y a vessel, whereby the life of one John Mason was endan- d. To this count it is not necessary further to refer, as the ndants were acquitted on it. The second count charged them having committed a common assault upon the said John on; and the third charged them with assaulting and im- ning the said John Mason, &c., &c.

the proper consideration and determination of the question matter reserved, it is only necessary to set forth the follow- facts, and state the following evidence:—

the part of the Crown, it was proved that the defendant, quarie, owned, or he used the ship-building yard known as ner's, Miller's Point, Darling Harbour; and that the other ndant (Budge) was Macquarie's foreman of works. Macquarie possessed of a small launch or yacht propelled by screw, able of steaming at the rate of between nine or ten knots an r, some days before the day next mentioned, by bill of sale, for due consideration, absolutely assigned his interest in the t to one Shepherd Smith on behalf of the Bank of New South es. Macquarie being in difficulties, the bank deemed it pru- t to take possession of the yacht, and for that purpose, on the rty-first day of May last, the said John Mason, being duly ed with a written authority under the signature of Shepherd th, and having in his possession the bill of sale itself, went he wharf of the defendant Macquarie. There he found the t with steam up, about to take a pleasure party up the r, she being in the charge and under the control of one ard Woolmer, who is the person referred to in the first para- ph of this case, and was in the employ of the defendant quarie as engineer. Mason showed to Woolmer his authority the possession of the yacht, but upon its being represented she was about to go on a picnic, the Bank was communicated and the vessel was allowed to proceed, Mason being taken r. Neither of the defendants, Macquarie and Budge, went on occasion.

he yacht returned from the picnic shortly after 5 o'clock, and r landing her passengers at the Circular Quay, proceeded t to the defendant Macquarie's wharf. Arrived here, defen- t Budge made his appearance, and the engineer Woolmer then Mason that Budge was Macquarie's foreman.

he following evidence was then given by Mason:—"I asked olmer if defendant Budge had got any authority for taking yacht?" Woolmer replied "that he had." Budge then e some instructions to Woolmer about the yacht, and amongst er things said that Macquarie would want the vessel at 7 ck that night. Budge came on board and went into the on, and Mason said to him, "I suppose you know what gs me here?" Budge replied, "You have no right here." en replied, "I know you have the authority that brings me e, and I have the document upon which that is founded." I mpted to take the bill of sale out of my pocket. Budge then ed away, and said he did not want to know about such docu- ts; that Macquarie had had a meeting of his creditors, that matters are arranged, and he is now carrying on business he was ten months ago." He said I had better go and see acquarie, to which I replied, "No." Budge added, "The ch is not Macquarie's at all, but mine." He then said, "Will u go on shore? Macquarie will want the launch at 7 o'clock." aid, "I cannot." He replied, "If you do not go that side ll go to a punt—the launch was moored to a punt—) you go the other" (pointing to the water). I replied nothing. en Budge went on to the punt, and as he was proceeding there id if I had scientific knowledge or could get any one to remove I would. He replied, "Don't you dare lay hands on the chinery, or get any one to do so." I added I would if I possibly ld. Budge then left the wharf, telling the engineer to wait il 7 o'clock for Macquarie. At 8 o'clock Macquarie and ge came to the wharf together—Mason addressing Macquarie —"I suppose you know what brings me here?" Macquarie "Who are you? I did not invite you—what do you want re?" Mason replied "I gave your engineer the authority by ch I am here." Addressing Budge I told him that Macquarie d that he had not got the authority—Budge replied that Mac- rie had it.

Mason then proved that he attempted to take out of his pocket bill of sale, upon which Macquarie replied he did not want to such documents, Macquarie added, "I am sorry the Bank put you in such a position, it is not a comfortable place to the night in; Macquarie then shortly afterwards stepped on depot and ordered the cushions, carpets, and bridge mats to taken out of the yacht and placed in his office on shore—Mac- rie then returned on board again and said to me "Will you on shore?" I said "I cannot." Macquarie then said "Sup- I make or force you?" I said "I must resist." He took by the left arm and said "You go on shore now;" he held my arm with his two hands without violence—I held back—I heard Budge address Macquarie, and say to him "You come shore Macquarie, and leave Mason to me." Macquarie went ashore, and Budge went on board and said to me "Will you go ashore Mr. Mason?" I replied "I cannot." Budge then snatched rope off, and handed it to Macquarie on shore, Budge then d "We will moor to the buoy" (which was some few yards from the wharf). Budge steered her then (at that time he, Woolmer, and Mason were the only persons on board). Budge and Woolmer were about mooring her when they discovered that they no boat to land in, and expressed an intention to come back the when Macquarie said, "Bring her alongside stern first." The launch was so brought. Macquarie then said "You, Budge, come on shore." Budge went on shore to where Macquarie was standing. They stood talking together for some time in a whisper, at length Macquarie said, "Bring the end of her stern to the end of the punt." That order having been complied with Macquarie said to me, "Will you come on shore?" I said, "I cannot." Macquarie said, "You have charge of the launch, have you?" I replied, "Yes." Macquarie then said to Woolmer, "Turn full speed ahead and jump ashore." Woolmer appeared to hesitate, and Macquarie repeated the order more peremptorily; Mason (seeing that the order was about to be obeyed) stepped forward to Woolmer and said, "I have now charge of the boat, will you enter the service of the Bank of New South Wales?" He replied, looking towards Macquarie, "That is my master." As the engines began to move the engineer jumped on shore, and the launch went ahead quickly, and as she started Macquarie said, "Let the Bank of New South Wales have her, and be damned." When the vessel was cast adrift the side lights (red and green) had been put out, and she had but one light affixed to the funnel. Mason proved that when the engineer left her he (Mason) was the only person in the yacht; that he had no knowledge of working machinery, and literally knew nothing about the navigation of a steamer. He at length found out how to steer, having been at fault in his first effort. He proved that he was afloat fully half an hour, and not having the knowledge how to stop the steamer, he had to make several circuits before he was rescued by some men from the Scotland steamer, which vessel he hailed several times for assistance. One of those who came to his rescue proved that at that time the launch was steaming at the rate of seven knots an hour. In answer to a question put by the Chairman, Mason proves that he possibly could have left the vessel when the engineer did; but he wanted to remain by the vessel according to his instructions. In cross-examination, Mason admitted to Woolmer, when alone, that, had he got possession of the launch, he intended, by means of assistance, to have taken her to Rowntree's wharf, which is the next wharf to Cuthbert's.

At the conclusion of the case for the Crown, Sir George Innes contended that there was no case to go to the jury on the third count.

I refused to stop the case, and, after some evidence was given for the defendants, the several counsel who appeared for the defendants addressed the jury.

In leaving the case with the jury amongst other things I fully explained what constituted an assault, and what an assault and false imprisonment, and as to the latter whether there was a detention of John Mason against his will amounting to an imprisonment, which was a question of fact for them (the jury) to determine from the evidence, but as my ruling on this score is not questioned it is not necessary more particularly to refer to it.

The jury, after consideration, found the defendants Macquarie and Budge guilty only of the offences charged in the second and third counts and acquitted Woolmer entirely, and I passed a similar sentence upon each defendant—namely, a fine of forty shillings upon the second count and imprisonment in Darlinghurst gaol for three months upon the third count.

Both the defendants are now undergoing their respective sentences.

During the trial, at the request of the counsel for the two defendants, I reserved for the consideration of their Honors the Judges of the Supreme Court the following questions, namely:—

Whether there was evidence to establish an assault and false imprisonment in law.

And whether the Chairman should not have withdrawn the third count from the consideration of the jury.

The CHIEF JUSTICE, after stating the material facts of the case, said that the point for the consideration of the Court was whether those facts afforded evidence of an imprisonment. He was clearly of opinion that they did not. Mason was continually, according to his own evidence, invited, even pressed, to go ashore. But he would not go, and remained on board voluntarily. The Court had nothing to do with the rights of the bank or Mason in this matter. It might be that Mason, as the bank's agent, was entitled to take possession; but that could make no difference. His right to remain there so long as he did remain of his own accord could not make another person guilty of the offence of false imprisonment. He remained on board voluntarily, and in order to discharge his duty to the bank—that was his own voluntary act. Suppose Macquarie and Budge had remained on board and gone steaming about the harbour, could that have been held to be an imprisonment? And was not that a stronger case than this, where they left the launch entirely in his control? Or to take the case of a mortgagee under a bill of sale going on board a vessel just about to start — if he refused to leave when told to go, and the captain started on his voyage and took him out to sea; would that be a false imprisonment? There must have been hundreds of such cases, but no one had ever heard of such conduct on the part of a captain of a ship made the subject of a criminal charge. There must be an actual detention of the person in some place to constitute an imprisonment. But here Mason was not detained, for he was told over and over again to go. His remaining on board was his own act and not the result of any compulsion by Macquarie. If his being sent adrift in this manner constituted a false imprisonment, the accidental fact of there being steam power on board could make no difference, and it would have been equally an imprisonment if the launch had been pushed out a yard or two from the shore without turning the steam on. In the case of Bird v. Jones, 72 B, 742, cited in the argument, Mr. Justice Patteson gave the following definition of imprisonment: "I have no doubt that, in general, if one man compels another to stay in any given place against his will, he imprisons that other just as much as if he locked him up in a room." If Macquarie and Budge had compelled Mason to stay in the yacht, that would have been an imprisonment; but on the contrary they did all they could to induce him to leave. In the same case Mr. Justice Williams said: "I am aware of no case nor of any definition which warrants the supposition of a man being imprisoned during the time that an escape is open to him if he chooses to avail himself of it," and the contrary opinion of Lord Denman must go for nothing, as it was overruled by the majority of the Court of Queen's Bench. One thing which showed that there was no false imprisonment here was that, in order to make out a case of a criminal offence, it became necessary to go into the merits of the case. But the Court had nothing to do with the merits. The right of Mason to be there, the danger to which he was exposed in a launch going at such high speed, his want of skill or experience in the management of steam launches, could not affect the question whether there had been an imprisonment or not. The conviction ought to be set aside on the ground that the evidence clearly showed that he was on board by his own act, and that therefore there could be no imprisonment. At any rate, his Honor thought, even if he were wrong as to Macquarie's liability, that there was no evidence to convict Budge. A man was not to be held guilty of a criminal offence because just before an act was done he was seen whispering to the person who did it. His participation in the act must be clearly proved to make him criminally responsible."

Mr. Justice HARGRAVE would be the last person to extend the criminal law, but in this case he was of opinion that the jury took the view dictated both by common sense and common law. Now what were the facts of the case? Here was a person sent adrift in a steam-launch at full speed. Was that not a criminal offence? The jury, like sensible men, had seen what would be the effect if boats of this kind were set in motion about the harbour with persons incapable of managing them on board! Then as to the law, the case was clearly one of imprisonment. By the launch being put in motion by the defendants, Mason was deprived of his liberty to go where he liked. It was said that they did not compel him to stay; but the boat was started by the act of Macquarie. In the case of Bird v. Jones, though Lord Denman differed from the rest of the Court, the judgment of Mr. Justice Williams showed that there was no conflict as to the principles of the law applicable to imprisonment, but only as to the application of the principle to that particular case. And the opinion of so eminent a Judge as Lord Denman on the definition of imprisonment ought to be looked upon with respect. Lord Denman said:—"If I am locked in a room am I not imprisoned, because I might effect my escape through a window, or because I might find an exit dangerous and inconvenient to myself, as by wading through water, or by taking a route so circuitous that my necessary affairs would suffer by delay?" And this was the clear rule of law. Where a ship was set in motion with a human being in it, and his only way of going out is to jump into the water, could it be said that he was not imprisoned? The question of imprisonment could not depend on his power of steering or managing the vessel, or on his chance of getting out or being taken out by some one else. No person was to be presumed to be capable of managing a steam-launch—in fact, the presumption ought to be the other way. It was quite clear to his Honor's mind that it was a criminal offence to set afloat a boat with a person in it against his wish. Mason was willing to stay on the launch as long as it remained at its moorings, but this was not the time when he complained of being detained. The imprisonment began when the boat was set in motion, and continued till he got off. As to the case of Budge, he acted in concert with Macquarie throughout, and also represented himself to Mason as the owner of the launch. He whispered something to Macquarie and immediately afterwards the order was given to send the launch adrift. This was amply sufficient to connect Budge with what was done, and the jury had drawn a legitimate conclusion from the conduct of the parties. The conviction ought to be upheld.

Mr. Justice FAUCETT had kept his mind open to conviction throughout the case until the moment he had to deliver judgment, but had been confirmed in the impression which he had at the very outset of the arguments that this was a false imprisonment. The case was certainly novel in its facts—no such case ever appeared to have been tried in our legal history. It was for the Court to apply well known principles to the facts, and to see that the facts were brought clearly within some principle of the criminal law. Now there was no doubt that Mason was determined to stay on board. He had a right to be there; he was unlawfully ordered to leave; and he was evidently determined to stick to the ship even if Macquarie were to take it up to Newcastle. Even assuming that he was wrongfully on board, and putting it most favourably for Macquarie, he was there by his own free will; whether there legally or not was of no consequence. Under these circumstances Macquarie did an act the necessary consequence of which was to deprive Mason of complete control over the ship. Now, it was contended that the maxim volenti non fit injuria applied. If a man were in a place of his own free will, so long as the exercise of his free will continued, there could be no imprisonment; but as soon as he was deprived of his free will, that would be imprisonment. This steam-launch was a prison just as much as any other place from which a person could not get away at any time he liked. The case of Bird v. Jones had been referred to. There the fact of the plaintiff being stopped from going along a road in a certain direction was held not to amount to imprisonment, because there was nothing to prevent him from going another way. His Honor agreed with the majority of the Court in that case, that imprisonment must mean entire restraint of the exercise of one's will. But the principle of law relied on in Lord Denman's judgment was not disputed, and was sound: it was only held not applicable to the facts of that case. But it might be applied in cases where it was applicable. But the judgment of Mr. Justice Patteson in that case, and his statement of the laws was equally relied upon by his Honor as supporting his decision. Here was Mason on board the vessel, desirous of remaining there, but by the action of Macquarie deprived of any control. Although on board by his own desire, and willing to remain there as long as she was at her moorings, or was taken to Rowntree's wharf, he was compelled to go out of his way against his will. The facts clearly came within the definition of imprisonment given in Bird v. Jones. There was no difference between the case of a steam-launch and a common boat, and if a person were sent adrift in an ordinary skiff it would be imprisonment just the same. His Honor was unwilling to extend the criminal law, but he thought this act came within it, as preventing Mason from having full control of his actions. The evidence against Budge was very slight still there was sufficient to go to the jury.

The conviction was therefore upheld.

FISHER V. FERGUSON.

Mr. Salomons, instructed by Messrs. Deane and Deane appeared to support a rule nisi for restoring this case to the paper; Mr. Butler, Q.C., instructed by Mr. Yeomans, opposed the rule.

This was a motion for a new trial, which had been set down for hearing last term, and in the absence of the moving party was struck out of the paper. The application to restore it was based on affidavits stating that it was not expected to come on for argument on the day on which it appeared in the paper, as it was understood that two cases set down before it would take the whole day.

The COURT held that the applicant had no grounds for its restoration as a matter of right, but allowed it as a favour, on the terms that the costs of the opposing party on this motion should be taxed and paid, and the case set down in the paper at the head of the new trial motions, and come on first for argument, its hearing to be conditional on the payment of the costs.

DIVORCE COURT.

BEFORE his Honor Mr. Justice HARGRAVE.

WILSON V. WILSON.

This was a case in which his Honor had, in October last, granted a decree nisi for dissolution of marriage. Mr. Teece, instructed by Mr. Greer, now moved to make the decree absolute. Petitioner is Mrs. Mary Kirkham Wilson, a boarding-house keeper in Sydney, and the respondent Robert Wilson, is now in California, but formerly resided in Sydney. The grounds upon which the decree was granted were desertion, cruelty, and adultery. Mr. Wilson at one time carried on sheep farming in New Zealand, and subsequently opened a draper's shop in Pitt-street, Sydney. An affidavit from Mr. Chipman, an attorney in California, was read, showing that process in the suit had been duly served upon respondent, and that respondent had acknowledged that he was the person named in the petition as the respondent. It was also proved that no objections to the divorce had been filed. His Honor made the decree absolute, thus dissolving the marriage.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.

FRIDAY.

BEFORE Mr. District Court Judge WILKINSON.

CA. SA. MOTIONS.

A number of ca. sa. motions were heard, and various orders were made.

NEW TRIAL MOTIONS.

There was on the list a number of new trial motions, but there was no appearance in any of them.

WRIGHT V. ABIGAIL AND ANOTHER.

Plaintiff sued to recover from the defendants the sum of £30. Plaintiff failed to appear, and defendants were awarded five guineas as compensation for trouble and loss of time in appearing to defend the action.

BOROUGH OF WAVERLEY V. MARTIN.

The borough of Waverley sued to recover from a ratepayer named John Martin the sum of £13 6s. 8d., said to be due for rates. A verdict was given for half the amount of the claim, viz., £6 13s. 4d.

YEATES V. O'CONNOR.

Plaintiff sued to recover the sum of £13 12s. 6d., affirmed to be due for goods sold and delivered. His Honor gave a verdict for plaintiff—amount, £10 14s. 6d.

FERGUSON V. MULLINS.

Plaintiff sued to recover from the defendant the sum of £82 10s., alleged to be due to him (the plaintiff) for commission, at 2½ per cent., on the sale of Eveleigh House and grounds for the sum of £3300. The plea for the defence was one of never indebted. The plaintiff, who is a commission, land, and estate agent, said that he waited upon Mr. Mullins at his office, and told him that he thought he could find a purchaser for Eveleigh House and grounds, which he had recently bought; they had a conversation together, and Mr. Mullins said that he would be willing to part with the house and grounds for £4000, although they were worth more; he said that he did not think that he would be able to get that sum, as there was apparently a defect in the title; plaintiff said to Mr. Mullins, "You must hand to me a commission if I effect a sale;" and he replied, "Oh, that is all right—I will see what I can do;" plaintiff afterwards had negotiations with a gentleman named Mitchell for the sale of the house and grounds, but he would not make an offer higher than £2500; he told Mr. Mullins the result of the negociations, and he said that if he were to get £4000, he would give plaintiff £200; he afterwards introduced to Mr. Mullins a gentleman named Reynolds as a purchaser, and this gentleman did purchase Eveleigh House for £3300; when plaintiff told Mr. Mullins of the negotiations between himself and Mr. Reynolds, he said to him, "You must stand me a good commission," to which he replied, "Well, we won't quarrel about that;" on understanding that a sale had been effected to Mr. Reynolds, witness sent in an account for £82 10s. for commission; Mr. Mullins, after this, told the plaintiff that he was not entitled to commission from him, as he (plaintiff) was not present when the sale had been effected to Reynolds, and had not been engaged by defendant on commission to effect the sale. Mr. Reynoldson being examined deposed to the purchase of the house and grounds; he had a conversation with Mr. Ferguson about the place before he saw Mr. Mullins on the same subject; Mr. Ferguson took him and showed him over the place before he became a purchaser. Mr. Mullins, before this, said that Mr. Ferguson would show him over the grounds, but not over the house, as he did not wish the tenant to be disturbed; he (Mr. Reynolds) had lately been offered for the property £6000; the reason why no more was given in the first instance for the property was because there was something of a hitch in the title. By Mr. R. Smith (of Slade and Smith), for the defendant: Mr. Reynolds said that the contract was drawn up and ratified in Mr. Mullins's office. Mr. Mills gave evidence as to 2½ per cent. being the usual rate for commission, where there had been no special agreement. This was the case for the plaintiff. The evidence of the defendant as to the conversations which took place between himself and the plaintiff differed greatly from that of Mr. Ferguson. Defendant denied that he had ever made any agreement with the plaintiff as to a sale of the house and land to either Mr. Mitchell or Mr. Reynolds; he had never promised to give Mr. Ferguson commission if a certain sum were obtained for the property. The fact was, that it was not his intention to sell till the title was made perfect. The terms of the sale had been agreed to between himself (defendant) and Mr. Reynolds. After the sale had been completed, he received a letter from Mr. Ferguson, which he placed in the hands of his solicitor. His Honor gave a verdict for the plaintiff in the full amount, with four witnesses' costs. Mr. Simpson, instructed by Mr. Read, for the plaintiff; and Mr. Robert Smith, of Slade and Smith, for the defendant.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

FRIDAY.

BEFORE Messrs. Jolly, Reading, and Levey.

Nine persons were fined for drunkenness, or for disorderly conduct while drunk, in sums varying from 5s to 20s.

Mary Smith was sentenced to be imprisoned three months, and Sarah Jones, six months, on conviction of being idle and disorderly persons, having neither fixed abode nor lawful means of support.

Charles Maxted, charged with having stolen a bottle of brandy, of the value of 6s., the property of George Vidler, of Five Dock, pleaded guilty, and received sentence of one month's imprisonment.

Ann Miley was summarily convicted of having stolen sundry articles of wearing apparel, valued at 20s., the property of Bridget Dowling, and was sentenced to be imprisoned seven days.

Before Captain Scott.

John Egan, a youth of about 19, was charged with having been concerned with others in feloniously killing and murdering one Sheik Ali. Detective Murray deposed that on the 3rd of June he apprehended the prisoner on this charge. George Smith, shingler, residing in North-street, deposed that on Sunday evening, about four weeks ago, he, in consequence of something said to him by one Atherton, went to the corner of Clarence-street and Market-street, where was a man named Seales, standing against a post, under the verandah of Sayle's public-house; a coloured man was also there, whose name he has heard was Sheik Ali, and the prisoner; prisoner and Ali were jawing, and witness went between them; prisoner went out into the street, and Ali pulled off his coat, jumped past witness, and followed prisoner; deceased made a grasp at prisoner, who then began to spar, and made a hit at deceased, but whether the blow reached him, witness cannot tell; deceased made another grab at prisoner, who ducked under his arm, caught him by the hair, and hit him somewhere on the head; witness shoved prisoner over the deceased, who, when he got up, said, "Look at my eye;" there was a cut under his left eye; witness took up deceased's coat, gave it to him, and deceased went away, up Market-street, in the direction of York-street; witness and prisoner went along Market-street as far as Kent-street, where Atherton and Peters joined them; they tried to get prisoner home, who was the worse for liquor, and on their attempting to force him he cried out "Police," and they let him go; saw no woman with Ali; saw an account in the Herald of Tuesday following of a man having been taken to the Infirmary with a cut under his eye. By Mr. Driver: Prisoner made no attempt to strike until deceased had twice grabbed at him. William Henry Seale deposed that, about 11 p.m. of Sunday, the 16th May, he saw the coloured man and a woman sitting in the side doorway of Sayle's public house; prisoner went to the door and looked into the coloured man's face, who shoved him away; prisoner then struck him, and the two stood quarrelling for some minutes, until Smith came up. The rest of his deposition was to the same effect as that of Smith. Alfred Atherton gave similar evidence, and the prisoner was remanded until Friday (this day). Dr. Halket, of the Sydney Infirmary, gave evidence of the state in which he found Ali on receiving him into that institution, and that his death was caused by injury to the larynx, which had been previously diseased. Dr. Brady concurred generally with the evidence of Dr. Halket. Bridget Mooney deposed that between 11 and 12 o'clock on the night of Sunday, the 16th May, she met Sheik Ali coming out of a public-house, at the corner of King-street and George-street, and asked him for a penny; they walked together into Clarence-street, and sat on the step of Sayle's public house until three men came up, one of whom struck Ali; she went away to Duffin's, and coming back saw the three men going away; found Ali standing against the wall, with marks of blood on his face; he was then without his coat, which, while she was away, he had taken off; he walked away towards York-street, and she went in another direction; she next saw him lying dead at the Infirmary; she does not recognise the prisoner, or anyone present, as either of the three men of whom she has spoken. Constable Curtis deposed that a few minutes before midnight of Sunday, the 16th May, he and constable Mulqueeny found a dark man lying on the footway of Market-street, and lifted him to a sitting position; he seemed to be unconscious, and was bleeding from a wound on the forehead, near the eye; his coat was under his head; they took him to the station-house. Constable Potter deposed that he and Mulqueeny conveyed Sheik Ali from the lock-up to the Infirmary, where he was seen by Dr. Brady. This closed the case for the prosecution. The Police Magistrate, without calling upon Mr. Driver to address, said that he saw no case for the consideration of the jury, and discharged the prisoner.

Before Messrs. Oatley, Cohen, Powell, and Holborow.

On the summons paper were seventeen cases, of which one was dismissed, two were postponed, and five were not prosecuted. In Harris v. Goode, the defendant, a bailiff, was charged, as the servant of William Bailey, with having, on or about the 18th August, 1872, embezzled the sum of £2 William H. Harris deposed that he collects the rents for Mr. Bailey under the authority of a power-of-attorney, and acting on that authority, distrained upon the goods of one M'Keown for rent due; he employed defendant as the bailiff, who afterwards sent him in a letter the sum of £3 3s. 6d., leaving a balance of £2 3s. 6d., which he has not paid. By Mr. Croft: Defendant sent the letter by hand, but afterwards admitted to witness that he did send it; defendant told him that he had not received the rest of the money—that the woman "bested" him out of it. Anne M'Keown deposed that in August, 1872, defendant came to her house to levy for £5 rent due to Mr. Bailey, and she paid him £5 6s., taking his receipt. In reply, defendant asserted his innocence. Committed for trial at the Quarter Sessions; bail allowed. Michael Cunningham was found guilty of endangering public safety by carelessly driving an omnibus on the Newtown Road, and was fined 50s.; George Rowley and Walter Adly were fined 2s. 6d. for allowing animals to stray; Joseph Bryson, Patrick Kenny, and Henry Gowin were fined 5s. each for offending against the Drunkards Punishment Act; and John Murphy was found guilty of stealing wood from the land of Emanuel Neich, of Burwood, and was for his offence sentenced to pay a penalty of 40s.

WATER POLICE COURT.

FRIDAY.

BEFORE the Water Police Magistrate, with Messrs. M'Beath, Hunt, Voss, and Macmahon.

Four persons were fined for drunkenness.

John Calder was fined 5s. for having been drunk and disorderly in George-street.

Before Messrs. Oatley and Solomon.

James Lees was charged with having, on the 29th of January last, committed an indecent assault upon one Elizabeth Waudby. Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Mr. Hourigan, appeared for complainant; Mr. Simpson, instructed by Mr. Dawson, appeared for defendant. The case for the prosecution was simply as follows:—The complainant is the wife of one George Waudby, who lately kept the Britannia Hotel, Paddington. The defendant's mother-in-law was the owner of the hotel, and the defendant acted as her agent. In January last there were negotiations for the transfer of the hotel to a Mr. Commins. On the 29th of the month defendant went to the hotel to settle. Mrs. Commins and a gentleman were present; Mr. Commins was not there, and, at the defendant's instance, Waudby went for him. When he had gone defendant suggested to the complainant that they had better go upstairs and look over the premises before they were let to Mr. Commins. Complainant consented, and they both went upstairs. When they got to the top story, the third, the defendant caught hold of the complainant, and assaulted her in a manner she described. Several witnesses were called for the prosecution, and several also for the defence. The latter contradicted the complainant in some parts of her evidence, and it was shown that she had said that the complainant had never insulted her. After hearing addresses from counsel, the Bench committed the defendant to take his trial at the next ensuing Court of Quarter Sessions. Bail was allowed.

Several persons were fined for having committed breaches of the Corporation and Transit Commission by-laws.

LICENSING BUSINESS.—An application for the transfer of the license of the Clarendon Hotel, Manly Beach, from Patrick Donnelly to Charlotte Sargint, was granted. A pawnbroker's license was granted to Albert Tyler.

OUR BRISBANE LETTER.

JUNE 9.

YOUR readers will not be in full possession of the present operations of the Crown by virtue of the provisions of our several Land Acts, without reference to a document laid before the Legislative Assembly on the 12th ultimo. This paper contains three schedules of proposed resumptions from runs in the unsettled districts of Queensland, viz.:—The Burnett, Darling Downs, and Maranoa. As this may "meet the eye" of some one directly concerned in the matter, I will enumerate the runs affected. They are—in the Burnett: St. David's Fall, Prazier, Penang, and Mount Perry. In Darling Downs: Terrica, Merriwa, Callandoon, Bromfield, Goondiwindah, Goondiwindi, and Gungan. In the Maranoa: Warroo and Burgorrh. The proposed resumptions are made under the Pastoral Leases Act of 1869, section 55, which after providing for resumption by simple notification in the Gazette, of an area not exceeding in the whole from any one run of 2560 acres, makes the following further provision for more extensive resumptions, viz.:—That six months' notice shall be given in writing to the lessee; upon the expiration of which notice a schedule of lands proposed to be resumed from lease shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament, and if not dissented from by resolutions within sixty days, the reservations shall take effect. In the event, however, of any portion of such reservations becoming alienated or selected, a proportionate deduction shall be made from the rent payable by the pastoral tenant, to be computed in reference to the grazing capabilities of the run affected. The time for defeating, by resolutions of Parliament, any of the resumptions in question expires on the 10th July; but as this falls on a Saturday, a day upon which neither House, by its sessional orders, meets for business, it may be a question whether the sixty days during which resumptions of this class may be defeated by resolutions of both Houses of Parliament may not be held to mean sixty of such days—namely, "sitting days," on which any such resolutions could be passed. There may not be the ghost of a foundation to the legal mind for my suggested possible interpretation of the law, or it may be provided for in that "cure-all," the Acts Shortening Act. But for what it may be worth, and to all whom it may concern, I give it.

A large mass of correspondence arising out of the exercise of the very varied functions of the Agent-General for Queensland has been laid before Parliament. Beyond the matter of the defective railway materiel, to which I referred in my last, it deals with the recent appointment of Immigration Lecturers in Scotland and Ireland, and with the summary dismissal of Mr. Wheeler, the late secretary to the Agent-General. The former of these two subjects possesses at the present moment a somewhat painful interest, from the suspicion which begins to gain ground that Mr. M'Devitt, the late Attorney-General, who was appointed lecturer in Ireland, was a passenger in the Schiller. The letter of instructions to this gentleman, and to his colleague, Mr. George Wight, who has gone with a similar object to Scotland, gave as a reason for the appointments, the desirability of inducing an increased emigration of paying passengers, with a view of relieving the colony of the large expenditure at present incurred in the introduction of free immigrants; and it was considered that the inducements offered to this class by the facilities for settlement were ample, if only they were widely and persuasively promulgated. The selection of the lecturer was in each case stated to have been made on account of his personal acquaintance with the resources of the colony, as well as with the habits and feelings of the people among whom he was to exercise his mission. It formed a part of the scheme of the Government, that while Messrs. M'Devitt and Wight were endeavouring to influence the people of Ireland and Scotland to bring their money, their brains, and their sinews to assist in the development of our resources, the Agent-General should personally use some medium of lecturing to set before the people of England the superior advantages which we have to offer to emigrants. It is only fair to Mr. Wight to say that after a tour, taken before his departure through the several agricultural portions of the southern district, he found it necessary to report his deep conviction that increased facilities for settlement on the good lands of the colony, constituted an indispensable condition of the successful and continuous flow of suitable immigrants from the mother country.

This opinion, coming as it does from a dispassionate and competent judge, invests with increased interest the measures now before the House having for their object those improvements of the law which Mr. Wight pointed to as essential to the full success of his mission. In reply to his instructions Mr. Daintree says in effect that he will lecture if the Government, who by-the-bye work him as only the willing horse gets worked, will leave him time. He urges, however, very strongly, the superior value of a complete handbook, compiled truthfully but regardless of expense, and scattered broadcast through the land. He has already issued a very creditable production of the kind, but it wants enlarging, and he asks for the co-operation of the colony itself in preparing some of the material. The splendid brochure, lately issued in the interests of New Zealand, seems to have put Mr. Daintree on his mettle; and in his recommendation to the Government he is full to the brim of that spirit of commerce which evinces itself in the publication of gorgeous illustrated catalogues of what the trader has to sell.

The charges against Mr. Wheeler were that (during Mr. Daintree's illness and inferentially when the control of his chief was temporarily removed) the usual discount of 2½ per cent., together with the ordinary trade discounts, had not been allowed to the Government, while goods had in some cases been invoiced too high; that freights had not been secured at the lowest rates ruling; that the usual discount of 10 per cent. had not been allowed on insurances; that needless expense had been incurred in inspecting goods supplied by first-class houses; and that, despite inspection, in the case of railway material, a great amount of rubbish had been palmed off upon the colony. For these reasons Mr. Wheeler, being the officer who in every case had certified to the correctness of charges, and Mr. Dempsey, C.E., who had passed the railway material, were summarily dismissed. Mr. Daintree in replying to the letter conveying this order and its causes, defends his subordinates, and especially Mr. Wheeler, very ably, and with the greatest ease disposes of the bulk of the charges; and in concluding he insists that unless the Legislature define the responsibilities attaching to the Agent-General, and also how far his subordinates are responsible for special work intrusted to their hands, "no gentleman of honesty of intention who values his good name more than anything else, will in future be found to undertake its onerous and multifarious duties." He adds: "Some extra security against exparte statements being used to crush subordinate employés of the Government in England, seems also to be called for." At the time this letter was written, Mr. Wheeler's successor was on his way to London; and at the date of the Colonial Secretary's reply, the new secretary to the Agent-General had been installed two months in his office. That reply reiterates the charges by the light thrown upon them by Mr. Daintree's letter, and undoubtedly fixes upon Mr. Wheeler a want of sufficient care in protecting the Government from overpayments. If this were proved in no other way, it is evidenced by the fact that the 10 per cent. discount upon insurances was refunded by the shipping firm without demur upon being applied for. Not a suspicion of collusion or want of the strictest integrity rests upon Mr. Wheeler, and it is a serious question whether, remembering how powerless he was to set himself right under the peculiar action taken by the Government, summary dismissal before he was heard was not unmerciful. The whole matter will, however, be shortly discussed in the House, as Mr. Palmer has given notice of a motion condemning Mr. Wheeler's dismissal, and calling upon the Government to reinstate him.

The House has got into a more deliberate mood upon the Western (quondam "Continental") Railway Bill. Last evening the resumption of the committee was followed by some hours of solid argumentative debate upon Mr. Graham's proposal to extend to the whole colony the system of construction by means of sale of lands. The amendment was lost by 24 to 15; but more than one of the adverse votes were based upon the suspicion that the proposal was a covert attack upon the policy of the Government, and the subject was therefore not altogether discussed upon its merits. The House, on both sides, appears now to intend to proceed with the measure; and as an earnest that the Opposition favour the immediate construction of the 200 miles involved in the Roma line. Mr. Palmer has given notice of a motion inviting the Government to bring forward for approval the plans and sections, so far as they are complete, with a view to the transfer to that line, without any interval of non-employment, of the large body of navvies now engaged in completing the metropolitan extension. It would certainly be in the last degree, undesirable to allow some hundreds of railway labourers and mechanics to leave us, in search of employment in the other colonies, just as we are about to enter upon an extension exceeding in magnitude anything we have done yet. At the same time, the most recent experience leaves it open to grave doubt whether the system of small contracts which has prevailed upon the Brisbane line is not at once costly and inefficient; and I am disposed to think that the colony will expect that, whatever temporary arrangement may be made for the immediate employment of our spare navvies, the work will be ultimately let in large contracts, under highly-skilled engineering superintendence, so that at least the cost of construction may be ascertainable — a simple piece of information which it is very questionable whether any one concerned in the section now being finished up could afford. Weather permitting, the first passenger train will start from the metropolitan station on Monday next. Brisbane is fortunate in having got the station into the heart of the city at this early period of its history, and any one conversant with the inconvenience in this regard to which Sydney has been for so many years subjected, will be glad to observe that the engineers have at last matured a plan for bringing the terminus nearer to the traffic in your, compared with ours, giant city.

Last night the Attorney-General introduced his long-promised Education Bill. Knowing, however, the keen interest which the general subject possesses for many of your readers, I shall not keep my letter back for it; although it will probably be published to-day, as I should like to read it carefully, so as to give them in my next a careful resumé of its contents.

The annexation of New Guinea seems to be exercising the minds of all the colonies. An address to the Queen upon the subject has already been passed by the Legislative Council through its first stages, and one is pending in the Lower House upon the same subject. The exact meaning of this race to bring the matter under her Majesty's notice is not quite clear, as it is difficult to see the immediate and direct advantage to be gained to any one of the Australian colonies more than another by the annexation; but if any such advantage be obtainable, the munificent enterprise, with its unselfish and noble aims, of Mr. Macleay ought to secure it for New South Wales.

SOCIAL TOPICS IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, APRIL 7.

THE Easter holidays over, everybody seems to have settled down again into the old business routine as though there had been no interruption to the dull wearisome monotony which too often forms the principal feature of industrial life. But for all this the Easter holidays have been more universally enjoyed this year, thanks to the working of the Bank Holiday Act, which enables Easter Monday to become marked by a complete cessation from business. The passion for holiday-making, which is beginning to affect all classes of the community, forms one of the principal characteristics of modern social life in this country, and is attracting the attention of the thoughtful, who appear scarcely to know whether to regard it as a good or evil sign. The newspapers, in default of gigantic cabbages and showers of frogs, have made the subject a theme for innumerable leaders; the Times observing that the alacrity with which everybody has seized on the new Bank holidays for an almost complete suspension of business seems to show that Englishmen have begun to appreciate the value of a holiday, if they cannot be said as yet to have made much progress towards its rational enjoyment. "It is easy to be sarcastic," says the Thunderer, "about the pleasures of a multitude which are not very inspiriting in themselves, and are a source of much inconvenience to the by no means insignificant minority who are forced to labour for the benefit of the rest. But when satire of this sort has said all it has to say, the significant fact remains that the people of England, undoubtedly the most hard-working population in the world, are determined to interpose more frequent holidays in the round of their incessant labours. It is impossible not to sympathize with such a determination. However clumsily a holiday may be enjoyed, the disposition to enjoy it is at least some sign of national content and well-being." It is satisfactory to be enabled to add that, so far as the metropolis was concerned, there was less drunkenness and excess observable on Good Friday and Easter Monday than has been the case for many years. Some attribute this to the influence of the Revival movement, which has attracted so many thousands to the Agricultural Hall; but without seeking to detract from the success which has attended the labours of Messrs. Moodie and Sankey, one cannot help suspecting that the delightfully fine weather which has rendered the late holidays so enjoyable had something to do with such a gratifying result. Instead of wasting their time at the bars of beershops and gin-palaces, the holiday-makers found themselves tempted by the warmth and sunshine into making pleasant country rambles, for which our metropolitan railway system affords wonderful facilities.

Many, however, found their way into Hyde Park, where Dr. Kenealy had gathered about him one of the largest assemblages ever witnessed in that favourite resort of English demagogism.

Although sobriety appeared to be the rule among the London holiday-makers during the recent holidays, the cause of temperance does not appear to make much progress of late, despite the exertions of the Good Templars and the followers of Sir Wilfred Lawson. Our judges and magistrates still have their hands full, dealing with the crimes and offences arising out of the unhappy propensity for drink, which converts such an enormous per-centage of the population into fools or madmen. It can be stated now, as it was stated thirty years ago, that but for the popular passion for strong drink our prisons would become almost empty, and our magistrates have little or nothing to do. A significant illustration of the accuracy of these observations was recently afforded at the Leeds Assizes, where, upon the conclusion of their labours, the grand jury, through their foreman, Sir Henry Edwards, made the following presentment to the judge (Baron Amphlett):—"The grand jury, in concluding their duties, and bearing in mind the observations of his Lordship upon the increase of crimes of violence, beg permission respectfully to invite the Judges' attention to the fact that in nearly all the cases that have come before them where violence has been committed, whether in aggravated assaults, or in the brutal beating of wives, or in the form of licentious outrages upon women, the exciting cause has been strong drink, and the criminals are shown to have often issued from the public-house or beer-house in such a state as to have lost reason and self-control. Without offering any opinion on the efficacy of the different kinds of punishment, the grand jury believe that no degree of severity is sufficient to deter the drunkard whose blood is inflamed and whose mind is blinded and maddened by drink from acts of violence and outrage; and it is, therefore, in the interests of both the victims and the perpetrators of these crimes—in short, of the whole public—that attention should be drawn as well to the exciting cause as to the severer punishment of each offence." The Judge, in dismissing the grand jury, expressed his concurrence in the observations contained in the presentment. He said that in almost all the cases of crimes of violence in the calendar drink seemed to be the prominent cause; but he had also occasion to observe that in many cases the persons who have suffered from the violence have accompanied the prisoners to public-houses, and have themselves become intoxicated, and thus made themselves an easy prey to the evil passions of their companions. Unfortunately there is nothing new in all this. Judges and juries are continually making the same observations, yet the evil remains in apparently undiminished extent. Perhaps this fact may ultimately goad our legislators into passing the Permissive Bill. We should not be at all surprised were such to be the case.

The Revivalist movements of Messrs. Moody and Sankey furnishes no indications of abatement; on the contrary, the excitement appears to be steadily on the increase, and it is a suggestive fact, that at the various theatres and music-halls the slightest uncomplimentary allusion to the two evangelists becomes the signal for a storm of disapprobation. One or two of the satirical papers, including Punch, have attempted to breast the tide of public feeling, but only to find themselves ignominiously baffled. The Times, ever ready to detect the tendency of public opinion, has "pronounced" in favour of the revivalists; royalty has listened with attention to their utterances; Pellegrini has caricatured their features in "Vanity Fair;" and their hymns have become as familiar as "La Fille de Madame Angot" Waltz or the "Giroflé-Girofla" Polka in our fashionable drawing rooms. This is not all, for on their platform may daily be seen ministers of the Established Church cheerfully fraternising with those of the various Nonconformist sects. Of course, the Ritualists are furious at this. No epithets are too coarse or too strong for application to the services at the Agricultural Hall; but their wrath is of little use, save to display the slight hold possessed by them on the religious feelings of the nation. Ever shouting for toleration towards themselves, they display the grossest intolerance imaginable in their dealings with those whose views of religious matters do not coincide with their own.

The antagonistic working of the Factory and Workshop Acts has led to the appointment of a Royal Commission to investigate the best mode of amending and consolidating them, so as to secure the fullest amount of protection for children and young persons engaged in industrial occupations. In this the Conservative Government have simply yielded to the force of public opinion, which is daily becoming more unanimous in the demand for the refusal of all exemptions from school attendance on the part of children under ten years of age. It is significant that the cry for education should issue most loudly from the agricultural classes. The other day, Mr. Rodwell, M.P., read a paper before the members of the Wisbeach Chamber of Agriculture on the education of children in the rural districts. In the course of his remarks he suggested the substitution of nine years of age for eight as the period up to which children should be prohibited from employment. He thought it would be better to date a pupil's freedom from the time at which he showed that he had reached some given but easy standard of intelligence rather than from the number of attendances. He warmly supported the progress of education, and anticipated as one result of it that the labourer when educated would not be so easy a prey to those who now imposed upon his ignorance and credulity. As to compulsion, he believed to push it further would cause actual mischief, and check the stream which is fast setting in in favour of elementary education. The recent movement among the farm labourers seems to have stimulated the demand, on the part of the landed gentry and farmers, for increased facilities of education in the rural districts. They are evidently more fearful of the ignorant labourer than of the educated one. It is noticeable that at most bucolic gatherings Hodge is spoken of in more deferential terms than was the case a few years ago. For instance, at a recent meeting in a Devonshire agricultural district, Sir Thomas Acland, Bart., M.P., in the course of an address observed:—"As to our agricultural association it is not our object to reward a man with a 'coat and buttons' for forty years' service, or to give him some artistic design in a handsome frame. Our policy has always been to cultivate and reward skill and good workmanship. I can speak for myself, as a farmer, and for some of my neighbours, that it would give us the greatest pleasure to see our workmen worthy of their hire, and enjoying life more than they do now, with a prospect of rising in proportion to their qualifications. We are convinced that as invention advances and machinery becomes more adapted to our wants, so far from less labour being employed, there will be more demand for labour; and we hope that the produce of the land will increase in proportion, to the advantage both of the labourer and the general consumer, as well as the landowner and the occupier of the land." These sensible utterances are, however, a little too late. At any rate, they do not seem to exercise any influence on the tide of emigration from the agricultural districts, which in some places, notably in Lincolnshire, has become so large as to excite the fears of the farmers, there being a positive scarcity of labour in several districts.

Canada is the favourite destination of the emigrant-labourers, the late visit of Joseph Arch to that colony enabling him to describe its resources and advantages from personal observation. If the Australian colonies want labourers, they should follow the example of the Canadian Government and invite a few working-class leaders to make a tour of inspection of the colonies. The money would not be wasted. The emigration movement to Brazil has been checked by the action of the English Government Emigration Board, which in consequence of a new scheme for promoting emigration from the United Kingdom to Brazil, issued a "caution" to intending emigrants. After pointing out the unhappy results that have attended previous schemes of emigration to Brazil, the caution states that the settlement which it is now proposed to form appears from the prospectus put out by the promoters to be situated on the high lands, where the climate is healthy and the soil fertile, but that, on the other hand, it is remote from any market at which the settlers could sell their surplus produce, or procure the supplies they might require, the nearest town of any size, Curitiba, the capital of the province, being at the distance of 62 miles. Emigrants are also reminded that in going to Brazil they go to a country where the language, the laws, the religion, and the habits of the people will be strange to them, and although it is promised that a church and schools shall be hereafter provided neither at present exists. In addition to this many extracts from Parliamentary papers have been published, showing the hardships and perils to which immigrants to Brazil are exposed. Not only do the Brazilian Government disclaim all responsibility for promises made to immigrants by their agents, but they refuse even the facilities for obtaining redress. Some of the facts given in these Parliamentary papers are almost incredible. Much of the land is fertile; but where many of the colonists have been located it is poor. When cleared of forest, it produces one or two most abundant crops; but it then must be given up again to jungle weeds, or else the tropical rains will ultimately wash the soil off. As to head money, the £2 promised, it is only paid in driblets after long delays. Abundant work is guaranteed by the Government, chiefly in road-making, but very little is provided. The newly-arrived immigrants are huddled in a Government shed to await the allotment of land; their food is beans full of weevils, maize-flour mouldy, pork full of maggots. On one such occasion ten children and one woman died of actual starvation. Some of the colonists sold these damaged Government rations for whatever they could get for them, and purchased bread for their children. The Governor of the colony rebought the stuff from those to whom it had been disposed of, and reissued it to the colonists. Any one complaining must present his memorial in Portuguese; this involves 2s. 2d. for an amanuensis and 6d. for a stamp. Many persons have next to walk hundreds of miles to the nearest town, often in vain, to recover paltry sums due to them by Government for work done. Thus, Thomas Walsh claimed £5, which was duly admitted, but the attempted recovery of which cost him a walk of 1080 miles and the loss of sixty days. Numerous similar instances are given. Then, again, even the letters of the immigrants are not safe. They are opened by the Brazilian Post Office, possibly for the purpose of suppressing those containing complaints and warnings. Of this several proofs are adduced; among others the following:—A suspicious colonist had recourse to a stratagem. He wrote a highly-coloured account of his success to his sister in Dorsetshire. She read that letter in a local newspaper before she received the original. Surely if the Brazilian Government can tempt English labourers to emigrate to their shores, the colonies ought to have little difficulty in inducing them to make a trial of Australia.

The Co-operative Congress has attracted much attention, both from the revelations made respecting the astonishing progress reported of the English co-operative associations and the efforts made by their members to initiate a national system of co-operative banking. At the same time it was made evident that the co-operators are becoming divided into two rival camps, one being in favour of the principle of dividing the profits among shareholders and customers, and the other adhering as tenaciously to the principle of confining the profits to the shareholders. The tendency in favour of the latter principle daily becomes more apparent, for co-operators are but human, and the desire to make money is a human passion. But, as Mr. Hughes pointed out, the tendency to transform co-operative associations into joint-stock firms is liable to tempt the members into speculative enterprises, and make them familiar with the most objectionable practices of the Stock Exchange. Far better to let well alone. But all this might have been anticipated. Our artisans have learnt the art of making money, and it is only natural that they should seek to turn their knowledge to profitable account. Still there is such a thing as being too clever, and it is possible that many of them will discover this when too late.

THE AMERICAN (WALTHAM) WATCH COMPANY possesses the only Factory in the world where a COMPLETE WATCH is made UNDER ONE ROOF; and having already SOLD OVER 800,000 of their CELEBRATED WATCHES, are now endeavouring to meet the increasing demand by producing them, through the aid of their extensive plant of machinery, at the aid of 100,000 a year. They are thus enabled to maintain, at all times, an ample selection of Gold and Silver Lever Watches at their London Depot, 16, HATTON GARDEN, E.C., where, amongst these specially suited to the English market, will be found so called from its proverbial ACCURACY as a TIME-KEEPER and adaptability to the requirements of travellers and those actively employed.
The "ARTISAN'S WATCH," manufactured expressly to suit the requirements of the working man, so constructed as to be free from the ordinary liabilities to injury by accident, and, from its simple mechanism, repaired—if ever necessary—at a trifling cost.
The "EQUESTRIAN'S WATCH," constructed to avert the mechanical derangement so frequently produced in watches by the jolting and oscillation inseparable from a "seat in the saddle."
For ACCURACY OF PERFORMANCE, each and all of the above will be found to EQUAL the MOST COSTLY WATCH manufactured upon the old principle still adopted by the English makers.

Also, the
consisting of Willandra, area 40 square miles, and front[age] to the Lachlan of 16 miles; Outer Willandra B[...] area 50 square miles, with Willandra Billabong run[ning] through the centre; Outer Willandra West, area [...] square miles, watered by the Willandra Billabong [and] Middle Creek; and Outer Willandra Block A, area [...] square miles, with frontage to the Willandra Billab[ong] the whole forming a compact block of first-class coun[try] (open plains intersected by belts of box and pine ridge) enclosed with a ring fence, and thoroughly wat[ered] throughout in all seasons.
The stock consists of about
4200 head of cattle, mixed sexes and ages, almost PU[RE] DURHAMS, no bulls having been among them fo[r] years but the direct progeny of imported stock; and [the] herd is undeniably the best in the district, and sec[ond] to none in the colony.
These runs are substantially fenced, and for 13 miles [along] the Willandra with wire, sheep-proof; the other impro[ve]ments comprising a six-roomed cottage, with kitchen, [...] large stock, horse, and milking yards.
With the before-mentioned runs will be sold the URUNAWAY RUNS,
consisting of Urunaway, area 40 square miles, with frontage to the Lachlan of eight miles; Belmyr[...] area 80 square miles; and N.E. Willandra, area [...] square miles.
These runs adjoin the Willandra Runs, are watered [by] the Lachlan River, and Willandra Billabong, and [are at] present unstocked; but on Urunaway are a woolshed, [a] tailing yard, and a six-roomed cottage, &c.
These stations form together the finest squatting pro[perties] ever offered for sale in the Lachlan district, and [the] stock is, without exception, equal to anything in [the] colonies, having been bred up for very many years with [the] greatest care by the present owner, the herds being [in] fact, PURE SHORTHORNS exclusively, and there [is] ample room for at least double the number of cattle on the runs, or an equivalent in sheep, for which the runs [are] well adapted, the whole being in good working order with all necessary plant, horses, stores, &c.
The runs are most favourably situated, commanding both the New South Wales and Victorian markets, wh[ere] the fat cattle for years past have realised the highest prices.

lying on the Irrarra River or principal branch of the Warrego.

These Stations will be sold in one lot, with 43,000 SHEEP, more or less.

LOT 2. BULDIRUDGERA, situated in the Wellington district, between the towns of WELLINGTON and FORBES, with 30,600 SHEEP (more or less).

 Stores, Working Plant, and belongings of each station to be taken by valuation in the usual way by arbitration.

PRELIMINARY NOTICE.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from the proprietor, WILLIAM FORLONGE, Esq., to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, on THURSDAY, the 15th July next,
at 11 o'clock,
The above first-class pastoral properties.
LOT 1. JANDRA.
This noted property is situated on the Darling River, to which it has a frontage of about 18 miles, and is composed of the contiguous blocks or runs known as Jandra
Yanda
Manwanga
Back Manwanga
Back Jandra, and Maroona,
which, together, are estimated to contain
320 SQUARE MILES
of the richest class of pasturage, principally saltbush plains, abounding in every known description of fattening herbage, with carrots, parsnips, and all other sorts of wild vegetables.
The water supply is ample, for, in addition to the long frontage to the Darling, there are several tanks on the back parts of the run, excavated out of the clay pan soil peculiar to the Darling District.
THE IMPROVEMENTS, principally erected on 100 acres of purchased land, comprise:—Cottage of 5 rooms, kitchen; store, stock and milking yards. The woolshed of sawn slabs has floor for twenty-five shearers, and is fitted with a good screw-press; there are also good horse paddocks, &c.

IRRARRA.—This run has hitherto been worked in conjunction with "Jandra," from which it is distant about fifty miles in a northerly direction. It consists of five large blocks of country, viz.:—
Windra, Mocobahunga No. 1
Mocobahunga No. 2, Mocobahunga No. 3, and Irrarra Back No 4,
all adjoining each other, having a frontage of about twenty miles to the Irrarra River, and estimated to contain
200 SQUARE MILES
of choice fattening country, unsurpassed in the Warrego district. The water supply of the Irrarra is supplemented by two dams, and during the last trying summer upwards of 26,000 sheep were watered on this property.

THE IMPROVEMENTS on this country are amply sufficient for working it in connection with the Jandra station.
With these properties will be sold
43,000 SHEEP, more or less.
 Attention is drawn to the fact that the wool of the above flocks was last season shorn at Jandra, and at once shipped per Darling River steamer, and within ten days of starting was safely delivered in Melbourne at a cost of £6 10s per ton carriage. The bugbear of long and expensive carriage is thus entirely done away with.

LOT 2. BULDIRUDGERA.
This extensive property includes the blocks Buldirudgera, Billabong, Booral, and Ten Mile Creek, and is estimated to contain of sound grazing country, principally box ridges and open forest, while on that part of the run tending towards the Bogan River the country opens into small plains, well grassed and timbered with myall and yarreen, and abundantly covered with dwarf salt-bush, and other saline herbage. As a whole, the run is admirably adapted for breeding and wool-growing purposes, the Bogan country being also equal to fatten a large number of wether flocks. The Billabong portion of Buldirudgera lies about 20 miles from Forbes, while the Little River portion extends to within about 30 miles of Wellington, and the whole is throughout well watered by the Little River, Coobung, Bunburry, Burrengong, Booral, Ten-mile, and other creeks, nearly all of which are permanent, the waters of the Booral and Ten-mile Creeks being conserved by substantial dams erected at considerable cost. On part of the run is the Parkes township and proclaimed gold-field, the latter so far protecting that part of the run from free-selectors.
THE IMPROVEMENTS comprise—Cottage of 5 rooms, kitchen, store, stable, woolshed, drafting yards, cultivation and horse paddocks, and other conveniences for working the property. The FENCING is most substantial, and encloses 6 large sheep paddocks, capable of carrying 40,000 sheep, being constructed of split posts, and 5 wires, with top rail for both outside and dividing lines. The principal part of this fencing has been recently erected at great cost. The unfenced area of the run is quite equal to 50,000 additional sheep.

With this property will be sold
30,600 SHEEP, more or less.

 Full particulars of the above flocks will be published in a few days, but it may be here mentioned that the respective purchasers of the above properties will on taking possession find the sheep nearly fully fleeced and ready for the shears—the last year's clip having been taken off in September and October.

Special attention is directed to the sale of the above important stations, as they are now in the market for bona-fide sale, the proprietor having determined to direct his energies to the management of his properties lying nearer to Sydney. A close examination of both country and stock is particularly invited, and gentlemen desirous of inspecting will meet with every assistance for so doing, on application to the superintendents in charge.
Terms liberal.
